TEMPLE TO INGERSOLL IS PLANNED BY CHICAGO MEN.

Propose to Raise $100,000 with Which to Erect an Elaborate Memorial Building in Chicago.

The building in Chicago of a $100,000 temple to the memory of Robert G. Ingersoll, in which the teachings of the orator and atheist shall be perpetuated, is the purpose of the Ingersoll Memorial association, incorporated at Springfield yesterday. The projectors are Edward C. Reichwald, Secretary of the American Secular Union and Free Thought federation; Frederic Dahlstrom, 43 Van Buren street; and Samuel Roberts of Englewood.

The plan will be explained in detail in circulars that are to be sent out in a day or two to followers of Ingersoll, and also members of the Secular union.

"We do not anticipate any trouble in raising $100,000 or even a much larger sum for a memorial hall or temple dedicated to the teachings of Ingersoll," said Mr. Reichwald last night. "We expect to be able to arrange a meeting of the incorporators next week, and are practically sure of starting the association with fifteen or twenty members. There will be an election of officers, including directors, and the association will begin at once to raise by subscription the amount required.

"While the memorial hall will be built in Chicago, no exact location has as yet been talked of, but it is not unlikely, however, that the hall will go to either the South or the West Side. There are suitable sites in each of these sections where land is reasonable, and where it would be convenient for the followers of Ingersoll to gather.

"This project has been under consideration in one shape or another for two years and is now taking definite form. I returned from Buffalo yesterday, and while there was offered support for our plans. The perfecting of our organization will mark the active commencement of the raising of the memorial fund."

SHIRT WAIST CLUB REBUKED.

Class in Denver Manual Training School Has Trouble on Its First Appearance.

Denver, Colo., May 2.—[Special.]—Professor Joseph Parce, instructor in the manual training high school, were amazed this afternoon when his class of seniors filed into the recitation-room in shirt waists. It was the initiation exercise of the Shirt Waist club of the senior class. The members of the club decided that the opening day should have several paralyzing features, and the first on the program was this inaugural march at a double-quick step into the steam class. Professor Bradley expressed himself in such unmeasured terms of reproof when he once got started that the club as a whole felt it was altogether too early in the season to wear shirt waists.

YOUNG DENTAL GRADUATE LOSES HIS NEW DIPLOMA.

Wind Wafts Leonard Wright Cleveland's Parchment from a Car Window—Will Ask College to Reissue One.

Leonard Wright Cleveland, who says he is a distant cousin of the ex-President, graduated from the Chicago Dental College last Tuesday afternoon and the next day he lost his diploma out of a car window. He could find no trace of it and now he is wondering who is pulling the teeth he should extract on the authority of the parchment. The young dentist called up the college, but was told he would have to prove the diploma destroyed before another would be issued to him.

Young Cleveland's father and mother and sisters came from the home farm near Fox Lake, Ill., to see Leonard take his degree. The exercises were held on Tuesday afternoon. Leonard was handed his rolled and beribboned diploma, which his mother and sisters took to the home of a friend with whom they were stopping in Jefferson Park.

The next day Leonard started down-town on a Logan Square elevated train. He had the diploma and a sofa pillow, which he deposited beside him and next to an open window of the car. A sudden gust of wind blew the light parchment out of the window between Chicago avenue and Division street. At the first station Cleveland went back and searched in vain for the lost certificate. He believes that the roll dropped in the opposite track and was whisked up and torn into fragments by a train. He will ask Dean T. W. Brophy of the dental college to reissue the certificate.

BEWARE THE MAY MICROBE; IT IS AFTER YOUR TONSILS.

Germ Floats from the Carpets on Moving or Housecleaning Day and Causes a Sore Throat.

Beware of the May microbe! It is abroad in the land and is seeking a hiding place in the tonsils of human kind. It is the moving day microbe, the house-cleaning microbe. It lurks in the carpets and rugs and comes forth to pester the people when the house-cleaner or moving man begins his work.

Four cases of tonsilitis, caused by the May microbe, came to the notice of Medical Inspector Spalding yesterday.

"When rugs, carpets, and other household articles are shaken," said Dr. Spalding, "the dry germs are started to flying about. They lodge in the throat and produce tonsilitis. This is due to the presence of staphylococci and strepococci, germs which are capable of causing tonsilitis.

"The four cases which have come to my notice without doubt were caused by the May stirring up of the microbes and I have no doubt that thousands of persons in Chicago are suffering from the same cause."

FINAL TERMS TO CHINA OUTLINED.

Indemnity Finally Fixed at $325,000,000, Which Includes All Private Claims.

FOUR PLANS FOR PAYING.

Powers May Have to Guarantee the Bonds Issued by the Chinese Government.

MORE TAXES ARE NEEDED.

Committee Suggests Various Means for Increasing the Inadequate Revenues of the Empire.

MINISTERS NOT OF ONE MIND.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, May 3, 3 a. m.—The Pekin correspondent of the Times sends a precis of the Indemnity commission's report. Considering the improbability of China paying from her own resources the £65,000,000 demanded, which sum includes the private claims, four alternatives, the report says, present themselves.

First—A Chinese loan not guaranteed by the powers. Such a loan would be almost ruinous to China.

Second—A loan guaranteed by all the powers. Such a loan would be easily obtainable. It would hasten the payment of the indemnities and the restoration of normal conditions. It would be advantageous to trade, but would involve heavy responsibilities for the governments and might lead to difficulties in the event of differences among the guaranteers, who might require control of the revenues hypothecated.

Third—To issue Chinese bonds to each power for the amount of its indemnity, payable at fixed terms. Bonds bearing interest could serve as security for a national loan.

Fourth—Annual payments, which would be inconvenient as involving an undue prolongation of the time of payment.

The committee decided to leave the decision as to which alternative shall be adopted to the home government.

Sources of Revenue.

The committee unanimously agreed upon the following sources of revenue to be utilized for payment of the indemnities: First, the maritime customs, which already are under foreign control. Their total revenue is £28,000,000 or £29,000,000, of which £24,000,000 is absorbed in paying interest of foreign loans.

Second, an increase in the customs tariff to an effective 5 per cent ad valorem. This would give, opium being excepted, from £2,500,000 to £3,500,000.

Third, the native customs if placed under the maritime customs would yield from £3,000,000 to £10,000,000.

Fourth, duties on goods such as flour, butter, cheese, foreign clothing, spirits, etc., which are now admitted free.

The committee considers that the above sources would yield a minimum revenue of 5,500,000 taels and a maximum revenue of 15,000,000 taels.

What Is Recommended.

The committee recommends, but not unanimously, the following: An increase of the customs tariff to 10 per cent, which, it is estimated, would yield from 10,500,000 to 18,000,000 taels. It is estimated that the salt tax would yield from 4,000,000 to 20,000,000 taels, the Pekin octroi producing 500,000 taels. The commutation of the rice tribute, it is estimated, would bring 1,000,000 to 8,000,000 taels. The abolition of the Manchu pensions and a reduction of military expenses are recommended. The commission expresses the opinion that neither the land tax nor the likin can be touched. The increase in the maritime customs apply to imports only.

Ministers Do Not Agree.

All the Ministers, with the exception of the British, American, and Japanese, favor an immediate increase to 10 per cent.

The committee concludes that without the guarantee of the powers China, in order to pay £65,000,000 sterling, would require to raise £85,000,000 at 5 per cent, but with a guarantee she would not require to raise more than £70,000,000 at 4 or 4½ per cent if the creditors consent to a postponement of the redemption until the revenue is increased. China meantime need pay the interest only.

Large Sum for China to Pay.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, May 2.—The statement that the total indemnity to be demanded of China amounts to $325,000,000 has been officially confirmed here. This amount includes all private claims. It is believed here that if China will now undertake to pay this sum in indemnities the evacuation of Pe-Chi-Li Province can begin immediately.

Boxers Again Threatening.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

PEKIN, May 2.—After the troops of the German and French expedition left Pao-Ting-Fu for the Ku-Ku-Wang pass, on the borders of Shansi Province and the southwest mountains, a force of 800 Boxers approached from the west and sent spies into the city, causing great alarm to the officials of the city, who patrolled the streets all night.

Another Boxer force surrounded a village south of Pao-Ting-Fu and held it all morning. General von Ketteler will leave Pao-Ting Fu on May 5 for Japan. He says the Germans may evacuate the place within three weeks.

To Settle Mission Claims.

The Provincial Treasurer of Chmu-Fu, who was appointed special commissioner to settle mission claims, has arranged most of the claims outside of Pekin and the Province of Chili and is now negotiating with the Catholic and Protestant missionaries and converts here for a settlement of their claims. He offers to pay one-third of the claims within two weeks and to give government bonds for the remainder, payable at a future date.

The Chinese officials point to the offer as an evidence of their good faith.

FATE BUNKOES A SUICIDE.

JOHN HOWARD DUNCAN, SCOT AND TAR, CAN'T DIE.

With a Cunning Born of Two Previous Attempts He Swims Far Out in the Lake to Scuttle His Mortal Ship Without Interference from Meddlesome Men with Boathooks—Strange World in Which He Wakes Just the Life-Saving Station.

When Jack Howard Duncan, a canny Scot and a sailor, yesterday made up his mind—for the third time—to die he was almost persuaded to seek death on land. Jack had been unlucky in his other attempts to slip his cable via the water route. In each case some perniciously active man with a long boat hook had hooked him somewhere in his clothes, yanked him ashore, and frustrated his scheme.

After thinking it all over Jack decided, however, that the waves were calling him, and so, turning his back on the city, he started due east. He walked instinctively toward the Chicago avenue pier, but the sight of a boat hook woke him from his reverie and he shied like a maiden colt at the starting gate. For it was from this pier that the gentleman from Scotland had made his previous attempts to shuffle off, and, too, there seemed to be more of those long hooks in evidence than ever before.

Sore on His Luck.

These two well meant efforts were the sore spots in Jack's life. He didn't mind his daily tough luck so much—only enough to try and kill himself—but it seemed to be piling bad luck of the worst kind on a sailor's ordinary ill luck to be saved twice in succession when landlubbers who knew nothing about the water were able to drown themselves the first shot out of the box.

So out to the north pier marched the determined Scot with a most beautiful and cunning scheme revolving in his brain. Not a boat hook was in sight, and the early morning fishermen were few and far between. There wasn't a boat within rowing distance, either. But Jack was taking no chances. He took off his clothes carefully and piled them in a neat heap on the dock.

"It's a little early for a swim," said a fisherman.

"Not too early for a sailor," answered Duncan.

Swims Out a Mile.

He plunged into the water, gave a few exhibitions of fancy strokes to reassure the spectators, and struck out for the center of the lake. He went a mile and the fishermen became tired watching him and forgot him. He looked around and there was not the smallest chance of a rescue this time. No boat, no tug, no sail, and nary a boat hook in sight. Then with a peaceful smile on his face and a look of supreme satisfaction he threw up his hands and sank. He could not help coming to the surface again, but he did not stay longer than he could help. He sank again and then lost consciousness.

Find It's the Same Old World.

Shortly afterward he felt warmth returning to his limbs and light fluttering before his eyes. At last, he thought, he was in another world in which there were no boat hooks. He wanted to think over his new surroundings for a little while before he opened his eyes and was dazzled. Presently he became curious to know if he might not have been ticketed to the wrong place. Something was beating his body with quick punches, and something was rubbing his legs in a way calculated to remove the skin. The sensations were not like those he had imagined would attend an entrance to the destination for which he had longed and to reach which he had worked so persistently.

He opened his eyes and looked around. Several men, distressingly human, were rolling him on a barrel. One who seemed to have jurisdiction over the locality had "Captain" on his cap.

"What place is this?" asked Duncan.

"This is the life saving station," said the man.

"Bunkoed again," groaned Duncan. "Luck's against a sailor."

Luck Foozled His Put.

The way Duncan got sidetracked a third time was this: Just as he thought he had made the last tack and dropped anchor the yacht "Degan Boys" came around the pier, and the head of the unconscious Duncan was seen bobbing on the water preparatory to going down for the last time. The yacht was pointed for him, and Captain F. W. Snyder succeeded in reaching him in time to pull him out.

Jack said the reasons for his repeated attempts at suicide were well known. "It's the old story," he said, without specifying which one. He said he had a wealthy brother in Scotland and a wife in Chicago. He had been a bookkeeper for the Knickerbocker Ice company, he said, but had been out of employment recently. Before this he said he had been a sailor and in command of merchant vessels.

BOY ADMITS HE ROBBED AND FIRED PARISH HOUSE.

John Rasmarowski Makes Written Confession That He Stole from Priest, Then Applied the Torch.

John Rasmarowski and Felix Semmerling—the former has confessed that he robbed and then set fire to the St. Hyacinth's parish-house of the Avondale Polish Catholic Church—were arrested yesterday afternoon by the Attrill Street Station police. Rasmarowski made a written admission of his guilt and it is said that Semmerling, who is held for the same crime, made a verbal confession.

Semmerling is 20 years of age and Rasmarowski 19. The latter is under parole from Pontiac. He was sent to the reform school for breaking into the Avondale parish-house once before and suspicion was directed towards him this time on that account. He had bought a ticket to Omaha and was about to leave the city when the police caught him at his home in North Central Park avenue, near Noble avenue.

On April 8 two young men entered the grocery store of Michael Markewicz, 1772 North Central Park avenue, about 8 o'clock in the evening and took $6. At 1 o'clock the same night they returned armed with lead pipe for the purpose of assaulting the grocer and compelling him to tell where he had concealed the money they suspected him of having. A little girl heard them enter and awakened her father in time to frighten the men away. They wrecked the store, however, before they departed. The police insist that the two boys committed this robbery also.

The crime to which Rasmarowski confessed was committed a few days ago. While vespers were being held in the church of St. Hyacinth two thieves entered the parish house and took $65 from the room of Father J. A. Badski on the second floor. The fire they started to destroy the house was seen by Sexton John Kidowski, who summoned assistance in time to save the building.

While the police were sure of young Rasmarowski's guilt they did not expect him to confess.

CHICAGO'S CASH TO BOOM MEXICO.

Local Capitalists Make Extensive Plans to Bring an Awakening of Southern Republic.

MILLIONS IN THE DEAL.

J. J. Mitchell, L. Z. Leiter, V. W. Foster, and Others Said to Be Interested in Improvement Scheme.

SEE GREAT TRADE CHANCES.

Chicago capitalists and millions of Chicago money are to develop the resources of Mexico, until the Southern republic becomes one of the important factors in the world's trade.

Silver mines, supplying two-thirds of the silver of the world; coal fields hundreds of miles in extent, great reaches of iron and other ore lands, thousands of acres of cotton, and the great grazing lands dotted with cattle are to be made the objects of the impulse of Chicago money.

As a first step in this direction John J. Mitchell and Levi Z. Leiter have been elected to the directorate of the Mexican Central railroad, the main commercial artery of the Southern republic. Aside from marking the entering wedge of a trade revolution these selections are held to be important as showing that Chicago capital has become the dominating American interest in the line, displacing the holdings of Boston financiers.

Foremost of the Chicagoans who has formed an alliance with prominent business-men and bankers of Mexico is Volney W. Foster. Through his efforts steps are to be taken at once to aid the financial interests of the merchants of the country.

Plan Bonded Warehouses.

Bonded warehouses, heretofore unknown in the republic, are to be erected at the City of Mexico and at Vera Cruz. Under present methods the Mexican importer is compelled to pay duty on his goods the moment they are landed. In the United States imports may be stored until they can most opportunely be released and disposed of. This system, it is believed, will give a great stimulus to Mexican trade.

The concession under which these great warehouses will be erected grants the rights for forty years. Into this enterprise alone it is estimated that from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 of Chicago money will be placed.

Plans have been formulated for developing the great Mexican iron field at Durango and the coal deposits at Coahuila, which are said by experts to equal the richest in the world. Money is to be poured into these districts and the most modern mining plants installed. Railroad facilities are to be provided where they are now lacking, and a total of $20,000,000 of money may represent the expenditures before this great work is completed.

All these commercial enterprises are to have nothing of the mushroom speculative features about them. Mexican capitalists have joined hands in the plans. It is said that watered stock and other marks of "modern speculation" will be unknown.

Leading Mexican Interested.

Chief among the men of Mexico who are working with the Chicago capitalists is Señor Enrique C. Creel, who recently was the guest of Mr. Foster. Prior to his visit to Chicago Mr. Creel met the prominent financiers of New York and the East and was introduced to President McKinley by Mr. Foster. At the dinner given in his honor in New York City billions of dollars were represented, every controlling factor of Wall street, including J. Pierpont Morgan, being present. It was then that the rumor started that Mexico was to be changed from a silver to a gold financial basis.

Last month Mr. Foster returned from an eight weeks' visit in Mexico, where, in his own words, he "studied Mexico from the inside." He held many conferences with President Diaz and with Secretary Limantour of the southern republic. Immediately on his return final plans for the investment of Chicago money in Mexico were perfected.

Foster Talks of Plans.

"It is true," said Mr. Foster, "that several business-men of Chicago have united with several business-men of Mexico to carry out a number of enterprises. The southern republic has unlimited resources and they will be developed. Its awakening, which is certain to come, will be the awakening of a giant.

"Business methods prevailing in Mexico are to be commended," concluded Mr. Foster. "Watered stock is unknown. In every corporation the stock is paid up. There is one bank, capitalized for $20,000,000, which is an exception in that all this is not paid in. Yet the fact that an 18 per cent dividend was paid its stockholders last year shows the security and business scope of the institution.

"Definite plans? Well, they cannot be made public yet. There is to be a commercial awakening in Mexico, however, you may be assured, which will have tremendous effect on the world's trade and serve particularly as an impetus to the commerce and industries of the Southern States of our own country."

John J. Mitchell, Levi Z. Leiter, Norman B. Ream, Marshall Field, and Charles Counselman are named among the Chicago men, aside from Mr. Foster, who are interested in the development of Mexico.

WILL CLOSE OMAHA TIGHT.

Mayor of Nebraska Metropolis Will Not Permit Soda Water Sales on Sunday.

Omaha, Neb., May 2.—[Special.]—Mayor Moores today notified all drug stores in the city that next Sunday they would be permitted to sell medicine only. No drinks, not even soda water, will be sold under penalty.

The order to the drug stores was called out by the fact that last Sunday, when the 250 saloons of the city were closed, the drug stores sold all kinds of liquor under the thinnest kind of disguises.

Mayor Moores also notified the theaters today that they would not be permitted to open next Sunday as usual.

The Mayor anonunced that his next probable step will be the shutting down of Sunday street car service. "If the city isn't quiet enough next Sunday," he said today, "I will go still further and close it so tight that the most radical reformer cannot find fault."

STRIKES THE OZARK FLATS

LIGHTNING CAUSES ALARM IN AN APARTMENT BUILDING.

Fall of Forty-one Degrees in Fifteen Minutes Is Without a Parallel, and Soon After Come a Storm and a Bolt Which Create a Panic in South Side Apartment Building—Many Occupants So Severely Hurt That Medical Attention Is Required.

The Ozark apartment house at Thirty-fifth street and Wabash avenue, was struck by lightning last evening about 6 o'clock. Several of the tenants received severe shocks and a panic resulted, most of the seventy families fleeing to the street.

A number of persons were injured, but none seriously. Particles of stone were flung from the coping on the roof, while the charge from the clouds permeated the metal work of the building, shocking many persons and disabling the gas and electric lighting service.

Three persons were made unconscious by the lightning. They were Mrs. Metcalf, daughter-in-law of the manager of the house; Dr. Anna Wells, and Robert Christian. Others who were shocked to a less serious degree were J. R. French, W. W. Knowles, C. E. Cardwell, John Bennett, George Secrit, Thomas Jackson, Mrs. Jeannette Osborne, Mrs. Ricksecker, Mrs. A. L. Gafford, Mrs. Alberson, Mrs. White, Mrs. Charles N. Shafer, Mrs. Mary Norton, Mr. and Mrs. Young, Miss Catherine Faber, Miss Albertina Faber, Miss Louise Faber, Miss Evelyn Hill, and Miss Lizzie Hild.

A doctor was called in to care for the injured.

Flat Dwellers in Panic.

The bolt of lightning passed down gas conduits, and finally struck an electric wire on the fourth floor and instantly shot through the building. All the lights went out. Manager J. L. Metcalfe ran into the basement and shut off the gas, then reappeared in the street to quiet the fears of the dwellers of the building.

From every flat swarmed occupants of the building, who had felt slight shocks or been startled by the thunder clap which followed close upon the flash. An alarm of fire was turned in, but the firemen who responded found no blaze. Manager Metcalfe by that time had dissipated all fears, and the tenants quietly returned to the building. Many suppers, however, were eaten by candle light, for it was more than an hour before the electric lighting system was repaired.

The electrical display that accompanied the bolt was brilliant. The lightning ran along the network of wires, creating a shower of sparks. A street car which had stopped beside the apartment building was almost in the path of the bolt, and the passengers were a badly frightened lot. Sergeants Reynolds and Stack of the Stanton Avenue Police Station were on the car and went to the assistance of Manager Metcalfe in quieting the tenants.

Mercury Breaks Record.

Shortly before the bolt struck, the mercury in the thermometer on the top of the Auditorium tower was smashing records. While the drop of 41 degrees was registered in less than fifteen minutes, the greater part of the fall occurred in something like five minutes. At 2:45 o'clock the thermometer registered 87 degrees, the maximum temperature of the day. Then came a breath of cold air from the northeast, and at 3 o'clock the mercury was resting opposite the 46 degree mark, a fall without a parallel in the history of the Weather office, although it has some remarkable records in this direction. On Wednesday just before noon there was a drop of 32 degrees in a short time, due to a sudden shifting of the wind.

There is no more torrid weather in sight, according to Forecaster Walz, who predicts continued cool and threatening weather for today.

Heat Overcomes Girl.

Miss Maud Haggerty, chief stenographer of the Central Passenger association, in the Monadnock Building, was the victim of the heat. She was overcome in front of the Board of Trade shortly before 2 p. m. and was carried into the office of Schwartz, Dupee & Co. The girl did not recover consciousness until she had been taken to her home, 152 East Thirty-sixth street.

PISTOL SHOT BREAKS UP MEETING OF ODDFELLOWS.

Norman Heminway Fires at W. R. Sherwood While Being Initiated into Lodge at Spring Valley, N. Y.

Nyack, N. Y., May 2.—[Special.]—An event which proved to be almost a tragedy broke up the meeting of Amity Lodge of Oddfellows at Spring Valley last night. Norman Hemingway, who comes from Kansas City, expressed a desire to join Amity Lodge. He presented recommendations and last evening was on hand to take the degrees. During that trying period in the ceremony when he was to be made an Oddfellow, W. R. Sherwood advanced upon Hemingway in a threatening manner. The thing was so realistic that the Westerner whipped a revolver from his pocket and fired at Sherwood. Sherwood staggered and put his hands up to his face. Some members grabbed Hemingway and disarmed him, while others went to Sherwood's aid. Sherwood had not been hit by the bullet, but the powder had flashed in his face and eyes. Sherwood was taken to his home, the ceremonies coming to an abrupt end. Hemingway left town today.

WANTS TO KISS A JUSTICE.

Magistrate Kendall Objects to Osculation by Abraham Berndt and Locks Him in Cell.

Justice Kendall, police magistrate in the Town of Cicero, objected to being kissed by Abraham Berndt yesterday. As a result of the latter's persistency he was thrown out of the courtroom by the irate justice and locked in a cell at the Oak Park Police Station.

Berndt is a broom peddler and was arrested by the Oak Park police on a charge of peddling in the village without a license. When he was taken before Justice Kendall he insisted on greeting the magistrate with a kiss. To this Justice Kendall objected. Berndt insisted, and the magistrate seized him by the shoulders and put him out of the courtroom, ordering the police to lock him up.

"His case will be heard when he has learned proper manners," said the justice.

GUN CARRIAGES TO BE HISTORIC.

Three Vehicles Used in Queen Victoria's Funeral to Be Kept as Venerated Relics.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, May 2.—In the House of Commons this afternoon the Rt.-Hon. William St. John Brodrick, Secretary of State for War, stated that the three gun carriages which had been used at Queen Victoria's funeral would be preserved and deposited, one in the Tower of London, the second in Edinburg, and the third in Dublin.

SOUNDS KNELL OF "CON" MEN.

Chief O'Neill Says They Must Go Along with Pickpockets and the Slot Machines.

ORDERS ARE EMPHATIC.

Tells His Inspectors City Must Be Cleared of Crooks and Explains How Task Can Be Done.

MUST OBEY OR STEP ASIDE.

When He Was Plain Captain He Outwitted Both City Prosecutor and Swindlers.

DETERMINATION HALF THE WORK

Orders went out from police headquarters yesterday that confidence men and pickpockets must be arrested on sight, and all slot machines removed without delay, and for good. The orders were peremptory, and with them went the intimation that a spasmodic obedience would not do, but that the reform must be lasting.

"We intend to make Chicago an uncomfortable place of residence for confidence men," said Superintendent O'Neill, "and pickpockets will have to find some honest way of making a living if they continue to abide with us."

The Superintendent held a conference with his Inspectors in his office during the morning, all being present except Max Heidelmeier, who had gone out to Sharpshooters' Park to watch over the Mayor's comfort. Max will have a special conference of his own, however, and learn what is expected of him. The Superintendent told his subordinates what he wanted done, and incidentally they talked over some matters in which the City Collector is anxious to have the aid of the Police department.

Doom of the "Con" Man.

Talking of the meeting afterwards, Superintendent O'Neill said:

"I am not trying to do too many things at once and there are other matters remaining to be attended to beside the things the inspectors and I discussed today, but the start will be made by driving the confidence men and pickpockets out of Chicago. To my mind the confidence men who hang around the depots are the meanest type of criminal we have. His prey are the unsophisticated visitors, and if he cannot get their money in any other way he will hold his victim up in an alley and take it.

"It is not so difficult to rid the city of this class of people as may be claimed. All I need is a few men who will obey orders, and such men are not hard to find. If the men at present on the work will not obey, I will find others who will. It will simply amount to applying some of the methods which gave 'Mickey' Gleason a ten years' sentence recently in Maryland. Somehow, nothing unpleasant ever happened to 'Mickey' in Chicago.

How He Did It at Stock-Yards.

"Some years ago at the Stock-Yards we were troubled with confidence men who were fleecing the stockmen who had just sold their carloads of cattle and had lots of money and a natural curiosity to see the sights of a large city. I simply began arresting the 'con' men on sight and refusing to book them until forced to. The result was that after a few days and nights of entomological study in the basement of the Stock-Yards Station my gentry made up their minds it was a bad country to live in. I had some of them come to me and offer to promise not to 'do work' in my district if I would let them live in it, saying they had their homes there, but I told them all I could not trust them, that no matter what their present intentions might be, they never could resist the temptation of a verdant stockman with a fat pocket-book.

How to Abolish Pickpockets.

"The pickpocket, like the flea, is an illusive cuss, but you can get him if you go out after him. As soon as he learns he has no friends to get him out of trouble he takes good care not to get into trouble. Another Stock-Yards case will do as an illustration: The pickpockets had become pretty busy down there and I sent out and hauled in three by the names of Burgess, Anderson, and Meahan. Meahan was a fat man who was disposed to be saucy. He told me plainly I never would be able to send him and his friends to the bridewell. They never had gone there and never would go so long as they were in Chicago. I took them before Justice Hennessy, who promptly fined them $100 each.

"Now, the then City Prosecutor was a most obliging man in remitting fines, and so after the trial I had the court clerk get out the mittimuses as fast as possible, while I told the desk sergeant to take a walk for an hour while I did his work. In a few minutes the telephone bell rang and the voice at the other end informed me it was the City Prosecuting Attorney's office. Then something mysterious happened to that telephone. For some reason or other I could not understand a word the Prosecuting Attorney was saying until a patrol wagon had carried my prisoners off to the bridewell. It went by way of Brighton, too.

"Then came the expected application for a pardon, but I answered the inquiry regarding the case myself, and Superintendent Brennan backed up my showing, and none was issued. The first thing Burgess and Anderson did after the trio got out was to give Meahan a thrashing for having told me I could not land them in the Bridewell."

Says Slot Machines Must Go.

Speaking of slot machines, the Superintendent said: "They have either all gone or will go in short order. I am not going around with a crowd breaking them up, but I expect the men who have been notified to take them out of their places to obey the order immediately. If they do not they will be forced to obey."

The Superintendent intimated also that saloons which harbored criminals would soon be without licenses. Speaking of an experience he had had at the Stock-Yards when he started out to break up a gang of thieves, he said:

"The first thing I did was to go after and get three saloon licenses, and after that it was no trouble to round up the thieves. The same means can be used in other sections of the city.

"As a matter of fact, however, it is not so difficult a matter to stop crime. The most necessary thing is to have the criminals themselves clearly understand that you intend to drive them out—the most of them will go fast enough. To do this, however, it is necessary that the fight on them be waged without a let up. So long as the efforts to suppress crime are spasmodic the criminals will not pay much attention to them. From now on I shall expect my men to do what I want them to do in these matters, and have no doubt but they will."

Chief O'Neill also instructed the Inspectors to aid City Collector Brandecker in the collection of dog licenses by having their patrolmen keep a dog census on their beats and report all that have no licenses.

"It has been the dog without any friends at all that ever paid a license heretofore," laughed the Superintendent, "as the average owner thought he had no political pull at all if he could not avoid the payment of this tax. Some men would spend $5 to avoid paying a $2 tax. As two-thirds of the money raised in this way goes to the police pension fund, the department is interested."

At the request of the City Collector the Inspectors were instructed also to look after peddlers who had no licenses.

A peremptory order was sent out to all substations last evening that all crimes be reported promptly to detective headquarters.

SAVE A SALOONKEEPER $1,000.

Detectives Larkin and O'Malley Catch Two Alleged Clever Swindlers on the West Side.

An alleged plan to swindle Nicholas Armbosi, a saloonkeeper, out of $1,000, was frustrated by Detectives Larkin and O'Malley of the Desplaines Street Station yesterday. They arrested Juassoto Carlo and John Feleppi, Italians, who, Inspector Shea says, are clever confidence men. A long black sack stuffed with pieces of newspaper was seized by the detectives. At the top of the bag were found several bills, amounting in all to $160. Armbosi thought the bag was filled with greenbacks, and his surprise was great when the detectives pulled out the newspapers. Revolvers were found in the possession of the prisoners and a $5 bill which had been raised from $1.

The alleged plan to swindle Armbosi was carefully prepared, and it almost proved successful. Carlo, it is said, confessed to the police and attempted to bribe them to release him.

"You fellows are fools," the prisoner is declared to have said. "That sucker has money. If you had kept away two minutes longer we would have cleared $1,000. Let us out of here and we will pay you $200 each."

Armbosi is the owner of two saloons, one at Halsted and Van Buren streets and another at Green and Van Buren streets. A week ago Carlo, it is charged, told Armbosi that he had arrived recently from California; that he had considerable money and desired to invest it in the wine business. Then Feleppi appeared. Under his arm he carried the sack, which he declared was filled with money. He told Armbosi, it is said, that he feared he would be robbed of the money.

Several meetings followed, and Feleppi finally persuaded Armbosi to permit him to place the bag of money in the saloonkeeper's vault, but as a guarantee that the saloonman was a responsible party it was specified that he should put up $1,000. At this point the detectives stepped up and arrested Carlo and Felappi.

PLAN BUILDINGS IN GROUP.

New University of Chicago School of Education May Consist of a Half Dozen Structures.

Building plans for the new University of Chicago School of Education, formerly known as the Chicago Institute, will be deferred for several months, and, instead of one huge structure, it is probable that four or five smaller buildings will be erected in a harmonious group. During the summer the School of Education will occupy the Kozminski School, Fifty-fourth street and Ingleside avenue, and later will be given temporary quarters in the new University Press Building, which is to be completed in September.

One of the reasons for putting up a group of detached buildings instead of a single structure is to secure more complete arrangements for the Chicago Manual Training School. It is also thought that the newly proposed arrangement will insure better protection against fire. The group will occupy a full half block facing the Midway Plaisance, and probably will cost considerably more than $325,000. The buildings will be completed on April 1, 1902.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Trustees of the university Professor John Dewey was appointed general supervisor of the work of the South Side Academy and the Chicago Manual Training School. The academy will retain its present quarters, 5467 Lexington avenue, until the completion of the new group of buildings, next April. The staff of instructors will remain practically unchanged, under the direction of William B. Owen. The Chicago Manual Training School will be under the direction of Principal H. H. Belfield, and will occupy its present location in Michigan avenue until next spring.

LECTURES FOR WARM QUARTER

Chancellor Andrews and Prof. Marcus Dods Will Participate in Course—Other Subjects and Speakers.

Chancellor E. Benjamin Andrews of the University of Nebraska will deliver a course of twenty lectures at the University of Chicago during the summer quarter on "Practical Ethics," discussing the most important moral problems of personal life. This announcement was made yesterday in an official bulletin containing the list of courses for the summer.

Professor Marcus Dods of the Free Church College, Scotland, will give a course of ten lectures on the "Teachings of St. Paul." Other lectures will be given by William Norman Guthrie on "The New Spirit in Literary Art"; by Professor J. G. Carter Troop on "The Evolution of the Historical Novel," and by Professor Maxime Kovalevsky on "Russian Institutions." Professor B. E. Fernow, director of the New York State College of Forestry, will give a course of lectures treating of forestry in its botanical, practical, and political aspects.

Preliminary announcement is made of courses under the Alliance Française to be given by MM. E. Baillot, Henri Breal, Theodore Jongers, E. Lescat, M. Papot, and Ernest Sicard.

THINK COMET HAS VANISHED.

Professor Hough Says It Is Probable the Visitor May Be Seen from Southern Hemisphere.

Professor George Hough, head of the astronomical department at Northwestern University, says it is probable the new comet discovered a few days ago has vanished from the heavens of the northern hemisphere. He looked again yesterday morning for the fiery visitor, and although the sky was comparatively clear he was unable to see any trace of it. "No report has been made for three days of any astronomer having seen the comet," said Professor Hough. "This morning the sky was comparatively clear with the exception of about ten degrees near the horizon, which was banked with clouds. It seems probable that the comet came north in a curved course near the sun and just cut the elliptic before starting back. It is likely that it now can be seen from the southern hemisphere. It is possible, though, it may be traveling in a line with the horizon and have been hidden by the clouds. I watched until after sunrise and saw nothing of it."

DISTRICT LINES TO BE SETTLED.

House and Senate at Springfield Are Decided on Plan of Apportionment.

LITTLE FRICTION FEARED

Both Branches of Assembly Have Busy Day Rushing Measures to Passage.

CHICAGO BILLS PASSED.

SPRINGFIELD BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE } Springfield, Ill., May 2.

The apportionments are as good as made. At first blush the developments of the day would have appeared to be confusing, and it would seem as if great obstacles were in their way. The Senate, by a series of skillfully drawn amendments, made the House bill conform to their measures and then advanced the bills to third reading. They will be passed tomorrow and the question will be, Will the House concur in the Senate amendments? The House will do nothing of the sort. If the Senate does not recede from the amendments it has made the bills will go into conference. The upshot of it all will be the apportionments made by the House, both Congressional and Senatorial, will go through with a single change.

The Congressional bill will not be touched at all for this reason: There are twenty Republican members of the House who will never vote for the bill if a single alteration is made in it. The Senate cannot afford to endanger the measure, nor is there any likelihood that any Cook County Senatorial District will be made the subject of an amendment.

A Senatorial district was, after great turmoil and objections, made out of the Counties of St. Clair and Monroe. Monroe County was divorced from St. Clair by an amendment and thrown in the old district, the Forty-eighth, under the present apportionment made up of the counties of Randolph, Perry, and Jackson. Of course, the Senate must stand for its own proposition, but their position is not a tenable one, sice it is explained to them that the House will not submit to any changes except the one referred to.

Bills Fair to All Concerned.

The bills are as fair to all parties concerned as apportionment bills can be.

Both bills have been carefully scrutinized by experts to see that all the territory in the State is included. When the Democrats reapportioned the State in 1893 they found to their amazement a night or two before the day set for final adjournment that the Town of Riverside had not been cared for in one of the bills. The measure had to be recalled from the Governor and amended so as to include the town in question. This delayed the adjournment of the session about a week. No such errors have been discovered by the Republicans this time. The session will adjourn sine die some time tomorrow night. It may run along until daylight Saturday morning. Nobody can tell. The apportionment matters must be fixed up, and a good many appropriation bills will land in conference committees. Much of the Cook County legislation is already disposed of. It looks at this writing as if the drainage commissioners would get two out of three measures they wanted. The lake park bill will probably go to a confrence, and the result will probably be it will pass as it was originally drawn by the Senate.

House Kills Constitution Bill.

The first thing the House did this morning was to beat the proposition for a constitutional amendment looking towards the convention to revise the State constitution. The proposition was clearly voted down, receiving only 52 affirmative votes, while 76 men went on record against it. Mr. Curtis made quite a little speech as to the importance of the proposition, saying in conclusion that the people of the State could be safely trusted to vote on a constitution with which to govern themselves. This was the only speech made, as the legislators are tired of speechmaking.

The House then proceeded to kill what is known as the McKenzie resolution, providing for a constitutional amendment limiting the Representatives of Cook County in the General Assembly to one-third of its membership. Strange as it may seem, there was no speechmaking, and the roll call began as soon as the resolution had been read. As the roll call went along it was apparent that a number of country members would not support the resolution and it would be beaten. So, without announcement of the result, the House, on motion of Mr. Rinaker, postponed further consideration until tomorrow morning.

Bennett, Buckley, Drew, Hunter of Winnebago, Logan, Neece, and Sheppard, all country members, voted against the resolution.

Haase, Hammond, Hanna, Johnston, Ridley, Smith of Franklin, and Speaker Sherman, all country members, refrained from voting. The roll call stood: Yeas 93 to nays 48. Nine more affirmative votes were necessary to pull it through.

Defer Action on Salary Measure.

An effort was made to call up the Senate bill fixing the salaries of the Cook County Judges and the State's Attorney of Cook at $10,000 per annum. It was not successful, the House, by a vote of yeas 70 to nays 60, postponing action on the bill. Late in the afternoon it was taken up and passed.

The House then settled the Senate bill authorizing the consolidation of the street railways of Davenport, Rock Island, and Moline. It was beaten a day or two since. A motion to consider prevailed. The bill was opposed by Crafts and Bowles and defended by Johnson of Rock Island. It received fifty-two affirmative votes this time, while sixty-one votes were recorded against it.

Senate Bills Passed in House.

The following Senate bills were passed:

The Committee on Municipalities bill in relation to the disconnection of territory from cities and villages. This bill makes it discretionary with the City Council or Village board as to whether or not the territory shall be disconnected upon the filing of the requisite petition.

Townsend's bill providing for the assessment of the property of State banks in the same manner as the property of national banks is assessed.

Busse's bill to establish a State home for delinquent boys was advanced to third reading.

The House took a recess to 2:30 p. m.

F. J. Sullivan Given a Watch.

During the afternoon session in the House Francis J. Sullivan, minority leader of the House, was presented with a valuable watch and chain, a duplicate of the one given to Speaker Sherman on Tuesday night. Captain James Henry Farrell, at the request of Speaker Sherman, took the chair and Speaker Sherman acted as chairman of the committee to escort Mr. Sullivan to the stand. Mr. Craig of Knox made the presentation and Mr. Sullivan responded in feeling terms.

The following Senate bills passed:

The Judiciary committee bill excepting kidnaping from the provisions of the parole system.

Milchrist's bill conveying the lake front to the South Park Commissioners.

Odell's bill providing for annexing property to a city by a vote of the people instead of by action by the City Council.

The two bills prepared by the Republican County Central committee of Cook County regarding lodging-houses. One bill requires lodging-house keepers to file with the Election Commissioner thirty days before election a sworn statement of all the occupants of their places. The other bill places lodging-houses under the supervision of the State Board of Health.

The next thing on the program was the bill increasing to $10,000 the salaries of the Cook County Judges and the State's Attorney of Cook. As the bill came from the Senate the salary was fixed at $12,000 for each officer, but the House cut it down to $10,000. An army of masters in chancery, attorneys-at-law, receivers of property in the hand of courts, bailiffs, minute clerks, etc., have been here for weeks in the interest of this bill. It looked for some weeks as if its chances for success were exceedingly slim. Some of the Cook County Republicans were fighting the apportionment, and this made feeling. Although the measure was bitterly opposed today, it got through. And tomorrow morning the Senate will concur in the House amendment. No sooner had it passed today than Mr. Shanahan went over to the Senate to have that body wait for it. The Senate had adjourned, however, and it goes over until tomorrow.

Limits Cost of National Guard.

The House concurred, on motion of Mr. Kerrick, in the report of a conference committee fixing the expense of the National Guard at $205,000 per annum. It also concurred in an amendment appropriating $100,000 for a chemical library at the University of Illinois.

Senator Mahoney's bill prohibiting justices of the peace from practicing outside of the township from which they were appointed was killed, and so was Senator May's bill legalizing plats made before the Chicago fire. A great number of Senate bills, which in the main made appropriations, were advanced to third reading.

Morning Work in Senate.

In the Senate this morning the Kettering House bill giving the Railroad and Warehouse commission supervision of cold storage warehouses was sent to third reading. Senator Alden was confirmed in his seat from the Forty-eighth District. The bill making appropriations for the expenses of the Illinois National Guard, which had been reduced from $230,000 to $175,000, was thrown into conference, as was also the State fair appropriation bill. The apportionment bills which came from the House were so amended as to make them conform to the apportionment bills prepared by the Senate and sent to third reading.

All of the house bills on the calendar were advanced to third reading. The number included the drainage trustee bill to provide for the widening of the Chicago River. This was made a special order for tomorrow.

When the Crafts bill, providing for four additional justices in Cook County, was reached Senator Juul offered an amendment to reduce the number in West Town to ten. This was adopted. Senator Butler offered an amendment increasing the number of justices in Lake View to seven. This amendment also was adopted.

Appropriation Bills Passed.

Appropriation bills were passed as follows:

The bill introduced by Hunter of Winnebago appropriating $94,000 for improvements at the State Fair grounds. Yeas, 36; nays, 2.

The House bill introduced by Johnson of Rock Island, making an appropriation of $60,000 to pay the officers and men of the Naval Militia for the time spent by them in preparation for the Spanish-American war. Yeas, 42.

Swigart's bill appropriating $600,000 for improvements at the University of Illinois. Yeas, 39.

The Senate also passed the following bills:

Purdunn's bill to revise the pharmacy laws to conform to a recent decision of the Supreme Court. Yeas, 32.

Crafts' bill amending the police and fireman's pension fund law so as to make eligible to the benefits of the fund those whose combined years of service in both departments shall aggregate twenty or more years.

The bill prepared by the Committee on Labor and Industrial Affairs increasing the power of the State Board of Arbitration so that it may make investigations of labor troubles affecting public interests without formal petition for such investigation. Yeas, 37.

The bill prepared by the House Committee on Parks and Boulevards providing that in case the districts so elect the Park commissioners may be appointed instead of elected. Yeas, 28.

The Committee on Elections' bill that first day of registration shall be on the Saturday preceding the Tuesday four weeks before the election. Yeas, 33.

Kerrick's bill to amend the military and naval code in accordance with the changes in the national military code. Yeas, 35.

Afternoon Work of Senate

When the Senate reconvened at 4 o'clock, Lieutenant Governor Northcott said the order of business would be the consideration of House bills on order of third reading. With that a great number of bills tumbled on the secretary's desk, and they were passed as rapidly as Secretary Paddock could read them and call the roll, in which line of business he excels. The following House bills were passed, and go to the Governor.

Craft's bill to authorize the sale of school lands; yeas, 34; nays, 1.

Skaggs' bill to prohibit the wearing of insignia or badges of any society by others than the members of the society. Yeas, 26; nays, 3.

Kerr's bill to fix the time of holding court in the first judicial circuit. Yeas, 38.

Riess' bill, providing the manner for the sale of real estate for delinquent farm drainage districts. Yeas, 36.

Craft's bill to amend the law relating to ejectment in tax title cases. Yeas, 26; nays, 12.

The Committee on Judiciary bill to prohibit kidnaping. Yeas, 39.

Craft's bill, providing a system of public accounting. Yeas, 32.

The Committee on Education bill to permit the consolidation of school districts which lie within two or more townships for the purpose of forming a high school district. Yeas, 26; nays, 4.

The Committee on Revenues bill providing for the issuing of anticipatory warrants where there is not sufficient money in the public treasury to defray the ordinary expenses of the county, city, town, village, or school district. Yeas, 28.

The Conference committee, to which was referred the appropriation bill for the Illinois National Guard, reported in favor of allowing $205,000. The report was concurred in.

Adjournment was taken until 10 o'clock tomorrow.

John C. Black Appointed.

The Governor sent to the Senate a message announcing the appointment of John C. Black of Chicago as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Soldiers' Home at Quincy, to succeed Cyrus Kendall of Jasper County, resigned.

The House bill (Crafts') for the submission of questions of public policy came up on the order of third reading and failed of passage. A motion to reconsider was entered.

State Arsenal Bill Advances.

All Springfield is rejoicing tonight over the advancement to third reading in the Senate of the House bill making an appropriation of $150,000 for the erection of a new State building. It is to be located on land donated by the citizens of Springfield, just across the street from the State House. The improvement is a worthy one, being recommended and indorsed by all the State officers.

Representatives Wheeler and Jones of Sangamon are largely responsible for the success of this bill, which, by the way, is already assured. Wheeler is a good deal of a diplomat, and disregarding the fact that Sangamon was none too well treated in the apportionment he took his medicine and voted for both bills. Jones supported the Senatorial apportionment, but not the Congressional. The bill was ordered out of the Senate Committee on Appropriations late this afternoon, taken into the Senate, and at once advanced to third reading. Judging from present indications it will receive about 35 affirmative votes.

DOCTORS AWAIT THE CRISIS.

Mrs. F. J. Carolan's Illness Expected to Reach the Critical Point Today.

San Francisco, Cal., May 2.—[Special.]—The doctors who are attending Mrs. Frank J. Carolan refuse to give out any official report of her illness, but it is learned that they are anxiously awaiting the crisis, which is not expected until tomorrow, the third day after the operation. Although the patient underwent the operation well, it is feared a relapse or fever may come. Mrs. Carolan's friends are extremely anxious, and inquiries are constant in regard to her condition.

NOW FOR HOSPITAL REPORT

INVESTIGATORS MAY SUGGEST SOME IMPROVEMENTS.

Will Begin Making Draft of Their Findings Next Tuesday—Testimony at Inquiry Reviewed Before Starting on Final Work—Evidence Generally Favorable to Warden Graham's Management — Grand Jury Makes Personal Inspection of Institution.

After canvassing in executive session the evidence gathered during its three weeks of inquiry, the County Hospital Investigating committee adjourned yesterday afternoon to meet on Tuesday morning next, when the drafting of its report will begin formally. The informal inquiry of the afternoon developed no tendency to find serious fault with the general management of the institution and recommendations are looked for in the report as follows:

Formulation of a system of rules governing the actions of internes and, possibly, the nurses in the hospital.

Demand that the heating system be completely remodeled and that additional radiators be placed in the bathrooms in the various wards. This request will be sent direct to the County board.

Recommendation that rubber tires should be placed on the wheels of the cots and vehicles used in transferring patients from wards and operating and examining rooms.

May Advise Cheaper Coal.

There may be a suggestion to the County board that a cheaper grade of coal, presumably Indiana block, should be used instead of Youghiogheny, the present contract coal. Expert coal men have asserted, however, that more steaming power is secured from the latter coal.

The question of recommending the appointment of a medical superintendent at the institution was discussed at length, but no definite action was taken.

"Medical men who now give their services to the hospital for nothing," said one member of the committee, "might not take kindly to this idea. For this reason caution will be exercised in deciding this matter, and many physicians and surgeons of the city may be consulted. If proper rules are made for the internes the present medical system may be most effective."

Discussion of the administration of Warden Graham will be the last subject taken up. The evidence received by the committee generally commended Mr. Graham for having increased the standard of the hospital since he assumed control in 1895. President Hanberg of the County board, however, is ready to receive any recommendations as to whether or not Mr. Graham should be reappointed.

Grand Jury Visits Hospital.

The grand jury inspected the hospital during the day, thus practically bringing its investigation of the institution to a close. The system controlling the work of the nurses and the internes was closely inquired into, every nook of the wards and operating rooms was inspected, and the visitors personally questioned patients and employés. The jurors expressed themselves as pleased with the conditions. Today their report will be presented to Judge Smith.

HAS NEW LAKE FRONT SCHEME.

Moses Salomon Would Spend $25,000,000 in Utilizing Shore for People and Commerce.

Springfield, Ill., May 2.—Former Senator Moses Salomon came to Springfield today with a resolution providing for the appointment of a commission to investigate the question of utilizing the lake front from the Indiana to the Wisconsin line. The resolution was presented to the Senate by Senator Humphrey, and under the rules went over until tomorrow. It recites that the water front is capable of affording "delight, pleasure, and recreation, and is also capable of affording an incentive to commerce for lake and ocean connection, whereby revenues may be collected and utilized for State and park purposes under State and city control and commerce may be managed under harmonious and uniform regulations." The resolution recites the various uses to which the lake front might be made available and says:

"Resolved, by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring herein, We do hereby authorize and request the Governor to appoint a committee consisting of nine members, as well as additional members to be appointed as follows: Five members by the Mayor of Chicago, one by the Mayor of Evanston, and one by the Mayor of Waukegan, to consider and formulate a bill or other measure whereby a grand and comprehensive scheme can be formulated whereby the State may properly and justly expend the sum of $25,000,000, to be raised by bonds running for a period of fifty years; and this Legislature hereby authorizes a careful and justly liberal consideration of the best methods of expending this sum.

"The commission shall be known as the Michigan Lake Front Commission of the State of Illinois. It shall be the duty of the commission to obtain from any and all sources information, statistics, and experience in other cities, towns, or villages in this or any other country, and recommend the most practicable method of using the lake front for the benefit of the people and of commerce.

"It shall be the duty of the commission to draft and present to the next or any special meeting of the Assembly a complete and full report and a bill or bills which will meet the requirement of the situation, as hereinabove detailed, and which will protect and preserve and give to the people of Illinois the magnificent benefits to be expected from the ownership of so grand a water front as Lake Michigan presents.

"The members of this commission shall serve without fee or reward. We recommend, however, that the Legislature make a proper and suitable provision for the services of the commissioners and secretary."

LOOK FOR STRIKE ON CENTRAL.

Tension Between Machinists and Road Increasing—Little Likelihood of Further Conference.

Tension between the machinists and the Illinois Central railroad is increasing, and the talk of strike grows as a settlement of the differences is delayed. The machinists demand a nine-hour day and a 30-cent minimum wage scale. Their committee yesterday voted unanimously to stand firm for these points, turning the subject over to the international officers. There seems little likelihood of further conferences between the railroad officials and the union men, and a strike is said to be almost inevitable.

Indications of the temper of the unions are shown by Business Agent Roderick's statement that the men employed in the shops at Burnside voted unanimously on Wednesday night to insist on the nine-hour day and a 30-cent wage scale; and also by the report the blacksmiths and boilermakers had announced their intention to stand by the machinists. It is understood the two latter organizations are pressing for concessions from the road. They represent a membership of nearly 300.

Members of the machinists' committee living at points down the line, with few exceptions, returned home yesterday for the purpose, it is said, of preparing the lodges they represent for the trouble which is considered to be impending.

Just when a strike is likely to be called will not be discussed by the international officers, who declare they are not going to talk strike until they have exhausted every possible means of reaching an amicable adjustment of the trouble with the road.

"We are not going to act precipitately in the matter," said Business Agent Roderick. "We propose to give the officials of the road all the time that is necessary for a proper consideration of our demands, but of course we are not going to wait indefinitely. We feel our demands are just, and the road should concede them, as it well can afford to do."

The machinists are anxious to reach an amicable settlement of the trouble for the reason, it is said, they are contemplating making similar demands on other roads and their chances of success will be strengthened greatly if the Illinois Central can be induced to make the concessions sought.

OPPOSE ADDING TO CANAL DEBT.

Chicago Taxpayers Want to Know How the Additional $5,000,000 Will Be Spent.

NOT SURE OF BOARD.

If Governor Signs Bowles Measure Money Could Be Used to Pay Contractors.

HOW SENATE PASSED BILL.

Taxpayers of Chicago generally look with disfavor upon the action of the Legislature yesterday in passing the Bowles bill allowing the drainage trustees to issue $5,000,000 more in bonds, thus bringing the total indebtedness of the Sanitary District up to $20,000,000. While the bill, if it is signed by the Governor and becomes a law, will not increase the tax rate of the Sanitary District the increase in the debt will prolong the time in which the sanitary tax will have to be levied to provide for interest charges and the sinking fund necessary finally to pay the bonds. This last is objectionable to the taxpayers, who feel they have paid enough for the canal, but a still more serious objection arises from the prevailing feeling that the present controlling membership of the Sanitary board is not such as to convey the assurance that the money raised by the sale of the bonds will be economically expended.

Arguments for the Measure.

The argument made in the Senate yesterday for the passage of the bill was that it was necessary to raise the money that the Chicago River could be deepened and widened and the tunnels lowered, thus saving not only the Chicago harbor but also providing the water necessary to give the required flow through the canal.

Were the money raised to be devoted entirely to these purposes and expended so as to secure the best results there probably would be no serious objections to the sale of the bonds, although the taxpayers as a rule feel they should not be asked to shoulder any further obligations. The trouble, however, is that there is no assurance in the bill that the money will be expended for this purpose, and once they get it the drainage trustees can put it to any use they see fit.

The cry that the tunnels will be lowered if the trustees get this money is generally accepted with many grains of salt. For the drainage trustees to undertake this work would mean negotiations with both the street railway companies and the city, with the companies interposing claims for a settlement of their franchise questions at the same time. Were the drainage trustees anxious to make a pretense of wishing to do this work and yet at heart were seeking an opportunity to avoid it, the way would be easy.

May Go to the Contractors.

The improvement of the river so as to provide for a larger flow of water is also a question which is by no means determined on. Plans have been submitted by expert commissions which call for the expenditure of anywhere from $22,000,000 to $44.000,000, and the $5,000,000 to be raised from the bonds would not begin to do the work contemplated in any of these plans. What plans, if any, the drainage trustees have in view which could be carried through for $5,000,000 they have not disclosed, nor have they even said they have any at all.

Where a good part of the money could be used, however—and the public has no assurance it will not be so used—is in the payment of contractors' claims which have been accumulating for many years. From time to time the contractors on the work have put in claims for extras and similar matters aggregating now something over $2,000,000. These claims have been uniformly disallowed by former boards, but there is a feeling extant that many members of the present board are in favor of paying them, or at least the majority of them, and the use of the money raised by this sale of bonds for any such purpose would be opposed vigorously by the citizens of Chicago. Up to date the present Drainage board has had no opportunity to pay any of these claims, as it has not had the money.

How Chicago Men Regard It.

This feeling of opposition to the proposed bond issue and the uncertainty felt as to how it would be used were expressed by several citizens yesterday.

"Perhaps I should not be one of those to criticise the bill," said Harvey B. Hurd, "yet I feel compelled to say that I do not wholly approve of the action of the Drainage board in seeking to increase the bonded indebtedness at this particular time. The trustees should not undertake to find new ways for expending money until they have cleaned up the work already planned. I fear they are inclined to temporize, instead of completing the work on their hands."

"There is no necessity for an increase of the bonded indebtedness of the Drainage District," declared Charles Counselman. "The trustees are showing themselves to be nothing more than politicians, instead of business-men, as they claim to be. Every politician thinks it is part of his duty to get as much as he can of the taxpayers' money under his control, and to open the way for the contractors. Chicago will be eaten up with taxes before long, if we are not careful. As to the scheme for a 300-foot channel, it is the dream of an enthusiast and nothing more. There is not the shadow of an excuse for a channel wider than 200 feet, and this can be secured by the removal of the center piers of the bridges."

Opposes Added Taxing Power.

"I understand that the additional bonded indebtedness of $5,000,000 provided for in the bill is necessary to complete the plans for improving the river," said Martin B. Madden. "If this is the object of the bill it is all right, but if it confers any new taxing power on the Drainage board it never ought to become a law. It would be an outrage to give the board the right to levy taxes indiscriminately and with practically no limit."

"I would feel in favor of the proposition to increase the bonded indebtedness if I had more confidence in the Drainage board," remarked Josiah L. Lombard. "As it is, I am opposed to the bill, and there are many other citizens who entertain the same views on the subject. The board has not at all times acted in a manner to inspire public confidence, and there is a growing feeling that it will not use the money judiciously."

How the Bill Was Passed.

The bill which is regarded thus unfavorably in Chicago was called up in the Senate at Springfield by Senator Milchrist, whose district is controlled politically by Trustee Braden. The Senator moved its passage.

Senator Mahoney opposed it, saying: "I know I am making a losing fight today, but twelve months from now all the citizens of Chicago will be on my side."

Senator Milchrist defended the bill, and insisted that the bonds were necessary to carry out the improvements needed in the Chicago River. Senator Gardner said the valley people were ready now to withdraw their opposition. They were opposed to the annexation measure, he said, and, since it had been defeated, they would vote for the other drainage bills. Senator Odell spoke for the people in the Desplaines Valley, and also defended the bill. It passed—yeas, 28; nays, 5. The nays were Senators Dawson, Hussman, Galligan, Mahoney, and Maguire.

TELL OF RICHES MADE IN STOCKS.

Brokers Put John Dupee, Arthur Orr, J. W. Gates, C. H. Smith $2,600,000 Ahead.

PLAY UNION PACIFIC.

Mr. Orr Carries Stock Three Years, While Smith Follows Chance Tip.

RICHES FROM A GIRL'S WORD.

Within the last three days the New York stock market has ground out a grist of many dollars for Chicago speculators, and the wheels are still turning merrily. Union Pacific, which once absorbed fortunes relentlessly, suddenly has become the great moneymaker. Four Chicagoans and the fortunes they are credited with having picked up in Union Pacific and other stocks are:

Arthur Orr	$1,080,000
John Dupee	1,000,000
Charles Head Smith	100,000

The figures, of course, are not confirmed by the fortunate men themselves, but are the substance of stock market gossip. The first three men mentioned secured their profits after a term of from one to three years of careful investment. About two-thirds of their winnings are accredited to the rise in the railway shares alone. Charles Head Smith, the Kentucky horse owner and the plunger in the grain pits, was the only romantic winner. He scarcely had thought of Union Pacific except as a railway till a month ago, and then a girl by chance caused him to take a "flyer." He made "only a hundred thousand," which he considered a trifle compared with the winnings of others, but unlike them his money had not been tied up for several years.

Gets the Tip from a Girl.

Mr. Smith made his investment in stocks just as a diversion to rest him from the monotony of speculation on the Board of Trade. He decided last winter that Union Pacific fluctuations ought to constitute a recreation equal to mountain lion hunting or trout fishing, but not till the first of April did he buy any shares. The horseman was then in New York, and one morning he spent in the private office of a broker friend. The broker went up Wall street for a few minutes and Mr. Smith took his chair and ran the tape through his fingers. Suddenly a young woman, flushed with excitement, appeared in the doorway.

"Please buy me all the Union Pacific you can," said the girl, who took Mr. Smith for the broker.

"Why do you want to buy Union Pacific?" asked the Chicagoan.

"Papa says 'buy it all if you can,'" she replied.

"'O, of course, that settles it,'" observed Mr. Smith, a bit thoughtfully, as the broker returned and took the young woman's order.

When Mr. Smith came back to Chicago, he went immediately to his broker, Frank Logan, and found that the girl had not snapped up all the shares. He secured all he could and reaped a profit of $65,000. The remainder of the $100,000 consisted of winnings in various other securities.

Yesterday morning Mr. Smith sat in the Logan office and watched the quotations, as usual, while he received the congratulations of his friends. For the first time in years he has been so busy with speculation that he missed a race meeting—the Kentucky Derby last Monday. The plunger has made and lost half a dozen fortunes, and three years ago he had one of the finest stables in the world. His Lieutenant Gibson won the Kentucky Derby last year, but, as the favorite, ran only third at the American Derby at Washington Park. Soon afterward the horse died from the results of a firing. His Excellency, for which Mr. Smith paid $8,000, also died in the same way. His last well-known horse was Garry Hermann, which he sold recently.

Gossip of Mr. Orr's Winnings.

Mr. Orr's reported winnings by selling Union Pacific at the top price yesterday was the general topic of conversation and comment among Board of Trade men and stock brokers. Mr. Orr was generally praised for his foresight and sagacity in holding on for three years to so large an amount of stock which paid no dividends with the confident expectation that the market price of the stock would rise ultimately.

Mr. Orr, according to the story, bought 10,000 shares of Union Pacific stock three years ago when it was quoted at 20, investing $200,000. During the last three years the price of Union Pacific stock fluctuated considerably and often reached a figure high enough to tempt the owner to sell and take a good profit. Mr. Orr, however, kept his stock. But yesterday, when it reached 131, he sold. At that figure the 10,000 shares represented a value of $1,310,000. The original investment with interest at 5 per cent for three years amounts to $230,000, so on the basis of these figures Mr. Orr had a net profit of $1,080,000.

Declines to Discuss the Deal.

Mr. Orr himself was not inclined to discuss the subject.

"This is not a matter which concerns anybody," said he. "It is my own private business, and I do not propose to confirm or deny it. I have no desire for publicity and am not inclined to gratify idle curiosity."

Although Mr. Orr always has been reticent about his own business affairs, it was known on the street and on the Stock Exchange that in addition to his shares of Union Pacific he held a considerable amount of Northwestern, New York Central, Pullman, and other securities. It is reported that he unloaded a large quantity of his stock and has invested the earnings in real estate.

Mr. Dupee and His Profits.

John Dupee has been a heavy investor in Union Pacific and other stocks for several years. His firm led in the bull movement soon after the reelection of President McKinley. Mr. Dupee saw the boom in stocks coming then and decided to be on the right side of the market when the rise began. Last fall he went to New York, where he has been in close touch with the markets. Reports from New York place Mr. Dupee's profit at $1,000,000, though at the Chicago office ignorance of the exact figures was professed.

Gates on the Right Side.

John W. Gates and his friends are understood to have made immense profits out of the rise in Union Pacific also. When Mr. Gates was abroad last summer he bought Union Pacific in the London market, and since then has been in and out of the stock several times. Recently Mr. Gates is said to have made between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, and his friends, including John Lambert, Isaac L. Ellwood, and others, have made proportionate sums. Mr. Gates has been bullish on Union Pacific of all railroad stocks, and his purchases were on an immense scale. His friends had a "tip" to buy the stock several months ago, and those who followed his advice made money. When the sensational rise in Burlington stock began Mr. Gates bought large blocks of the stock and sent word to his associates to take hold of it, too, and more money was made out of that.

Tabloid Fire Engine Is Tested.

A test of a fire extinguishing wagon which combines nearly all the apparatus of a fire department has been made by Fire Marshal Swenie. The wagon was made for the Pittsburg Fire department and is the first of its kind. It comprises a chemical engine, hose wagon, hook and ladder, and a water tower. "Too many eggs in one basket," said Chief Swenie. "But for this the wagon would be perfect, so far as I can see." [illegible]

MILLARD HUTCHINGS CARRIES FAMILY DOWN BLAZING STAIRS.

Roused from Sleep to Find Building at 2669 Irving Park Boulevard Burning, He Saves Wife and Children by Three Trips Through Smoke and Flame—Stairway Falls as He Staggers Out—Mrs. W. T. Hart Dies from Burns Received April 27.

Three trips down a blazing stairway did Millard Hutchins make last night to rescue his wife and children from their burning home. Scarcely had he staggered to the sidewalk the third time, singed and gasping for breath, than the stairway fell and escape was cut off.

Hutchins, his wife, and family occupied the second flat at 2669 Irving Park boulevard. A conductor on a passing street car noticed flames on the lower floor of the house at 11 o'clock. He sent in an alarm, then roused the occupants.

Grasping a child in his arms, Hutchins ran down the stairs, already blazing hotly. Another trip and the other child was safe. Then back once more, and the wife was carried down the stairs to safety. The house was destroyed.

John Mullaney, who occupied the top story, escaped by sliding down a pillar on the front of the house.

Woman Dies from Her Burns.

Mrs. W. T. Hart, 34 years old, died yesterday afternoon at her home, 7325 Madison avenue, from the effects of burns received on April 27. While burning rubbish in her back yard her skirt caught fire, and in a moment she was enveloped in flames. Mrs. Freel, a neighbor, smothered the flames with a quilt, but the lower part of Mrs. Hart's body was badly burned.

Burns for Mrs. Jacquest.

When Benjamin Jacquest, a grocer at 3434 South Wood street, ascended the back stairs to his flat over the store about 9 o'clock last night he looked through the kitchen window and saw his wife on her knees near the stove, with her nightdress in flames. He rushed into the room, and, pulling off his coat, threw it around the burning woman. He succeeded in extinguishing the fire, but not until his wife was severely burned about the body. She is unconscious, and as she is 60 years old, little hope is entertained for her recovery. Mr. Jacquest thinks his wife's gown caught fire while she was attempting to light the gas.

Blaze Near Historic Spot.

Little fire but much smoke caused excitement at 129 De Koven street, two doors from the place where the big Chicago fire started, yesterday. David Kadison owns the building. He is absent from the city and his wife was in charge of the premises. She said the fire started in the woodshed. The flames spread to an adjoining house and the residents of the block became excited. Many of them carried their belongings into the street and fled west to Halsted street.

Firemen Busy All the Day.

Firemen were kept on the jump during the day answering alarms, a total of 52 having been turned in from midnight Wednesday until the same hour last night. In some respects the record was broken. From 8:30 a. m. until 6:30 p. m. there were forty-four alarms, and between 10 and 11 a. m. there were eleven alarms. For a time the calls were two minutes apart. None of the fires was important from the point of financial loss, but the number attributed to careless handling of matches, cigarets, and lamps was conspicuous. Calls were unusually frequent from the Hyde Park and Englewood districts. Among firemen May 1 and 2 are looked on as rivals of July 4 for fires. The high record in the department is 134 alarms on July 4, 1895. On May 1, 1899, there were 82, and on May 1 last year 50.

HERE'S A SAD SOD CASE.

DEFACING OF VACANT LOT LEADS TO COMPLICATIONS.

Charles Wesley Makes Effort to Transplant Some Grass, His Arrest and Acquittal Follow, and Now a Suit for Damages Is Pending—Friend of "City Beautiful" Determined to Continue His Fight—Doctor Says Reputation Is Hurt.

Six pieces of sod were cut from a vacant lot at Fifty-third street and Drexel avenue by Charles Wesely, father-in-law of Dr. Hugo V. Pribyl, to adorn a walk on Dr. Pribyl's premises at 5313 Jackson avenue. Up to the present the following have been the consequences:

Notification of the Hyde Park police that Mr. Wesely was cutting sod.

The stopping of Mr. Wesely by a wagon-load of police.

The disappearance of the sod after it had been left where it was cut.

The appearance of new sod on Dr. Pribyl's walk.

The arrest of Mr. Wesely on the charge of stealing sod.

The discharge of Mr. Wesely before Justice Charlton.

The filing of a suit for $10,000 by Dr. Pribyl against Frank E. Munster, who had Mr. Wesely arrested, and B. A. Eckhart, who owns the vacant lot.

The filing of a new suit against Mr. Wesely by Mr. Munster.

Story of the Sad Sod Case.

The last three events in the history of the sod case—the sad sod case—were entered yesterday. Mr. Wesely established to the satisfaction of Justice Charlton that he had bought the sod which had appeared on Dr. Pribyl's walk coincident with the disappearance of the sod which was cut from Mr. Eckhart's vacant lot. He was discharged, and then Dr. Pribyl immediately began suit in the Superior Court for $10,000 damages alleged to have been done his reputation as a physician by the unfounded charge that he in any way was connected with a sod cutting case.

Mr. Munster, believing that his case against Mr. Wesely still is good, has commenced a new suit against him.

Checks Man of the Spade.

When Dr. Pribyl's walk, a little while ago, needed a few additional pieces of sod Mr. Wesely took a spade, went to Mr. Eckhart's vacant lot, and carved them out. He had them piled up ready for transportation to Dr. Pribyl's walk when Mr. Munster, who lives at 5321 Jackson avenue, declared that the black gap in the green of the vacant lot spoiled the beauty of the landscape. He notified the police, and before Mr. Wesely had departed with the sod he was stopped by a patrol wagon.

After an argument Mr. Wesely left for home without the sod. Later the sod disappeared, and then some new sod was placed where it was needed on Dr. Pribyl's walk.

Mr. Munster, who is a friend of the Municipal Art league and who believes in a "city beautiful," connected Dr. Pribyl's new sod with the sod from Mr. Eckhart's vacant lot. Then came the arrest of Mr. Wesely, the acquittal, and the two suits.

When seen last evening Mr. Munster maintained that the gap in the sod on Mr. Eckhart's vacant lot not only detracted from the beauty of the neighborhood but added to the opportunity for the wind to raise dust.

Mr. Eckhart is brought into the case, although he lives at 187 Ashland avenue, several miles from the vacant lot which lost the sod.

"It was a good joke," he said. "I did not suppose that such serious results were about to follow the disappearance of the sod.

"Mr. Munster is not acting for me. He believes that the cutting of the sod detracted from the appearance of the surrounding property."

TROLLEY AND CABLE COLLIDE.

Halsted and Twelfth Street Cars in a Smashup and Two Passengers Are Hurt.

A south-bound Halsted street cable train and a west-bound Twelfth street electric car collided at the Twelfth street crossing at 10:15 last evening. Two passengers were injured, the cars were wrecked, and travel on the two lines was delayed for an hour. J. E. Johnson, 417 Oakley boulevard, and David Goldberg, 446 South Halsted street, passengers on the electric car, were bruised. Motorman J. H. Beyer of the trolley car sustained cuts on his hand.

DIES ON FIANCEE'S GRAVE.

GEORGE J. JANECEK FINDS A TRAGIC END.

Sorrowing Over the Fate of His Sweetheart, Who Was Killed by a Train on March 3, He Goes to the Bohemian Cemetery and Shoots Himself, Standing Beside Her Last Resting-Place—Panorama Painter Takes His Life.

Standing by the grave of the girl who was to have been his wife, George J. Janecek shot himself yesterday afernoon. He was alive when found, but never recovered consciousness, dying an hour later. On the gravestone near which he fell was the name, "Anna Plach, died March 3, 1901."

Janecek was a cigarmaker and until the death of his sweetheart worked industriously and had saved money. After the girl's body was found on the Northwestern railway tracks at North Fortieth avenue on March 4 he seemed to lose heart and had been out of work of late. He lived with his brother, Frank Janecek, at 1222 North Fifty-seventh avenue.

Several people saw Janecek enter the Bohemian Cemetery at Fortieth avenue, near the North Branch, early in the afternoon, but no attention was paid to him. Shortly after 2:30 o'clock Leo Ine, who lives near the burial grounds, heard a revolver shot. He ran to the grounds and soon found Janecek stretched unconscious across Miss Plach's grave.

Story of Sweetheart's Death.

Leaving the man on the grave with the revolver still clutched in his hand, Ine hastened to notify the Irving Park police. When the ambulance reached the spot the cigarmaker was still alive, though a glance told the policemen that the wound in the temple would prove fatal. He was taken to the infirmary at Dunning, where he died.

Anna Plach lived at 1276 North Fifty-seventh avenue. On the morning of March 3 she started out on an errand that took her to Austin. Next day her body was found on the Northwestern railway tracks. It was thought at first she had been murdered, but investigation showed she had been run down at a street crossing at dusk by a train.

After that Janecek seemed to lose heart. Friends and relatives say he often declared there was nothing left him in the world to live for. He left his brother's house yesterday morning, saying he would be home at night. Instead came word of his suicide.

Two letters were found in his clothing. One was addressed to his brother and the other to Miss Plach's brother. Both were sealed, and the police refused to open them until the Coroner's inquest this morning.

Suicide of Panorama Artist.

Levitt J. Depuy, 75 years old, committed suicide yesterday in the house of Mrs. Mary Crissler of 220 West Randolph street, with whom he had boarded for twelve years. He went to his room in the afternoon and drank the contents of a bottle of carbolic acid. His groans were heard and a physician summoned, but the man died.

Depuy was a painter and assisted in painting the panoramas of the Battle of Gettysburg and the Battle of Shiloh. He claimed to be a relative of Chauncey Depew.

MRS. BOYD'S STATEMENTS STARTLE WOMEN HEARERS.

Makes Some Radical Declarations Before an Audience of Eleven in Willard Hall—Precipitates Warm Discussion.

Mrs. Kate Mills Boyd said a whole lot of things at her meeting in Willard Hall yesterday morning. She startled her hearers by her radical statements, and precipitated some heated spats between members of her audience. Mrs. Boyd talked of crime in Chicago. Eleven women heard the address. Some of her ideas follow:

"Seven-eighths of the children born in this country should be killed."

"Parents of nearly all our children are drunkards and bad women. We should pass a law to prevent such persons becoming parents."

"Too many women stay at home and work and pray. Why don't they get out and work?"

"Suppose your husband does object to your going down into Custom-House court in the early hours of the morning. Why, push him aside and go anyway."

Mrs. Boyd also paid her respects to Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, and other North Side society women because they had refused to answer her letters.

"You must remember these are not my views—they are Mrs. Boyd's," said Mrs. K. L. Wolf, when the speaker had finished.

"I am sure they are ours, too," said Mrs. Matilda B. Carse.

"I object," said another of the eleven.

"I know the Judges of this country are subsidized," said Mrs. Dunham, President of the Iowa W. C. T. U.

"It isn't the Judges, but the juries, that are responsible," replied Mrs. Hood of Englewood.

Mrs. Boyd listened complacently to the discussion she had aroused. Where it would have stopped cannot be told, for adjournment was suddenly taken and the eleven women departed.

POLICE TAKE MRS. VAN SCHAACK

Rawson Street Officers Arrest Woman Fortune Teller at Home of Mrs. A. Goode.

In the apprehension of a woman, who gave the name of Mrs. E. Van Schaack, the Rawson street police believe they captured a clever swindler with hypnotic powers. Mrs. Van Schaack was arrested twice before by the police, but succeeded in leaving the city after giving bond for her appearance. She was caught yesterday in the home of Mrs. A. Goode, 579 North Francisco street.

Mrs. Van Schaack called on Mrs. Goode Wednesday afternoon and sought to hypnotize her.

"This is a delightful home you have here," said she to Mrs. Goode, "but you have a big mortgage to pay off."

"How do you happen to know about my mortgage?" asked Mrs. Goode, whose home is free from incumbrance.

"O, I know everything," answered the caller. "I am a fortune teller. I can tell you how to make enough money to pay off the entire mortgage in two minutes. I will furnish you with the numbers of a lottery ticket which will win first prize. All it will cost you is $20."

Mrs. Goode had been warned by the police and requested Mrs. Van Schaack to return yesterday afternoon, when she would say whether she wanted the prize ticket or not. Mrs. Van Schaack came back and was arrested by Sergeant Meagher and Detective Schultz. The sergeant identified her as a woman for whom the police had been searching for two years because of her desire to evade trial on the charge of swindling.

Mrs. Angelica Heudner, 796 North Ashland avenue, also was visited by Mrs. Van Schaack.

"She told me she represented the Prudential Insurance company," said Mrs. Heudner, "and could make me rich. She said she was gifted with wonderful powers and could tell me the number that would win the capital prize in a lottery. She so impressed me with her powers of divination that I gave her $20. I think then she hypnotized me, because when I recovered after a few passes of her hands she was gone."

Benkert, Davenport, Ia.; Vice Chairman, the Rev. C. H. Thomas, Chicago; Secretary, D. H. Martin, Pittsburg; Treasurer, J. F. R. Leonard, Ainsworth, Ia.; Assistant Secretary, William Whitehead, Aurora, Ill.

DRAMATIC SCENE IN EASTMAN TRIAL

Mrs. R. H. Grogan, Mother of Dead Man, Carried from Bed to Testify.

RECALLS STRANGE WORDS

Says That Defendant Had Repeatedly Asserted That Days of His Victim Were Few.

EXPERTS ANALYZE BULLETS.

Boston, Mass., May 2.—[Special.]—The dramatic episode of the entire Eastman trial was reached at noon today, when Mrs. R. H. Grogan, the venerable mother of the dead man, took the stand and swore that a few days before the killing of her son Eastman had said in her hearing:

"His days are few."

Mrs. Grogan was brought to court from the bed to which she has been confined for the last three months. The doctors had advised against her removal, but the Sheriff's officers appeared at the home with imperative orders to bring her into court. Maud and Florence Grogan, the two daughters, dressed their mother and she was carried in a chair out to a carriage, driven to the courthouse, and carried in a chair to the witness stand.

Her appearance was that of a woman who was undergoing great mental and physical suffering. She spoke in low tones, being hardly able to articulate. She called for water within a minute after rising from the witness chair, and her hand shook like one with palsy as she held the glass to her lips, assisted by her daughter Florence.

The examination lasted only a few minutes, the defense mercifully not cross-examining the woman, owing to her condition.

Testimony of Mrs. Grogan.

Mrs. Grogan testified as follows:

"I called at Dick's house one evening—I think it was on June 26—just before he went to New York. I was invited to dinner. Dick and his wife were present.

"Eastman came in, and helped himself to a glass of milk, saying that he needed it for his health.

"Mrs. Eastman was standing there, and after Dick had spoken, Eastman turned to us—Lizzie, Mrs. Eastman, and myself—and said:

"'His days are few, his days are short,' Mrs. Eastman said: 'Why, Charlie, what is the matter? You must have been drinking; you have been drinking. You don't know what you are talking about. What have you been saying?'

"Then Eastman turned to us and repeated again what he had said: 'His days are very few.' Eastman looked angry."

Mrs. Grogan testified to having had a talk with her son, Dick, about the meaning of Eastman's remark, but she was not allowed to repeat the conversation.

Continuing she testified: "Another time Eastman came to Dick's house. Lizzie was upstairs talking with some one. I heard a man's voice. The talk was pleasant. Then Dick——"

At this point the defense objected to this evidence, and the witness was not allowed to continue.

She was not cross-examined, and was assisted from the stand.

Eastman, though holding himself well in hand, was plainly affected by this testimony.

The effect on the jury was evident. Tears stood in the eyes of Juror Knight.

Eastman Confers with His Wife.

A recess of ten minutes followed. Eastman, looking around, said: "Where is Mrs. Eastman?" One of the court officers went for her.

An earnest conversation in low tones followed between husband and wife, at the conclusion of which Eastman asked to be taken into retirement for the first time during the ten minutes' recess in the course of this trial.

The aged Mrs. Grogan, who was shut off in her testimony at a point that promised to reveal to the jury the government's contention that Eastman and the wife of the dead man were on terms which at least had aroused the suspicion of Dick Grogan and in reality led to the bad blood which is alleged to have existed between the two men.

If allowed to go on she would have sworn that the voice of the man she heard in the younger Mrs. Grogan's room was the voice of Eastman.

Court was late in coming in this morning, and Eastman spent the interval in reading letters, sitting in his favorite position in the corner of the cage diagonally opposite to the jury, with his left knee crossed over his right. The letter reading finished, he folded his arm, his note book resting on his knees. The delay became tedious, and a court officer obligingly procured a newspaper for him.

Medical Examiner Draper of Suffolk County was the first witness. During his examination District Attorney Wier, who worked up the case against Eastman and was taken sick on the eve of the trial, came into court for the second time today since the trial began. He held a short conversation with Attorney General Knowlton, the chief prosecuting officer, and then sat back in his chair and listened to the evidence.

Experts Tell of Bullets.

Dr. Draper had seen experiments made with outing cloth and the Eastman and Grogan revolvers. As a result his opinion was that if one of those revolvers were held anywhere within six feet of a man when fired there would be powder marks upon his clothing. The doctor declared that there was not even a powder smut on the clothing alleged to be that of Grogan's which he had examined.

Dr. Charles C. Foster of Cambridge, a former army surgeon, testified in corroboration of Dr. Draper's statements. Professor Wood of Harvard, recalled, said that last evening he examined three rim-fire bullets which Inspector Murray extracted from the shells. The three were selected at random from a box of rim-fire cartridges. Professor Wood removed a portion of each bullet and analyzed it for tin, but found no tin—nothing but pure lead. This testimony was to show that all bullets for rim-fire cartridges are of pure lead.

Fortify Government's Case.

At the expiration of the brief recess taken at the close of Mrs. Grogan's testimony Professor Robert H. Richards of Jamaica Plain, Robert Babson, lead manufacturer of Boston, and Professor Heinrich J. Hoffman, professor of metallurgy at the Institute of Technology, were called in order, and all testified in effect that lead such as is used in the manufacture of bullets contains no tin.

The evident intent of this testimony was to offset the theory of the defense, as manifest in cross-examination of previous witnesses, that a rim-fire bullet, made of pure lead, might have contained an alloy of tin. Eastman has contended that the shooting was done with a revolver from which the defense has admitted only a rim-fire bullet could have been fired.

It was a neat gathering up of the loose ends of the government's case by Attorney General Knowlton. The afternoon session was taken up by Attorney General Knowlton in a vigorous argument for the admission of Eastman's testimony before the grand jury which returned the murder indictment against him.

The Justices have already once ruled against the government on this point, and it is the general opinion that they will not shift when the Attorney General shall have concluded tomorrow morning. If the ruling is again against him Knowlton's only hope for showing up the alleged contradictions in Eastman's statements at the time of his arrest and before the grand jury lies in Eastman's taking the stand in his own behalf.

VETOES THE DOG TAX BILL

GOVERNOR CRITICISES ACTION OF WISCONSIN ASSEMBLY.

Says Recommendations of Commission That Would Place Just Burden on Quasi-Public Corporations Are Neglected and Unnecessary Impost Put on Farmers—House Kills Railway Ad Valorem Measure and Several Members Leave Capital in Disgust.

Madison, Wis., May 2.—[Special.]—Governor La Follette's severe arraignment of the Legislature for discrediting the Tax commission was read in the Assembly amid profound silence. Immediately afterward that body killed the ad valorem railway taxation bill. As soon as the vote was announced Assemblyman Alfred Cook of Wausau picked up his hat, and said he was going home—that there was no use in attempting any meritorious legislation. He left for home tonight. Cook was elected as a Democrat, his seat being contested by G. E. Vandercook, Republican, but the Republican Assembly seated him, and he generally has voted with the Republicans. Other legislators also are leaving, and their action is causing a sensation.

In his message vetoing the bill for a license fee on dogs Governor La Follette criticises the Legislature for refusing to follow the recommendations of the Tax commission, which would make quasi-public corporations bear their share of taxation.

Governor La Follette's Veto.

The message says in part:

"The bill proposes to exact a license fee of from $1 to $3 from every owner or keeper of a dog. Residents of cities and villages can escape payment of such a tax by ceasing to own or keep dogs. Upon the farm, however, the watch dog and shepherd are as much a necessity as the other domestic animals which they protect and guard, and the license fee would amount to an increase in taxation. The fee or tax proposed may not be esteemed by the Legislature a serious burden in itself, but it would add to burdens borne by a great majority of the people which are already out of all proportion to those borne by others whose influence would seem to be more potent in shaping legislation.

"I am aware that members of the Legislature are desirous of an adjournment of this session at the earliest possible day, but I am certain that the people of this State are more anxious for an approximately equitable distribution of the tax burden, even if the session should be protracted thereby. For the reasons herein stated, I am unwilling to give to the people of this State, in lieu of the legislation to equalize taxation which has been promised to them and which they have a right to expect from representative government, a scheme which, in a general way, may be described as an act to increase the burden of the farmer by imposing a license fee on his dog."

Railway Tax Killed.

The ad valorem bill was the special order in the Assembly and was warmly debated, but was killed by a vote of 51 to 45. The previous railway taxation bill for increasing the fees of railway companies was also killed in the Assembly.

The Senate killed the new primary bill by refusing to concur in the Assembly amendments to the Hagemeister substitute. The vote was 17 to 12. A Conference committee of the two Houses will probably be appointed now to attempt an agreement. The Assembly advanced to third reading the bill appropriating $60,000 for a system of State edited and published text books. The Senate passed the bill redistricting the State into Senatorial Districts.

ANOTHER PROFESSOR GOES OUT.

Arthur O. Lovejoy Resigns Chair of Philosophy at Stanford University on Account of Faculty's Action.

San Francisco, Cal., May 2.—[Special.]—Arthur O. Lovejoy, associate professor of philosophy at Stanford University, has resigned because of the recent faculty action in regard to Professor Ross. In his letter of resignation to President Jordan Lovejoy says that from careful examination of the documentary evidence in the Ross case he is "forced to the conclusion that the dismissal of Professor Ross for the reasons assigned, after the President had declared he was a fit person to retain, involves an abridgment of the liberties which any university professor should demand.

In his letter of resignation Professor Lovejoy says:

"Unless the members of our profession show themselves somewhat punctilious in the maintenance of these liberties—especially in privately endowed institutions—I do not see how either the dignity of the teachers' position or the leadership and social usefulness of universities in our democratic society can be preserved."

President Jordan accepted the resignation without discussion of the reasons on which the professor based his action.

TAKE DEMOCRATS UNAWARES.

Republican Aldermen at Madison, Ind., Reorganize Council and Change Officers.

Madison, Ind., May 2.—[Special.]—The City Council stands six Republicans and six Democrats, with a Democratic Mayor. With one Republican absent, sick, the Republicans, joined by one Democrat, changed all the committees and appointive officers tonight. The Democrats were taken unawares.

CLEARS POLICE OF CHARGES.

Inspector Shea Finds the Complaints Made by "Father" Keeler to Be Without Foundation.

Inspector John D. Shea, after an investigation, exonerates several Desplaines Street policemen from charges made by Father Keeler, a reputed Catholic clergymen. Keeler had written a letter to Mayor Harrison in which he said money and valuables he intrusted to the policemen never had been returned to him. Investigation showed that Keeler was releasd from the station after the "watch" had been shifted, and, making no claim for valuables, departed without them. Later when he asked for his property it was returned to him.

BAR SMALL DEALS IN WALL STREET

Brokers So Busy They Will Pay Attention to Nothing Except Big Orders.

SIGHING FOR A HOLIDAY.

Women Have Speculative Fever and Scores Make Money on Friendly Tips.

NO SUCH BOOM EVER SEEN.

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—For the first time since the muse of Wall street history began to keep books the lady was obliged to record today that the brokers on the Stock Exchange had grown weary of making money. The keeper of the record did not quite understand what it meant, but being an accurate muse she just put it down and let it go at that. As a matter of fact, the brokers have had so much to do the last week that they are beaten out.

More than all that their books are far behind, their accountants have grown ugly on an average of fifteen or twenty minutes' sleep every twenty-four hours, and they have decided they want a day off. Accordingly some of the brokers circulated a petition this morning requesting that Saturday be declared a full holiday instead of a half holiday. Whether the circulators of the petition and those favoring the resolution constitute a majority of the members of the exchange or not cannot be stated with accuracy. It is known, however, that such action was not favored by all the members, and a request was made that the resolution be not pressed until tomorrow at least.

It was said after the close of business that the whole matter would be taken up again tomorrow, when those brokers who have become particularly weary will do their best to carry it through, and gladly forfeit from $1,000 to $5,000 in commissions for a day's rest.

Business Greatest Ever Known.

Nothing like the present speculation in stocks has ever been known in Wall street before. This holds regarding the volume of business, its long continuance, the strain on brokers, and the size of industrial transactions. Since Monday twenty specialists have quit dealing in particular stocks and tomorrow there will be, in all probability, only one lone specialist on the floor of the exchange. He will attempt to stick to the execution of orders for the purchase of United States Steel stock. The Western Union and Union Pacific specialists quit today.

But what may be of more particular and vital interest to the public is the notice served by the brokers today on all customers that hereafter and until business becomes less active no "stop loss" or "limit" orders will be received. Those who buy and sell stocks must trade at the market. The brokers have not time to keep tabs on orders at set prices, and they don't want any of them. The result will be that the public must, so long as this rule is enforced, be on the spot all the time, from 9 o'clock in the morning until 3 o'clock in the afternoon and do its own tape watching. Every man speculator must attend to his own knitting hereafter, and heaven help the man who does not.

Small Orders Ignored.

Estimates of the profits accruing to stock exchange brokers as a result of the tremendous business passing were more or less vague, the brokers having hardly had time to pay attention to this casting up of accounts. One active commission house, handling a large local and wire business, and typical of a good part of the larger concerns, traded Wednesday in 80,000 shares at full commissions, which, at the prescribed commission rate of one-eighth of 1 per cent, meant actual cash fees of $10,000. Many of the houses are dealing in 10,000 to 20,000 shares per day. Several of the large commission houses admitted that they had been executing orders on which the commissions have averaged for a number of days $5,000 per day.

One Day's Commissions $8,000.

The largest business of which any account could be obtained was that done by one Broadway house with no outside telegraph connections, which handled on one day 12,000 shares of stocks. A large part of this business was on "split commissions," but there was a fair proportion on which the full commission of $12.50 was paid. The commissions of this house on that day amounted to over $8,000. One house in Broad street was said today to have received since the present movement started fully $1,000,000 in commissions.

Evidences of the physical collapse of the Stock Exchange members and their working staffs continued to accumulate today. On Wednesday night the clerks of all the larger commission houses worked until 2 to 3 o'clock this morning putting through the necessary clerical work. Several houses did not get the mail out to their customers until 3:30 a. m.

Women Also Catch the Fever.

The women are also in the gamble and some of the big up-town brokers' offices that make a bid for the women's business are filled daily with excited traders. In one of these offices there were seventy-five women at least when a reporter looked in. There were four or five tickers in the room and a group of women around each. Just after the reporter entered he heard one of the women call out: "There's U. P. 125¼. I bet it goes to 127. Mr. So-and-so told me at the Waldorf last night that it would go to 128 before the market closed this afternoon. Buy me fifty shares of U. P. at the market." (This to a comely looking young man who was moving around among the customers with his order pad in his hand.)

"Did he tell you that?" asked another woman. "Why on earth did not you tell me? I just sold my fifty shares at 125."

"I've given you one or two good pointers before," said the first woman, "but you knew it all and went along on your own hook and got let down."

"My dear, don't think for a moment that you're the only one who can hear of a good thing now and then. A week ago Mr. Whats-his-name told me to buy New York Central, and I made $1,000."

So ran the conversation.

Make Many Winnings.

The broker in charge of the office said: "We have probably 300 women who trade with us. I don't know one of them here now who isn't a winner at the game, and I don't know one who has made less than $3,000. We have several customers who have made $8,000 and $10,000 and $12,000."

A pretty well authenticated story of a chorus girl who has made a fortune became public this morning. She is Marie Wilson, formerly of the chorus of "Florodora." She has made all the way from $200,000 to $700,000. She is quoted as claiming the latter figure herself. Of course she had assistance and advice. They came, it is said, from a man who is known as one of the biggest and shrewdest operators in Wall street. Miss Wilson is a daughter of Joseph A. Gamble of Virginia.

Say Cigar Company Is Independent.

Local representatives of the Havana-American Cigar company are inclined to discredit the reported sale of their company to the American Cigar company, a branch of the American Tobacco company. "We have heard nothing of the sale of our company to the American Cigar company," said A. H. Crocker, manager of the Chicago branch. "It is not at all likely that one factory would be sold, and if it all have been disposed of, including this branch, it is news to us."

HANNA SURE OF REAL PROSPERITY

Declares Black Friday Prophecies of Russell Sage to Be Simple Nonsense.

SENATOR GIVES REASONS.

Controller Coler Gets Offer of High Position with Strong Financial Institution.

GENERAL GOSSIP OF GOTHAM.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, }
New York, May 2. }

"Uncle Russell is of the past. There will be no panic and no Black Friday." So said Senator Marcus A. Hanna, himself a great financial engineer, at the Waldorf-Astoria today. He made the remark when, at the conclusion of a statement by him that prosperity was evident on all sides, Russell Sage's recent prediction of a Black Friday on Wall street was called to his attention.

Senator Hanna Says Prosperity Is Substantial.

"The prosperity," he continued, "which the President will see on all sides of him as he passed through the country today will be the best evidence of the success of his administration."

"Will the prosperity continue?" was asked.

"There is not a cloud in the sky. I cannot prophesy anything dangerous or threatening. We have turned over a new leaf. We cannot measure the present by the past."

When the Senator was asked if the President's tour of the country meant the beginning of a campaign for a third term, he replied: "That is ridiculous."

Russell Sage denied today a published story that he had lost $1,000,000 in the present boom in stocks.

"I am not in the market to lose a cent," he said. "Demands for money were active this morning. I had one call for $1,000,000 in cash at 4½, and other calls for about $2,000,000 around 4 per cent."

The official appraisement of the jewels of Prince Henri d'Croy of Belgium, which were seized last Sunday by a customs inspector, places the total valuation of the property at $900. The bracelet seized, according to the Prince, who called at the custom-house today, is an heirloom which has been in possession of his family over 400 years. The opinion was expressed that the Prince would secure the return of all of his property.

Controller Coler Said to Have Flattering Offer.

It became known in Wall street today that a flattering offer had been made to Controller Coler by a large financial institution which is so advantageous that, according to report, he has made up his mind to forsake office holding at the expiration of his term on the 31st of December of this year and devote himself entirely to business. Up to the time that the present revision of the charter was adopted the fees paid to the Controller of New York City for the collection of inheritance tax in the County of New York have been so large that, with the addition of a salary of $10,000, which went with the office, they made the place one to be sought.

Under the provisions of the revised charter the salary of the Controller is to be $15,000 a year, and all of the fees he collects are to be turned into the State Treasury.

Mr Coler was the only man who entered office without pledging himself to Richard Croker to conduct the affairs of his department as secretly as might be possible. It is said Mr. Coler has spent during his term of office more than the salary amounted to.

A large crowd gathered in the arcade of the Equitable Building this afternoon to witness the unveiling of a statue of Henry B. Hyde, founder of the Equitable Life Assurance society. The sculptor of the statue, which was of bronze, was John Quincy Adams Ward, and the unveiling was set for today because it was the second anniversary of Mr. Hyde's death. Senator Chauncey M. Depew and James W. Alexander, who is now President of the Equitable, made speeches.

Commissioner's Opinion of Police Justice.

Deputy Commissioner Devery broke loose today at the police trials and added to his series of discourses on "What I Think of Certain People" a diatribe against Justice Jerome of Special Sessions. Policeman Michael J. McManus of the West Thirty-seventh street station, who was recently sentenced by Justice Jerome to three months in the penitentiary for abandoning his children, was on trial before Mr. Devery when he exploded. The policeman has just finished serving his sentence. Devery himself, when he was chief, signed the complaint against McManus on which he was arraigned.

Lawyer Louis Grant appeared for the policeman and at every opportunity he flaunted the Justice's name before the Deputy Commissioner.

"And it was Justice Jerome who sentenced this policeman," said Lawyer Grant.

"Justice Jerome, eh?" bellowed Mr. Devery. "This complaint is dismissed. There's a lot of tin soldiers running around this town with popguns on their shoulders' shootin' 'em off in the streets, raising riot and rebellion, an' degradin' the whole—the whole community. It's an outrage. Justice Jerome ain't goin' to run this town if I can help it. It's an outrage. It's claimed here that this man was wrongfully convicted, and I believe it. It's about time a halt was called."

A Union trolley car was struck by lightning at One Hundred and Sixty-fourth street and Jerome avenue this afternoon. The lightning struck the trolley and then ran into the car, putting out the lights and burning out the fuse. The motorman, John Green, was stunned and thrown on the platform.

Secret Evidence Secured in Raid on Gamblers.

Evidence of a strongly incriminating character pointing directly toward certain persons who have all along been supposedly engaged in protecting vicious resorts in the City of New York has at last been secured by the Committee of Fifteen. The evidence was a result of the raid on Tuesday night on the "Winona club" of 111 East Fourteenth street. So important is this evidence considered that Justice William Travers Jerome did not consider it advisable to make it public. He and Colonel Robert G. Monroe of the Committee of Fifteen went with it to the District Attorney's office and there held a long conference with Mr. Philbin.

When Justice Jerome and Colonel Monroe emerged from the District Attorney's office Colonel Monroe said: "It is possible that we may have the 'John Doe' within forty-eight hours."

Justice Jerome said: "There'll be something doing shortly."

It is said that the District Attorney's office believes that a high officer of the Police department is so close to "John Doe" that criminal proceedings against this officer may be instituted at any time.

"There is no single 'John Doe,'" said Justice Jerome, "but there is a small group of men that we are after, and whom we expect to have cornered soon."

On Saturday night service on the Lexington avenue cable line will be suspended while the cable is removed from the slot and the system is changed to the under trolley. On May 11 the cable service on the Columbus avenue line is to be replaced by electricity, as will be the Broadway system on May 18. Then there will be no cable road left in the whole city.

The American public may next season see Mrs. Sarah Cowell Lemoyne as Lady Macbeth in an elaborate production of the great Shakespearean tragedy, so Liebler & Co. announce.

Fortune Comes to Colonel Dravo.

Lieutenant Colonel Edward E. Dravo, Chief Commissary of the Department of the East on Governor's Island, is in a particularly cheerful mood these days by reason of news from Arizona which promises him a substantial fortune. Colonel Dravo came to Governor's Island in October, after having served for over a year in the Philippines. This present good fortune is the result of nearly twenty-five years of waiting for a satisfying outcome of a mining claim that he staked near old Fort McDowell, northeast of Phœnix. A ledge of gold rock which promises to develop richly has been uncovered, and the assays show from $20 to $80 a ton.

Colonel Dravo was graduated from West Point in 1876, and at his own request was sent to Fort McDowell. He was a Second Lieutenant in the Sixth Cavalry. He had studied mineralogy and was anxious to get into a country where there might be an opportunity for a man who knew something of the subject.

Twenty-five years ago a big gold find was made at Gold Hill and hundreds of thousands of dollars were taken out. Colonel Dravo's claim is situated near that point.

The body of William N. Pooley, a real estate dealer of 1512 Broadway, who disappeared on Feb. 27 and for whom a general alarm was sent out by the police, was found tonight in the Harlem River at the foot of One Hundred and Thirty-sixth street by two canal boatmen. Apparently death had been caused by drowning. He had several hundred dollars with him when he went away. No money was found on the body.

Imprisoned for Refusing to Support His Family.

John Byron Traver, formerly cashier of the Barber Asphalt Paving company, was in the Yorkville police court today in response to a summons issued to his wife, Alsa Harriott Traver, who accused him of abandonment and non-support. His dress and appearance indicated the man of means. According to his own words, he was only a pauper living on the charity of relatives. Mrs. Traver told the magistrate that for almost a year she and her two children, 5 and 6 years old, had been practically deserted and left without support by her husband. She said her husband lived in luxury at a hotel, and would not only not give her a cent but refused to come to see one of his children when it was sick. The Judge ordered Traver to pay his wife $8 a week for a year. Being unable to give bond, Traver was sent to jail.

Margaret Anglin, who takes the part of Dora in Charles Frohman's production of "Diplomacy" at the Empire Theater, fell and sprained an ankle during the performance tonight.

Charles Frohman has instructed Howe & Hummell to begin proceedings in Chicago against J. A. Fraser to stop his alleged piracy of the play "Sherlock Holmes."

Claims Fresh Evidence Against Kennedy.

Assistant District Attorney Osborne, who is preparing for the third trial of Dr. Samuel J. Kennedy, accused of murdering Dolly Reynolds, got possession today of a small iron vise which he believes will prove an important link in the evidence against the dentist. This vise was obtained from the home of Dr. Samuel F. Kennedy, the father of the prisoner, at Newdorp. It is alleged to have been the one used by Dr. Kennedy in the manufacture of the lead pipe bludgeon with which the murder was committed. The members of Dr. Kennedy's family objected to the search. They used no physical force, however, against the visitors. They charged the police with having come to manufacture evidence to use against the prisoner.

The annual convention of the Proprietary Association of America was continued today. E. C. De Witt of Chicago was elected President and George L. Douglass of Chicago chosen counsel to the Legislative committee again for the ensuing year.

Before the Columbia sailed this morning Mme. Lillian Nordica, who was one of the passengers on board, announced that she had appeared for the last time in grand opera in this country. College Review Is Suppressed by the Faculty.

Locked tightly within the inner office of President Alexander S. Webb, in the building of the College of the City of New York, are the several hundred copies constituting the last issue of the college publication, the Review. Spread over the pages of this edition is an attack—by Student Weatherwax of the institution supported by city money—on Richard Croker. Upon other pages, over the initials "A. T. F.," is a treatise upon religions, their origins and their folly, which the writer concludes with the observation that Christianity is just as foolish as any other religion, and that the only thing worth attention is agnosticism.

The authorities of the college suppressed the Review and looked for the editor. They found him and the author of the article on Mr. Croker, but thus far their search for the youthful scoffer who hides behind the letters "A. T. F." has not yet been successful.

The faculty has been searching the catalogue for a name like "A. T. F.," but has not found it. Action will probably be taken at the next faculty meeting.

Central Office Detectives Gargan, Barr, Barnet, and Wines and two detectives of the Old Slip Station went to 53 New street this afternoon and arrested eight men. The firm's name on the door and windows of the shop was E. S. Percival & Co., but none of the prisoners answered to that name. The police say it is a bucket shop and that James V. Treichler, one of the prisoners, is the manager.

The Gould interest has a clear majority in the new Board of Directors of the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroad, and at the meeting to be held in this city within a few days it is expected that Vice President Joseph Ramsey Jr., of the Wabash railroad, will be elected President of the acquired road.

MILITIA OFFICERS PUNISHED.

Colonel, Major, and Captains in Ohio National Guard Suspended After Trial by Court-Martial.

Columbus, O., May 2.—The findings of the court-martial which investigated the charges against certain officers of the Fifth Regiment and Ninth Battalion at Cleveland two months ago were made public today. The court found Colonel Zimmerman and Captains Wright and Burton of the Fifth Regiment guilty and sentenced them to dismissal from the National Guard. The Governor modified the sentences in each case, suspending the officers from command and rank. Colonel Zimmerman is suspended for six months and the Captains for one month. They are also to pay back to the State certain sums of money alleged to have been illegally drawn by them. Major Fulton and Captain Wren of the Ninth Battalion are each suspended for one month.

NICKEL IN SLOT X-RAY NOW.

Machines Designed Whereby a Man Can See the Bones of His Own Hand or Arm.

Chicago capital and inventive genius have succeeded in harnessing the X rays to the nickel-in-the-slot-machine, so that for five cents one can subject his hands or arms to the penetrating rays. For that matter, however, he can turn the light on almost any subject he pleases that can be placed in the aperture in the machine. The company which will place the machines in various public places for general use will have, it is said, a variety of subjects to experiment with.

PRUSSIAN DIET TO CLOSE.

KAISER ANGRY OVER FAILURE OF THE CANAL BILL.

After a Conference with Chancellor von Buelow Emperor William Decides to Express His Disapproval of the Deadlock by Dismissing the State Parliament—Several Members of the Cabinet Likely to Resign, but a New Election Will Not Follow.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, May 2.—The deadlock between the government and the Prussian Diet over the canal bill will come to an end tomorrow by the closing of the Diet. Dr. von Miquel, the Minister of Finance, will probably resign, and there may be other changes which will compel Count von Bülow to form a new Cabinet.

The determination to close the Diet tomorrow was reached this afternoon at a personal conference between Chancellor von Bülow and Emperor William. The Chancellor explained to his Majesty that there was no hope of winning over a majority in favor of the canal bill. Thereupon it was practically decided to summon a joint session of the Diet and the House of Lords, at which the Emperor's displeasure over the failure of the canal bill in committee will be expressed.

The Lokal Anzeiger learns that the prorogation will be accompanied by a strongly worded declaration of the ministry.

The Diet will not be dissolved, nor will there be an appeal on the subject to the country by means of a new election.

Emperor William and the Prussian Cabinet adhere to their intention to build the canal.

Other Resignations Expected.

Other resignations from the ministry are expected in addition to that of Dr. von Miquel. It is stated tonight that Baron Hammerstein-Lockstein, Minister of Agriculture, and Dr. Schoenstadt, Minister of Justice, will give up their portfolios.

The Allgemeine Zeitung says that Emperor William recently remarked that he would not nominated a successor to Chancellor von Bülow. If the question of his successor ever became acute he would assign to the office of Chancellor even greater weight and importance than it now possesses and would make Prince Aldrecht of Prussia Chancellor. The latter assertion is ridiculed, while the former one is credited by those who are well informed.

TESTIFIES IN HIS OWN DEFENSE.

Captain Read, on Trial at Manila, Denies Complicity in the Commissary Frauds.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

MANILA, May 2.—Captain James C. Read, ex-commissary of the depot here, who is on trial for complicity in the commissary frauds, today gave his version of the allegations made against him. He declared that he had given no preference to contracting firms. He had discussed with individuals the shortages in supplies furnished by contractors, which shortage could not be fixed by a board of survey. He had given receipts for Major Davis, not desiring to involve him in trouble, though he was not willing to assume responsibility for the shortages. He expected that the shortages would be rectified. The manager of the Alhambra company had offered money assistance in behalf of Major Davis, which was accepted. Later the money was returned. Captain Real denied that he had received commissions on contracts, and explained the instances where contractors had paid money.

Civil Rule for Batangas.

The Philippine commission has organized civil government in Batangas province, with Felix Bojas as Governor and Lieutenant Blanchard of the Thirty-sixth Volunteer Infantry as Treasurer.

The commission has established a government at Sorsogon at the southern end of the Island of Luzon, and has appointed Captain J. G. Livingston of New York Governor and Captain E. W. Terry of the Forty-seventh Regiment Treasurer. The commission touched at Marinduque yesterday and fulfilled the pledge made that if the insurgents surrendered municipalities would be organized and a separate provincial government established at Marinduque.

SURGICAL SCHOOL FOR RUSSIA.

Czar to Establish College Under Ministry of War for Education of Military Surgeons.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 2.—It is reported in the press here that the Ministry for War is contemplating reorganizing the military medical academy, where the students are subjected to military discipline and are required to serve three years as military surgeons after graduation.

It is stated that General Vannovski, the Minister of Public Instruction, made a report to the Czar last week recommending the pardoning of the soldier students and other absentees from the universities and permitting them to return in August for the examinations, their military service to continue until then. The Czar consented.

CHILE'S PRESIDENT TO QUIT.

Chief Executive of the South American Republic Will Resign for Two Months.

VALPARAISO, Chile, May 2.—President Errazuris has issued a decree in which he declares that "important personal motives" prevent him from fulfilling his constitutional functions until after next June.

He explains in a letter directed to the Governors of the provinces that in view of the fact that Señor Jerman Riesco, a relative, is a candidate for the Presidency, and because of the disability imposed upon the President by republican principles when a relative is a candidate, he would send a message to Congress soliciting leave of absence until June 23.

It had been previously announced that, owing to ill-health, President Errazuris would turn over the Presidency of Chile to Prime Minister Zanartu.

KING LEOPOLD AS A PROMOTER.

Ruler of Belgium Proposes to Build an Elaborate System of Electric Railways.

BRUSSELS, May 2.—Le Petit Bleu announces that King Leopold intends to create a network of electric railways, requiring a capital of a milliard of francs, to be constructed in the following order: Brussels to Antwerp, Brussels to Ostend, and Brussels to Paris. According to the same authority the consent of the French government has been secured.

Knights of Labor in Italy.

ROME, May 2.—The Capitan Fiacassa of this city announces that King Victor Emmanuel will sign a decree next Sunday creating a new order, to be known as the Order of the Knights of Labor, which will be conferred upon citizens, including workmen, distinguished in the study of labor questions or the amelioration of the condition of the laboring classes.

Spanish Miners on a Strike.

MURCIA, Spain, May 2.—A thousand men are out on strike at the Aguilas mines. The company has refused the men's proposals and there has been serious disturbance. Some of the miners fired on the police guarding property and the gendarmes charged the crowd, killing one man and wounding several others.

FRENCH PLAN TO SEIZE MOROCCO.

Russia to Sustain the Grab While Spain Will Accept Cash for Silence.

ENGLAND MAY OBJECT.

Great Britain Said to Look with Disfavor Upon the Project.

MOORS ARE NOT CONSULTED.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune by Grace Corneau.]

PARIS, May 2.—More of the fruits of Foreign Minister Delcasse's visit to Russia are beginning to be learned. It is now stated on the best of authority that in return for a French loan to meet the expenses Russia has sustained in Manchuria that Russia will support France in taking possession of Morocco. Italy, it is stated, has been consulted and will interpose no objections. Spain has been satisfied and will come in for a big indemnity for her own rights surrendered. In consequence of the new understanding the Consul General of France to Morocco has been sent to London on a mission to aid Ambassador Paul Cambon in the negotiations with Lord Lansdowne on the subject. England has received the proposition coldly, but France hopes by making concessions elsewhere to remove British objections.

The control of Morocco will round out French possessions in northern Africa, but will not, it is greatly feared, be assured without a long and expensive military campaign.

Drumont Accuses the Ministry.

Edouard Drumont, editor of Libre Parole and member of the Chamber of Deputies from Algeria, has addressed a letter containing violent accusations against the government, which he insists that Paul Deschanel, President of the Chamber, shall read at the opening of Parliament. Drumont proposes to interpellate the Premier upon the attempted assassination of ex-Mayor Max Regis, which he claims was organized by Prefect Lutaud, with the consent of the government.

Soldiers Deprived of Loot Money.

The French government has placed an official stamp of disapproval of the looting of China by refusing to permit returning soldiers to profit by their share of the booty. According to law the commanding officers sold the spoils secured in China and sent the bulk of the sum to France, giving each soldier a check for his share. Payment of the checks have been stopped by the government.

Declares He Is Innocent.

Thomas Edwards, the man arrested with George Miller and charged with complicity in the American express robbery, now declares that he is innocent, and says that he will appeal to the United States Ambassador. He admitted that he was an employé of the company, but further than that he has remained mute to further questions. No compromising papers were found on him. Miller is believed to have had a woman accomplice. At the moment of his arrest a handsome, well-dressed woman, who seemed to be in his company, exclaimed in English, "What have I seen?" and then fled. The police are actively searching for her.

Bogus Prince on Trial.

The trial of the bogus Prince Vitenval Laforge began today. Among the witnesses called by Vitenval were Paul Loubet, son of the President, and General Barail.

The charges against the Prince include the sale of false decorations. He was condemned to six months in prison.

German Officers Involved.

Further disclosures make the Krupp treason affair at Commentry more serious. It has now been discovered that four German officers visited the gun manufactories at Commentry with Marandon last February, thus securing valuable information.

There was a brilliant reception at the Academy Française today to Berthelot, the famous savant and chemist. Jules Lemaitre pronounced the reception discourse.

Loubet to Entertain Royalty.

The Princess of the Asturias and her husband, Prince Charles of Bourbon, who are coming to Paris soon, will be received by President Loubet at the Elysée next week with all the honors due to royalty.

JAPANESE CABINET IS OUT.

Marquis Ito Presents the Resignation of the Ministry, but May Resume Office.

YOKOHAMA, May 2.—In consequence of the continued postponement by the Japanese Minister of Finance, Viscount Watabebe, of the carrying out of the expected public works, Marquis Ito, the Premier, and all the other members of the Cabinet, with the exception of the Minister of War, Baron Kodama, resigned.

It is asserted that Marquis Ito advised the Emperor to intrust the task of forming a new Cabinet to Marquis Yamagata, whose government resigned last October; but it is doubtful whether Marquis Yamagata will accept. The probability is that Marquis Ito will reinstitute the Cabinet.

FORBIDDEN TOLSTOI PORTRAIT.

Picture of Russian Writer in Peasant Costume Prohibited Exhibition at Moscow.

The Russian government has prohibited the exhibition at Moscow of Repine's life-size portrait of Count Tolstoi, which represents the author as a barefoot peasant. The popular demonstrations of approval given the picture when it was exhibited in St. Petersburg, where it was decorated with flowers and ribbons, are supposed to have caused the government's action.

GLASGOW, May 2.—The city was en fête today on the opening of the exposition, which has already been voted a great success.

The city, which was crowded with visitors, was decorated with flowers and bunting. The Duke and Duchess of Fife, who were received by Lord Balfour of Burleigh, Secretary for Scotland, and the city dignitaries, opened the exhibition at noon.

The Duchess of Fife was presented with a gold key, with which she unlocked the doors of the buildings. Afterwards the Duke and Duchess were presented with the freedom of the borough.

Allotment of British War Loan.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, May 2.—In the House of Commons today Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced that £30,000,000 of the new war loan had been allotted. Of this amount £11,000,000 would go to the Rothschild syndicate, £10,000,000 to J. P. Morgan & Co., and £9,000,000 to the Bank of England.

TO PROMOTE CITY'S GROWTH.

Business-Men of Madison, Wis., Organize Forty Thousand Club to Increase Population.

Madison, Wis., May 2.—[Special.]—The Forty Thousand club is a new organization formed by leading business-men of the City of Madison. The object of the club is to raise the population of the capital of the Badger State from 20,000 to 40,000 as quick as it can be done.

The merchants say that the towns of Wisconsin are making such headway as to population and commercial importance that it is necessary for Madison to provide ways and means by which new enterprises will be encouraged, additional institutions secured, and growth in population induced by natural means.

The club already has sixty members, the organization being limited to 100 members. Permanent quarters have been established in the opera-house block and officers elected as follows: J. W. Graves, President; Dr. Clark Gapin, Vice President; F. G. Murray, Secretary; John Grinde, Treasurer.

Among the charter members are the members of the firm of Keeley, Neckerman & Keessenbach, H. J. Verhusen, Frank Jones, J. M. Boyd, Judge A. D. Zimmerman, Joseph Kiser, Adolph Kisen, John Fredrickson, W. H. Huppler, Professor W. A. Henry.

SETBACK FOR MAYOR JOHNSON.

Council Committees of Cleveland, O., Vote Adversely on Appropriation Asked by the Executive.

Cleveland, O., May 2.—[Special.]—Mayor Johnson's reform scheme for Cleveland received a serious setback today. He will have no departmental examiner nor $7,000 with which to pay the cost of the tax bureau which he has established. The Finance and Appropriation committees of the City Council met today and by a joint vote of four to one decided to recommend to the City Council that the Mayor be not given one cent of the $260,200 which he has asked for to carry out his plans. The passage of the ordinance carrying this appropriation to the Mayor by the Council, over the committee's report, is remote, for the reason that it must be done under a suspension of the rules, and for that seventeen out of the twenty-one votes in the Council are required.

BRYAN DISCUSSES M'LAURIN.

Says Flop of Senator Marks Beginning of Movement in South That Will Affect National Politics.

Lincoln, Neb., May 2.—[Special.]—W. J. Bryan today discussed what he calls the flop of Senator McLaurin. Mr. Bryan says it marks the beginning of a movement in the South which will have an influence upon the politics of the nation. He says it is not likely Mr. McLaurin will be the leader of the movement, "because he is handicapped by the fact that he is using his official position to misrepresent the views and interests of his constituents, but some leader will arise to give direction and force to the aristocratic and plutocratic element for which Mr. McLaurin speaks." Mr. Bryan finds consolation in the belief that a white Republican party in the South will bring some compensation in that it is likely to divide the colored vote of the North.

BEGINS WAR ON BRITISH BUDGET.

Liberal Party in House of Commons Attacks the Coal Tax.

SAYS IT MEANS CHAOS.

Vernon Harcourt Declares America Will Control the Trade.

REPLY FROM HICKS-BEACH.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, May 3, 3 a. m.—The final debate over the proposed export tax on coal began in the House of Commons last evening. The attack on the budget proposals was led by Sir William Vernon Harcourt, formerly the leader of the Liberal party and still its most trenchant debater. Sir William declared that the tax would place the United States in control of the export coal trade—a trade heretofore belonging to Great Britain.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, made a spirited reply to Harcourt's attack and quoted facts to prove, first, that the British coal barons had last year made a profit of $145,000,000, and that even after inflating the price until the public was compelled to suffer, they had exported 28,000,000 tons. On the other hand, the Chancellor declared, the United States had only exported 6,000,000 tons, with everything in its favor.

The debate attracted a crowded gallery and almost a full attendance of the members. The government is using every effort to "whip" its supporters into line in support of the budget proposals and is taking no chances of defeat by default.

Disappointment for Balfour.

It is learned that yesterday Sir William Vernon Harcourt privately requested Mr. Balfour, the government leader in the House of Commons, to consent to a postponement of a final vote on the coal tax. Balfour declined, as he was determined to secure a vote before the House rose. At a late hour, however, it was evident that any attempt to force a vote would be dangerous and Balfour reluctantly yielded to the demands for postponement.

Means Chaos for Coal Trade.

In opening his speech in opposition Sir William Vernon Harcourt declared that the proposed export tax on coal would throw the coal trade into chaos and confusion. It recklessly disregarded existing contracts and was a most unbusinesslike way of dealing with a great trade. It was an extraordinary and vexatious piece of bungling. It was nonsense to say the foreigner would pay the tax because he could not do without coal. The government of Italy had answered that plea by taking coal from America instead of this country. The trade of France was equally divided between this country, Germany, and Belgium.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, interrupting, said: "We are beating the others."

"Then go on beating them," said Sir William Vernon Harcourt. "Why throw a shilling into the scale against this country?"

Sir William contended that it was class legislation and that the tax would ultimately come out of the miners' wages.

Chancellor Makes Reply.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer admitted that the tax, like every tax, was an obstruction on trade. The real question was, Could the export trade in coal bear the tax? It could. English coal was of so good a quality, there was much of it, and it could not be got in any other country. Thus, to a large extent, it was free from competition.

The Chancellor submitted masses of statistics, which he summarized as showing 225,000,000 tons were mined in 1900, on which, after deducting £18,000,000 in wages more than in 1897, left the coal owners a net profit of £29,000,000 on a capital of £110,000,000. He had some difficulty in keeping his patience when deputations talked to him about the unprofitable condition of trade. He had not proposed the tax for merely one year and it would be on those who were able to bear it.

America Out of the Race.

As to the competition of the United States, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach said:

"Last year the price of our coal at the port of export rose much higher than the price of coal in the United States, but in spite of that our export of coal was 38,000,000 tons, or 3,500,000 tons more than the previous year. The United States exports a little over 16,000,000 tons; if the United States could not compete when the price of our coal was high, it would be absolutely impossible for it to compete when the price of our coal was low."

Germany May Increase Duties.

Replying to a question in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, Lord Cranborne, Parliamentary Secretary for the Foreign Office, said rumors had reached the government from various sources of the intention of the German government to increase the duties on steel.

The government, Lord Cranborne said, was alive to the importance of the matter, but in the absence of definite information he was unable to make a more precise statement.

The question was asked by Colonel Sir Charles Edward Howard Vincent, Conservative and Fair Trade member for Central Sheffield and founder and honorary secretary of the United Empire Trade league.

Redmond Opposes the Tax.

Mr. John Redmond, the Nationalist leader, said the coal tax did not affect Ireland, and in that respect it was the beginning of a new era. On general principles, however, he urged Irish members to do everything possible in their efforts to defeat the budget.

The debate was adjourned to Monday next, when, according to the arrangement, a division will be taken.

COACHMAN AND HORSE MISSING.

Police Asked to Locate Whereabouts of William White, Who Had Been Employed by C. S. Roberts.

Fine horses and handsome turnouts were the heart's desire of William White, a coachman employed by C. S. Roberts of 4900 Ellis avenue, Secretary of the American Steel and Wire company. So fond was he of a large gray horse and a fancy carriage with a dark-green box and black upholstery, it is thought both he and it disappeared together, for neither C. S. Roberts nor his friends have seen either for several days. The police and private detectives are also on the lookout. Last Monday White appealed to Mr. Roberts, who then was about to leave for New York, that he be permitted to take a few days' vacation. The request was granted and White left. He went to the stables, which are a block away from the house, and ordered the gray horse placed in the fancy vehicle. This was thought an ordinary occurrence, and White drove away. Since then he has not been seen. On Wednesday the Hyde Park police were notified and Mrs. Roberts had private detectives put at work on the case. White bears a good reputation.

ARMY EXPENSES ON PEACE BASIS.

Secretary Root Directs the Most Rigid Economy in Philippines.

AID TO CHICAGO TRADE.

Parcels Post Packages from Germany to Come Straight Through.

NEWS AT NATION'S CAPITAL.

WASHINGTON BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Washington, D. C., May 2.

Expense of the Army Will Be Reduced.

From this time on the most rigid economy will be practiced in the expenditures of the army, and an effort will be made to reduce the cost to the limit existing during times of peace. Secretary Root today issued an order to the department commanders in the field, and all other officers charged with the duty of making or approving estimates or requisitions for the expenditure of money, calling their attention to the importance of careful scrutiny to avoid unnecessary expense.

The requirements of active military operations, the order says, always tend toward habits of expense not justified in times of peace. With the gradual disappearance of these military necessities, which must be met without regard to cost, the army will be held responsible by the people of the country for a reduction of expenses and a rigid economy.

After issuing this order the Secretary of War announces that he desires the assistance of all officers in bringing about the results sought.

In discussing the order issued today Secretary Root said the time had passed when the presence of troops were required in the field without regard to cost. He said peace in Cuba, China, and the Philippines had been restored. With the passing of these critical times and the restoration of peace, the Secretary said the people of the country would expect a reduction in the expenditures, and that the administration would do all in its power to cut down the cost of maintaining the army consistent with demands of the service.

Cost to Be Reduced to a Peace Basis.

"It is proper to reduce the expenses of the army to the lowest possible figure," said Uncle Joe Cannon today, in discussing the order of Secretary Root. "Since the war is over there is no necessity for haste in purchasing supplies, and when the needs are not pressing better terms can be made. The people have a right to expect a reduction in the expenses of maintaining the military establishment of the country since peace has been restored.

"During the war, when it was necessary to have ships and men in certain quarters of the globe ready for immediate action, no one complained of the heavy expenditures, and in fact no fault could be found with the conduct of affairs.

"The object was to get our forces where they were needed, and get them there without delay. Time was the chief thing to consider and the expense of the operation was a secondary matter. It will be remembered that we always managed to get our forces where they were needed and that they remained after arriving."

Count Cassini, the Russian Ambassador, is suffering with a mild attack of bronchitis. He is confined to his bed, but his illness is not so serious as to cause alarm.

Parcels Post from Germany to Chicago Direct.

Assistant Secretary Spaulding today approved a plan to allow the Postoffice department to ship directly to Chicago and ten other large interior cities of the United States all parcels post packages received from Germany, to be examined at the point of their destination by the customs officers instead of at New York, as is the practice now. The cities to be thus favored are Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cleveland, Detroit, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Cincinnati, New Orleans, and San Francisco, and the change will give the merchants of these cities great satisfaction.

For over a year the large jobbers in the interior have been complaining to the department at delays in the German parcels post packages and breakage at the New York customs office, and Secretary Spaulding has been working on a plan to relieve them.

His only hesitancy in carrying out the plan now proposed was owing to the fear that the government would lose a large percentage of the customs revenues derived from this source, as the customs officers of the interior cities might not have the facilities for properly appraising dutiable goods. Then, too, he realized that after granting this privilege to eleven of the larger cities many of the smaller ones would demand it and claim that injustice was being done them.

But he has come to the conclusion that the merchants of New York have an unfair advantage over those of many of the other large cities in this particular, and the plan will be carried out. Under the postal treaty with Germany the Postmaster General has the right to designate cities as the destination of through parcels post matter, but as the new system will entail a great deal of extra work upon the German postoffice, the matter will be submitted to the German postal authorities before the plan is put into operation.

Under the new regulations it will be necessary for the Germans to put up in twelve sacks the parcels post packages that have heretofore been simply thrown together and shipped to New York. Letters have been addressed by the department to the customs officers of the eleven cities named, asking information as to their facilities for transferring German parcels post packages directly from the railroad stations to the customs stores in their cities, so that they will not have to go to the customs division of their respective postoffices.

The department has found that generally this can be done. The facilities for appraising goods will be better at the customs stores than in the postoffice, as a rule. While it is expected the government will lose considerable revenue at first from this change, it is not believed that the plan will open up a way to smuggling but rather to undervaluation, as the appraisers in the smaller cities have not had the experience and are not as expert as those in the customs service in New York.

A rural free delivery route will be established at Clermont, Marion County, Ind., on June 1. Its length is twenty-five miles, and it covers an area of thirty-five square miles and has a population of 675. One carrier has been assigned to the route. The postoffice at Spacks will be discontinued when the new service begins.

New Industries Planned for Porto Rico.

With a view to improving the conditions of the people of Porto Rico the Department of Agriculture is giving consideration to the question of establishing industrial villages in the island. The manufacture of hats, straw goods, and matting, the production of raw silk and the canning of tropical fruits are examples of employment which would be beneficial. Dr. S. A. Knapp, who has investigated the agricultural conditions in Porto Rico, says:

"The early establishment of a number of small industries closely related to agriculture is of vital importance to future prosperity. The object of such industries is to give profitable employment to the wives and children of farm laborers, so that the earning ability of the home may be doubled and in some cases quadrupled. Under such conditions, if the head of a family fails for any cause to earn his wage the home goes on. The earning capacity is lessened, but the home is not destroyed.

"This has its moral as well as economic bearing. Many philanthropic Porto Ricans suggested that the laborers on the coffee and tobacco plantations scattered upon the mountains, without roads, society, or schools, with the children nude and semi-wild, could never derive the full advantages of a free education and be influenced by the elevation of society until they were gathered into small villages and become amenable to social laws.

"In a republic this cannot be done by force, but once small industrial villages are established in the country the scattered mountain population will be attracted to the village by its superior earning capacity and its advantages for school, society, and better living. The establishment of these villages will be no detriment to the farms because the village labor will be within the reach of every farm."

Representative Cannon left for Chicago tonight. He is well pleased with the passage of the reapportionment bill.

Germany May Get an Island from Venezuela.

There is apparently much truth in the reports that German subjects have been buying up land on the Island of Margarita, which is owned by Venezuela, with a view of letting it be used by the German government as a coaling station. A report on the subject received at the Navy department shows that a German warship paid a visit to the island last year and made extensive surveys, and that Germans have been purchasing land lying on a magnificent land-locked harbor, said to be an ideal site for a naval coaling station.

Some examination of this harbor has been made for the Navy department, and it is pronounced to be the best in South America for naval purposes. Its importance lies in the fact that it controls the eastern approach to the Panama Canal.

Some fear is expressed here, in view of the feeling in Venezuela towards the United States, that the Venezuelan government may permit Germany to use the island as a coaling station. The Monroe doctrine has never been applied to the acquirement of sites for coaling depots on this continent by foreign nations, but the reports of Germany's alleged intentions will cause that question to be given consideration. Margarita is ten hours' sail from La Guayra.

Secretary Gage today bought $150,000 of 1907 government 4 per cent bonds at 113.61, deliverable tomorrow. He also received $125,000 of the same purchased at 113.5058 under date of April 29.

Says Schley's Ship Is Given Too Much Show.

Chief Constructor Bowles is a great admirer of Rear Admiral Sampson and retains the impression that the latter officer is the hero of Santiago. The late Chief Constructor, Rear Admiral Philip Hichborn, thought differently and had an oil painting made by one of the government artists showing the distribution of the ships just before Cervera's surrender. The Brooklyn, Schley's ship, was depicted in a prominent position in the midst of the fight.

When Bowles came to Washington from New York to take Hichborn's place, he found the picture hanging on the wall behind his desk and having the place of honor in the constructor's office.

In the reorganization of the bureau, which includes reduction of pay of draftsmen and transfer of ten of them to distant places, Constructor Bowles intends to relegate the picture to an obscure corner of the bureau, where it will not be seen by the public. He says the picture is a libel and is an inaccurate production which defies history.

Big Warships Will Return from Philippines.

It is proposed to cut down the naval force on the Asiatic station, and many of the ships now attached to the fleet in the Philippine waters will be recalled, especially the larger vessels. The smaller vessels, such as gunboats and the second-class cruisers, will be retained on duty. This is a result of an inquiry which Rear Admiral Crowninshield has made into the duty being discharged by vessels on that station. It was found that of the fifty odd ships now in Asiatic waters nearly thirty of them were loafing in Manila harbor. He was highly incensed at the situation and said that if there were not work for these ships to perform abroad they might as well be brought home, especially as many of them need repairs and overhauling generally.

McCalla to Take Command of Kearsarge.

Orders detaching Captain W. M. Folger from the command of the battleship Kearsarge at New York on May 14 were announced today. As previously announced, Captain Folger will be succeeded in command when the repairs to the Kearsarge are completed by Captain B. H. McCalla, who will leave the Asiatic station in a few days for New York on the cruiser Newark.

RECORD TEACHERS' TAX ORDER.

Writ of Mandamus on Board of Equalization Received by Clerk in Springfield.

Springfield, Ill., May 2.—The writ of mandamus issued by Judge Owen P. Thompson on application of the Chicago Teachers' federation ordering the State Board of Equalization to assess the property of certain Chicago corporations which have escaped assessment was received this afternoon by the Clerk of the Circuit Court of Sangamon County.

The writ calls for immediate convening in this city of the board, who shall proceed to assess the capital stock and intangible property on April 1, 1900, of the twenty-three corporations complained of according to the findings and instructions of the court, in order that the taxes may be extended by the County Clerk of Cook County for the year 1900. The board is instructed to report back to the court by June 12.

The question arises as to which board the order applies—the members who met last October or the members who were elected last November. It is probable that Judge Thompson will be called upon to decide this question.

GLASS WORKERS' WAGES RAISED

Increase of 15 Per Cent Agreed To at Indianapolis Conference—Factories to Shut Down on May 11.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 2.—As the result of a national conference of window glass interests held here today it was decided to close down nearly all coöperative factories in the United States on May 11 and give all employés an advance in wages of 15 per cent. The conference was attended by representatives of all the coöperative glass factories in the country, including President Cole of Lancaster, O., who is at the head of an independent combination, and Simon Burns, President of the L. A. 300. There were also present members of the Wage Workers' committee and President Chambers of the American Window Glass company, commonly called the trust. The result of the conference affects 2,750 glass blowers and 15,000 other employés, all of whose wages will be increased 15 per cent.

HEAT CLOSES IRON MILLS.

High Temperature at Pittsburg Causes Shutdown of Several Manufacturing Plants.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 2.—The intense heat of yesterday and today has practically closed several of the bar mills in the city and badly crippled others. At Wharton's mill of the Republic iron works the puddlers quit work at nearly every furnace after working three heats. Some made four, but those who made five heats were few. In the Keystone mill, on Second avenue, the workmen did the same thing, and the plant was said to be closed. Several workmen were completely exhausted and others were almost prostrated, and with the heat and the scarcity of workmen the manufacturers are having much trouble. There is a strong demand for iron and steel, and muck bars are scarce because the manufacturers cannot get men to work.

TEXAS GREETS M'KINLEY TODAY.

President Leaves New Orleans After a Day of Sightseeing.

VISIT FULL OF INTEREST.

Entire Population Welcomes Chief Magistrate to Old Spanish Cabildo.

TALKS TO NEGRO STUDENTS.

New Orleans, La., May 2.—President McKinley resumed his journey to the Pacific coast at 6 o'clock this evening, and will reach Houston, Tex., tomorrow morning, where he will make his first stop. His visit to this city will be long remembered in New Orleans, as well as by the Chief Magistrate.

In no other city in the United States is the old and romantic preserved and placed in such sharp contrast with the modern as in the Crescent City, and today, as the Presidential party drove through the city from the new into the old French and Spanish quarter, it was like passing from America into a foreign land, from this century into another that has gone.

The illusion of the transition was heightened by the interesting ceremonies which occurred in the old cabildo, the seat of the government of the former Spanish and French rulers, which is yet preserved in its original integrity by the Louisiana Historical society.

The entire population apparently was out to see the Chief Magistrate. After a short visit to the Southern University, where a thousand colored students greeted the President with waving bunting so arranged as to make the whole an American flag, and where the President made a brief speech, the party passed across Canal and Rampart streets, the boundaries of the new city, into the old town with its narrow streets, its quaint galleried residences, its cathedrals, old Spanish buildings, and the French market, all with the flavor of another generation, and all now unfortunately going into picturesque decay.

In Old New Orleans.

There was a striking picture when the party drew up before the moldering cabildo, over 150 years old, which is situated opposite what is now called Jackson square, but which, in the old days, was the Place d'Armes, where Spanish Generals formerly drilled their soldiers. Around the encircling streets the balconies were thronged and down on the square were acres of people.

Many races were represented, but the foreigners were mostly French and Italians. These on the outer edges of the crowd stood with their faces pressed against the high iron railings which inclose the park. Many people were perched in the trees. The French tricolor and several other strange flags, among them the red, white, and green banner of Portugal, were interspersed with American flags in the decorations.

Drawn up in line before the historic old building were the young cadets from the Jesuit College, and up the winding stairway at the entrance of the building were ranged a file of the Continental Guards, a local organization, in the buff and blue of the revolutionary era, wearing cockades and white crossed belts with the figures "76" on their shining brass belt plates.

As the President alighted a squad of cadets blew a fanfare on their French trumpets, the Louisiana Field Artillery fired a salute of twenty-one guns, and the bells of the cathedral and all churches in the quarter rang out a greeting.

Up the stairway, past the Continental Guard, the President and his party mounted into the crimson draped audience chamber, where the exercises took place. As in a dream the visitors were carried back to the days long ago when Governors of Spanish Kings ruled here, and to that memorable day almost a century ago when the keys of the City of New Orleans were delivered up in this same room to Wilkinson and Claiborne, the American commissioners, and French dominion over the great Louisiana Territory passed to the sovereignty of the United States.

Alcee Fortier, a distinguished Creole, who is President of the Louisiana Historical society, recalled these events in his address to the President, and the President in his response dwelt upon their momentous bearing upon the world's history. It was a notable speech and was received with enthusiasm by the distinguished gathering present.

Responds to Greeting.

The President spoke as follows:

"I rise only for the purpose of making acknowledgment to the Louisiana Historical association for its cordial and generous welcome to this historic place. It has been a great honor to me to be received here by the Governor of this great commonwealth, by the Chief Justice and his associates of its highest court, by the Mayor of the City, to this place, memorable not only in American annals but memorable in the annals of the world.

"I am glad to stand nearby where that great transaction took place which transferred the Louisiana territory to the flag of the stars, a transaction which changed the map of the world and made this union what it now is, the strongest and the freest nation on the face of the earth."

When he had concluded the President appeared upon the balcony to show himself to the waiting thousands outside. The cadets below presented arms, and the square and the buildings surrounding it fluttered with handkerchiefs and flags, while the air was torn by the hoarse roar of the shouts of the multitude. The President acknowledged the demonstration with a bow, right and left, and spoke as follows:

"My Fellow-Citizens: I have great honor in standing on this historic ground to receive the greetings of my countrymen, and to recall the fact that here nearly a hundred years ago a great scene was enacted that dedicated a larger area than the original thirteen States to liberty and union forever."

The party then returned to the hotel for luncheon, and in the afternoon embarked on a Mississippi River steamboat for a trip along the river front from Audubon Park to the historic battlefield, where the monument erected in memory of the defeat of Packingham by General Jackson commands a view of the river.

Talks to Colored Students.

The President's visit to the colored students of the Southern University earlier in the day was a notable event in the history of that institution. As the President entered the grounds of the university he was welcomed with "Hail to the Chief," sung by a chorus of 1,000 school children and accompanied by the student's orchestra. Brief addresses were made by George Alexis and Ernestine M. Theophile, pupils of the school, and the President made a felicitious response, in which he said, addressing the negro children:

"I am glad to know that all over the South, where most of you dwell, the States have provided institutions of learning where every boy and every girl can prepare themselves for usefulness and honor under the government in which he lives. The thing today is to be practical. What you want is to get education, and with it you want good character, and with these you want unfaltering industry, and if you have these three things you will have success anywhere and everywhere. God bless you."

Five thousand negroes attended the reception, among them the leading local members of the race.

T. B. BRYAN MADE CHAIRMAN.

He Is Selected by the McKinley Committee to Supervise Plans for the President's Visit.

Thomas B. Bryan has been elected chairman of the McKinley Reception committee. The choice was made by the joint committee of the Union League club, the National Business league, and the Illinois Manufacturers' association yesterday afternoon. Mr. Bryan is a former President of the Union League club and a personal friend of the President.

Owing to the absence of the chairmen of the various committees, who are out of the city, only routine business was transacted yesterday in addition to the naming of the chairman of the Reception committee.

The committee realizes that President McKinley's strength will be taxed severely during his extended trip, and every possible effort is being made to arrange the program for his stay in Chicago so as not to fatigue him more than is necessary.

It is expected that the complete program will be made public within a few days.

GOLD BRICK ORIGINATOR DEAD.

Van Buren Triplet, Swindler, Once Wealthy, Is Buried in Potter's Field at West Baden, Ind.

Van Buren Triplet, the accredited inventor of the gold brick swindle, died a pauper last Monday at West Baden, Ind., where he had gone in a last effort to recover his health. Triplet was arrested over a hundred times in Chicago and was known as one of the cleverest confidence men in the country. He traveled under several aliases, but was best known as "Old Tripp."

Triplet originated the gold brick swindle over twenty years ago, but not till after a decade did he declare it perfect. At first he wore a miner's makeup and interested some gullible person in a "Western gold mine." Then he took the stranger out to the "mine," had the output assayed, and at length disposed of the gold brick. As he gained confidence Triplet dispensed with the Western trip and sold his bricks freely in Chicago.

In spite of the number of times he was arrested he was convicted of swindling only twice. He served a term in the Ohio penitentiary and was nearly lynched in Skaguay with a gang that had "bunkoed" a miner, but escaped with a jail sentence.

Triplet was 65 years of age. He was in the real estate business in Chicago, but gave it up when the demand for gold bricks increased. He married in this city, but three days after the wedding he was arrested and his wife died of heart disease while he was in jail. He is said to have been worth $100,000 at one time, but was buried in the potter's field in West Baden.

TELLS OF FADS IN EDUCATION.

Indiana Woman Condemns Modern Methods at Meeting of Union of Literary Clubs at Evansville.

Evansville, Ind., May 2.—[Special.]—The twelfth annual session of the Indiana Union of Literary Clubs met this morning. The paper that attracted most attention was one by Mrs. Wilford Hickman of Bedford on "Fads in American Education." The writer discussed the many fads and methods that have grown up in the schools of today and asserted that the school education of today is nothing more than a glossing over of too many subjects for the children to absorb.

Miss Margaret Holland of Vincennes, in a paper on "What Shall We Give Our Children to Read," thought the daily newspaper should be eliminated. In the discussion that followed Mrs. Heberd of Princeton warmly defended the newspapers on the ground that they were an education in themselves.

Professor French of Chicago University lectured tonight on "The Analogy Between Composition in Literature and Composition in Art."

TRAMPS KILL A BRAKEMAN.

A. C. Larkin Fatally Shot and Conductor Wade Injured in Encounter with Hobos on Train.

Galesburg, Ill., May 2.—[Special.]—A. C. Larkin, a Chicago, Burlington and Quincy brakeman, was murdered and Conductor James Wade was severely injured by tramps at Tennessee, on the Quincy line, late last night. Both are Galesburg men. The tramps were occupying a car of the train and were ordered out by the trainmen. They obeyed and the trainmen turned to leave, when one of the tramps struck Wade over the head with a revolver and another shot Larkin through the heart. Larkin's body was brought here, where he has a wife and child. The conductor says that no violence was done the tramps in ejecting them, and the shooting was entirely unexpected. After the shooting the tramps ran. A half dozen men are under arrest at Macomb and here on suspicion.

DROP SUNDAY FIGHT IN BUFFALO

No Further Trouble Expected from Church Organizations Which Opposed Show on Sabbath.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 2.—So far as the Buffalo churches that were represented by the committee appointed some time ago, with the Rev. O. P. Gifford of the Delaware Avenue Baptist Church at its head, are concerned, no further action will be taken looking toward the closing of the Pan-American Exposition on Sunday. The consensus of opinion among those favoring the closing of the gates on Sunday seemed to indicate that the anti-Sunday opening crusade was at an end.

GRINNELL ASKS HERRON'S TRIAL.

Congregational Church He Formerly Attended Calls Joint Conference.

ACTS WITHOUT DEBATE.

Plan Outlined by Baxter Resolution Is Being Closely Adhered To.

WIFE DENIES INTERVIEW.

Grinnell, Ia., May 2.—[Special.]—The Grinnell Congregational Church this evening took the second step looking to the expulsion of Professor George D. Herron from the membership rolls. The church voted to call a council of churches to try Professor Herron for conduct unbecoming a minister, as recommended in the resolutions adopted by the association at Baxter.

The action was taken in a business meeting following the regular prayer-meeting. The attendance was composed of women and men. The proceedings were quiet and showed a grim determination on the part of the congregation to get over a disagreeable matter as soon as possible. What discussion there was has been carried on outside.

Baxter Resolution Approved.

Deacon C. F. Childs read the resolution adopted by the association at Baxter and moved that the Grinnell Church form a council as recommended, and that a committee be appointed to call the council with full power to act. The motion was carried without remarks and without a dissenting vote. The committee appointed consists of J. P. Lyman, C. F. Childs, Dr. P. E. Somers, the Rev. E. M. Vittum, and Professor Charles Noble.

These are representative men and stand high in the community.

The committee will write at once to Professor Herron and invite him to take part in the formation of the council. Should he decline to do so, or should he ignore their letter the council will be ex parte. It is understood that the proceedings of the committee will be secret and that nothing will be given out until the invitation to form the council is extended.

The evidence that is said to be in possession of some of the church people was not presented, but will be retained until the meeting of the council.

Mrs. Herron Denies Interview.

The authenticity of the alleged interview purporting to have been given out by Mrs. Herron at Tyron, N. C., in defense of her former husband, Professor George D. Herron, and criticising Grinnell townspeople for their alleged officiousness regarding Professor Parker's interview is absolutely denied by Mrs. Herron over her signature.

In order to set at rest their doubts in the matter a telegram was sent to Mrs. Herron by a personal friend in Grinnell, asking her if she had wired any interview or had given out any interviews to newspaper men.

Mrs. Herron's telegram was as follows:

"Columbus, S. C., May 1.—Have sent no telegrams and have given no interviews to any one. MARY E. HERRON."

A weird throw by Hartman, which had all the elements of carelessness added to its weirdness, gave Detroit the closing game of its series here after Chicago had seemingly put a copper rivet through it. The throw came in the ninth with two out, a runner at second, and Chicago three runs to the good. Buelow hit a fast one at Hartman, who picked it up clean and had every chance in the world to end the game with a victory for the champions. He could have touched Dillon, who was running from second on the play, but the natural thing to do was to get his man at first and this Hartman had loads of time to do, but he jerked the ball across the diamond too high for even Isbel to reach and the game was lost. Frisk came up and cut a double past third base close to the line, scoring Dillon. Casey was allowed to walk and the bases were full, with only two runs needed to tie. Then Barrett smashed a three-bagger far out to right center, scoring three runs.

Thereafter the champions played for rain or darkness to stop the game before it could be finished, in which case the score would have reverted to the eighth, in Chicago's favor. But their delays were so palpable and so clumsily done that every one could see the purpose. After Griffith let Gleason walk and Hoy let Holmes' fly fall safe, although McFarland made a try for it way out of his territory, the champions refused to put out Holmes, who was purposely caught between third and second. Then Umpire Connolly forfeited the game to Detroit by the score of 9 to 0.

Crowd Rushes Onto Field.

There was nothing else for the umpire to do under the circumstances, and yet the crowd piled on to the field looking for vengeance on the umpire, who was, however, never in danger of any violence, as he was amply protected by the players of both teams. If the crowd had gone onto the field with the intention of lynching Hartman there would have been some method in its madness. Connolly was in no way responsible for the defeat, but it was altogether Hartman's fault.

The arctic weather which came out of the north suddenly and without warning a couple of hours before the game kept the attendance down to the regulars, and the stiff breeze which blew straight and hard against the grand stand made both batting and fielding difficult and somewhat a matter of luck, but it helped the pitchers by lending additional speed to their shoots. Both sides made errors frequently and hits infrequently. Manager Griffith was on the rubber, and pitched a magnificent game in his efforts to take three out of four from the Tigers, but his efforts were wasted through the inefficiency of his backing. Stallings sent in Frisk, who had a world of speed with the [illegible] to help him, and proved to be intangible. It was only when he lost his bearings in the third and his support in the seventh that the champions could get runs across the plate.

Detroit Off in the Lead.

The rowdies scored first in the opening inning on a long drive by Barrett which cleared the fence in deep right field. In the third, with two out and a runner at second, McFarland muffed an easy fly from Dillon's bat and let in another run. Then the champions got Frisk up in the air in their half and tied the game. Four bases on balls following a safe hit, forced in two runs, and it would have been three if Isbell could have possessed himself of the patience of his predecessors instead of flying out trying to hit wild pitches.

There the game hung for four innings more without a run. The champions put their mark on the game in the eighth. Hoy led off with a single. Jones sacrificed, and Mertes lived by virtue of a fumble by Casey. Isbell pushed a hit through to left, scoring Hoy. Hartman's out moved up both runners, and they scored on Gleason's fumble of Shugart's sharp hit. That looked like a million runs to the fans, so they did not mind when Shugart was foolishly caught trying to go to second.

Break Comes in Ninth.

Dillon, the first up for the visitors in the ninth, hit safely to center, but Grif disposed of Elberfeld at first, and McFarland held Nance's fly, and it certainly did look like easy currency when Hartman closed on Buelow's grounder. Then came the break and the whole thing went to the bad almost before the disgusted spectators were aware of it. The rain, which had been falling at intervals all the afternoon, came down again, and the champions commenced to play for rain or darkness to stop the menagerie, with the result already told. If they had been a little more expeditious about their dilatoriness it would have been impossible to finish the game, as the rain fell hard five minutes after the forfeit was declared.

The score, as far as it went, follows:

Notes of the Game.

The visitors made but three hits off Griffith, one of them a scratch, up to the ninth inning. Hartman's blunder lost the game, the manager's temper and control.

The Champions go to Milwaukee today for a series of four games, opening the season there this afternoon. Manager Griffith will take fourteen men with him.

Henry Reitz, the Baltimore infielder, reported to Manager Griffith yesterday, but was not put into the game. He will accompany the team to Milwaukee and probably will play today at second, Mertes returning to left field.

The whole thing leaves a thick, dark, brown taste, which it will require a fortnight at least to remove. Fortunately the champions do not play here again until May 16, by which time the fans will perhaps have forgotten.

Griffith made an easy victim of Nance in the second inning. He pitched one behind the batter's back, hit the bat, and the ball bounded into "fair" ground. Nance was thrown out before he realized he had hit the ball at all.

President Comiskey released Dillard and Brain to Manager Ryan of the St. Paul club and they left last night to join the team at St. Joseph, where it opens the Western league season today.

This leaves the White Stockings with sixteen men, including the invalid Callahan.

It is expected Reitz at second will steady the infield somewhat. So far this season it has been phenomenally unsteady for a major league team.

BOSTON WINS SLUGGING MATCH.

Collins' Team Defeats Athletics by Score of 23 to 12, Making 19 Runs in Two Innings.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 2.—In the second and third innings of today's game Boston sent twenty-two men to the bat. Seven of them got bases on balls and twelve made safe hits, three of which were triples, the combination giving the visitors nine runs in the second and ten in the third inning. Loos, a local amateur, was placed on the rubber for the home club, but was taken out in the second inning, after giving four bases on balls and forcing two runs across the plate. Both teams batted hard, and honors in that respect were nearly even. Attendance, 2,841. Score:

PRESIDENT JOHNSON RETURNS.

American League Official Says the Public in the East Is in Sympathy with the New League.

President Ban Johnson of the American league returned to Chicago last night from the East. More than satisfied with the opening of the American league teams in the East, he says the sympathies of the baseball public are with the American league. "I saw games at Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington, and in these three cities the attendance far exceeded expectations. At Washington on the opening day there was a larger crowd than at any previous game played in the capital city."

President Johnson had not heard of the trouble which occurred yesterday on the South Side grounds, and when told of the demonstration made on Umpire Connelly expressed himself in decided terms. "We will not allow any more such scenes as that," said Mr. Johnson. "The public will not stand for such baseball, and we will have no more of it. I do not think Umpire Connelly was at fault. Of course, I do not at the present time know all the particulars of the case, but will investigate. I think Connelly is a good umpire, but he has not yet become accustomed to umpiring the games as played in the American league. Connelly was on the staff of the National league last year and did good work, but must conform to the rules of the American league. I will call upon him for a report of the trouble this morning and will sift the matter to the end."

The report sent out from Philadelphia a few days ago that an injunction had been issued restraining La Joie from playing ball was denied by Mr. Johnson.

Fine team work by the visitors, coupled with the clever pitching of Wenig, brought about this result. Fred Pfeffer played second for the locals and accepted every chance. Score:

Games Today.

Chicago at Pittsburg.
New York at Boston.
Philadelphia at Brooklyn.

Pittsburg, May 2.—[Special.]—Pittsburg won from Chicago today, but had to fight every inch of the way, and, although defeated, it was no discredit to Loftus' men, for they had a makeshift team in the field. To add to the hole at first base caused by Captain Doyle's disability, the other corner of the infield was also broken up. Delehanty was too ill with malaria to put on the spangles, and Raymer subbed for him. While the big fellow presented his best side, a regular could have handled the bag better.

Mal Eason was on the rubber, and the young man gave a fine exhibition of pitching. He had Pittsburg knocking high flies in the early stages, and it was not until the close of the game that the home batters solved his delivery. Eason was to blame for Pittsburg's first run, for he made a mess of a bunt toward first. This is a play Pittsburg has been working with great success lately. The batsman usually feints to bunt toward third, and when both pitcher and third baseman are expecting a tap that way he drops the ball down the first base line.

Tannehill pitched an even game. He caught several of the men on his curves at dangerous points, but Topsy Hartsel and Dan Green were not fooled in this way. Hartsel hit especially hard. One of his drives almost scalped Tannehill, just missing his head. Green in the first inning sent Chicago's first run home with a line drive to right. It was good apparently for three bases, but Bransfield leaped high in the air and just touched it with his big mitt, and Dan only got a single. Charley Dexter kept the good work in this inning going with a hard single, but Raymer struck out.

In Pittsburg's half of this inning Hartsel retired the third man by a brilliant back running catch off Bransfield's bat, leaving two men on bases. Barry McCormick got into one of the plays he likes in the third inning. Beaumont and Ritchey endeavored to work a double steal on him, but Mac's throw to the plate was so swift and true that Ritchey ran back to third and Raymer put the ball on him. Kling and Eason made Manager Loftus scowl in the fourth when both struck out in succession, leaving runners on bases.

An odd incident in this inning was little Tommy Leach's attempt to block Raymer. He gave him a hunch in the shoulder, which the Chicago man returned with interest. Chief Zimmer, President of the Players' Protective union, forgot his dignity in the fifth and gave Umpire Emslie a few sections of strenuous dialogue. Zimmer certainly made a fair drive, the ball hitting the chalk line, but Emslie called it a foul. To add to Zimmer's misery, Eason struck him out.

Raymer stole second base in the sixth inning, though had Eagan, Ely's substitute, been awake he would have been nailed. A costly play for Chicago occurred in the eighth. Raymer fielded Leach's bunt and was about to throw, when both feet slid from under him and he squatted on the turf, Leach getting first. Tannehill tried to sneak in a strike on Hartsel in the ninth. The little fellow smacked the ball for a clean double to right center, sliding in ahead of Wagner's line throw to the bag.

Chicago's first run was made in the first inning on Hartsel's single, Beaumont's misplay, and Green's savage drive. Pittsburg at once counted on Leach's single, Eason's slip up on Ritchey's bunt, and a flyout to Hartsel. Leach had to hustle to get home, for Hartsel threw well to the plate.

Runs were scarce for a time, and no more came until the sixth, when a line hit by Raymer, a steal, and Kling's safety to right scored one run. Pittsburg tied up the game in the eighth on Zimmer's drive, two bunts, and a force. In the ninth Bransfield began with a corker past Raymer. Then Clarke smashed a three-bagger to right field, and the game was over. Score:

BROOKLYN SAVED IN NINTH.

Snap Throw Catches Thomas Off Second Just When Philadelphia Threatens to Win.

New York, May 2.—Today's game at Brooklyn had an exciting finish. Philadelphia had to make one run to tie. Two men were on bases, one out, and Delehanty at bat, when a snap throw by McCann caught Thomas off second. Delehanty then gave Dahlen an easy chance. Brooklyn won by scoring three runs in the sixth on a triple, two singles, and a wild throw by Cross. Score:

Chicago Oarsman Dies.

Robert Corbett, Captain of the Iroquois Boat club, and one of the first men to foster the sport in Chicago, died today at noon at his residence, 27 Clifton avenue. He was on several occasions a member of the Executive committee of both the Northwestern and the Mississippi Valley Rowing associations, besides Commodore of the Chicago navy. Mr. Corbett was a brother of John Corbett, who was champion oarsman of America; also William Corbett, who, with James Henderson, won the Canadian double championship for two seasons.

PURPLE WINS IN THE RAIN

NORTHWESTERN DEFEATS ILLINOIS BY SCORE OF 6 TO 2.

First Victory of the Year for Coach Hollister's Men Is a Waterloo for Huff's Proteges—Pitcher Hill Batted Out of Game in Sixth Inning, When Home Team Takes Lead with Three Runs—Shower Delays Contest Twenty Minutes.

Flushed with their victory over the maroons the baseball players representing the University of Illinois went to Evanston yesterday confident of easily defeating the team of Northwestern, but the purple players succeeded in knocking Hill out of the box and then proceeded to get a few more hits off Lundgren. When the game was called at the end of the eighth inning, because of darkness, the score stood: Northwestern, 6; Illinois, 2.

No one thought Northwestern would win its first game by defeating the strong Illinois, but when the game was over the spectators were able to find several reasons why the purple score should have been larger. Both teams started out well, and there seemed to be prospects of a close game until Illinois made two runs in the second inning. The small body of spectators then thought there was no chance for the purple, but as the sturdy Methodist players kept hammering at the leather the hopes of their supporters began to rise, and reached the culminating point when Lundgren was substituted for Hill.

Rain interfered in the sixth inning and Umpire Jevne called time to wait for the downpour to cease. Fear then came into the heart of the Northwestern rooters, for if the score should be decided by the even innings Illinois would win 2 to 1. After a wait of twenty minutes, however, the rain ceased, the game went on, and the three runs which Northwestern had just scored were chalked up.

Dr. Hollister reversed his rule and sent his men to bat first. Three of them were retired in rapid succession, and Illinois went to bat confident of immediately pounding out another victory on the way to the Western championship. The first man walked, but the next three were not good enough stickers to get to the initial bag.

Northwestern was blanked again in the second, only four men facing Hill. Illinois decided to start the trouble, and Higgins waited for his base, but was caught at home in his attempt to score on Develde's single. The latter was forced out at second by Matthew's short hit to Jackson. Matthews stole second and was brought home by Lotz's two-bagger. Hill made a hit and scored Lotz, who had stolen second, but the next man up flew out, and the agony of the purple was over for the remainder of the game.

In the third inning Northwestern had three men on base with two out, but the next man up failed to connect. A rapid double play, started by Cook, the Northwestern Law School man, who formerly played on Brown, was responsible for Illinois' downfall in the third. Smiley scored for the purple in the fourth on an error by Cook, who was decidedly off color, and hits by West and Booth.

Nothing further was done until the sixth, when Hill was slaughtered. Smiley, the first man up, banged a home run over the right field fence. Johnson got a base, was advanced by West's hit, and both scored on Booth's two-bagger. Lundgren was then substituted, and shortly after Booth was caught stealing. Bemis went out. Jackson then hit a three-bagger into center field, but rain prevented further play for some time. Cermack struck out when the rain ceased, but Illinois was beaten.

Fleager made another run in the seventh on a combination of errors, and Booth scored in the eighth on an error and Cermack's hit. Score:

MEET AT NORTHWESTERN.

Beloit Athletes Will Try Out Purple Field and Track Men at Evanston.

A dual track and field meet will be held between the teams of Northwestern University and Beloit College at Sheppard Field this afternoon. This will be the first real try out the purple athletes have received this season and the results of the various events will decide who will be the representatives of the Methodist institution in the Western intercollegiate meet. Dr. Hollister thinks his protégés will defeat those of his brother "Jack," but it is not felt Northwestern will have a cinch on the meet.

Malcom Baird, the Northwestern mile runner, who bids fair to become as fast as Baker, the purple's representative in the same event last year, will be closely watched, as he has already done good work. Morris, the freshman runner, is expected to win the two-mile run.

It is said Beloit is strong in the dashes, but it is going to take fast work to defeat Scheiner, Elliott, and Stahl. Kincaid is expected to win the low hurdles, while the high hurdles are conceded to Johnson. Beloit ought to win the shot put, as Northwestern is weak in this event. Arthur Baird, the lengthy Egyptian, will have an easy time in the pole vault and the high jump. Northwestern is weak in the broad jump and the discus, and it will take better work than that already done to win the hammer throw. The half and the quarter are doubtful, but Stahl or Baird is expected to capture one of them.

Manual Training-Oak Park Meet.

Notre Dame's Track Men.

South Bend, Ind., May 2.—[Special.]—On account of the excellent performance of Notre Dame's track men Trainer Moulton is thinking of taking a team of nine men to the Buffalo Exposition. Today five men ran the quarter under :52, Gearin finishing first in :51 2-5. The team has been cut down to eleven men. This number will be retained for the rest of the season.

Harvard's Fifty Giants.

Cambridge, Mass., May 2.—The first fifty Harvard men in the strength test competition have been chosen. They made 34,089 points, or 1,182 less than Columbia, the figures given out last night by Dr. Savage of Columbia for her fifty men being 65,271.51, breaking all previous records.

GOSSIP OF THE FIGHTERS.

Sieloff and Supples to Meet at Milwaukee Tomorrow—Sharkey and Russell Fight Tonight.

[BY GEORGE SILER.]

Otto Sieloff, who, it appears, has caught his second fighting wind, and "Curly" Supples are scheduled to box six rounds under the auspices of the Milwaukee Boxing club at Milwaukee tomorrow night. This will be the second meeting of this pair of lightweights, the first being a twenty-round affair at Akron, O. The contest went the limit and Sieloff won.

The preliminaries to the Sieloff-Supples bout are as follows: "Battling" Nelson vs. Charles Berry, "Young" Nunzie vs. Mickey Riley, George Locks vs. Johnnie Stone, and Billy Murphy vs. Fred Coop.

Tom Sharkey and Fred Russell meet in a ten-round contest under the auspices of Colorado club at Denver tonight. Sharkey has been training nearly a month for tonight's fight. Reports say he is in the pink of condition and prepared to give Russell a beating such as he will never forget. Russell and Frank Childs met twice in Chicago and once in Denver and Childs trimmed him upon each occasion. Russell is a big, husky fellow, but his knowledge of the fighting game, scientifically speaking, is limited. He can rough it a bit, however, and is liable to do most anything, rules or no rules.

Martin Duffy and Harry Gilmore left for Toronto, Canada, yesterday, where Duffy tomorrow night meets Danny Duane, an Eastern lightweight in a twenty-round contest before the Crescent Athletic club.

Pugilist Roberts Remanded.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, May 2.—Pugilist Jack Roberts and the officials of the National Sporting club were arraigned in Bow street police court this morning on charges of manslaughter in connection with the death of Billy Smith. They were remanded for further hearing. The solicitor who conducted the prosecution contended that the affair was a prize fight and not a boxing match.

Rooney Throws MacDonald.

Alton, Ill., May 2.—[Special.]—John J. Rooney, the Chicago wrestler, defeated Bob MacDonald, the Canadian champion, here tonight. Rooney won the first fall in twenty-two minutes and the second in twenty minutes. Both falls were on the strangle hold. The fight was fierce, as there was an intense feeling of antipathy existing between the men. Dr. Wilkinson of Alton was the referee.

Notes of the Golfers.

The directors of the Western Golf association will meet this afternoon to fix the date and location of the annual championship.

Since coming from California Willie Smith's equanimity has been much disturbed by the reports circulated about his defeat by Chester Norton at Catalina Island. The Midlothian professional is too good a sportsman to mind a defeat, but he does object to statements credited to Horton about it. The young Evanston professional is reported to have placed himself on an equality with Smith, and the latter is now out with a challenge to meet Horton in a 72-hole match, half to be played at Midlothian and half at Evanston. He will concede Horton a start of six holes and play him for a purse of $200 or more.

FIRST RACES ON TRACK AT WORTH.

New Course Opens and Good Crowd Sees The Conqueror II. Win Handicap.

ROBERT WADDELL SECOND

Three Derby Colts Reveal Their Form and Operator Proves Surprise.

BETTORS LOSE ON POSSART.

Chicago's newest racetrack was thrown open to the public yesterday afternoon. Sixteen miles out of the city, on the western division of the Wabash railroad, the Worth track is the farthest from the city boundary line of any course that has been built for Chicago race patrons with the exception of the temporary affair constructed at Ideal Park, in Wisconsin, in 1896. The nearest town of any size is Blue Island, three and a half miles southeast. Running just back of the grand stand is One Hundred and Eleventh street, formerly known as Morgan avenue. Four miles due east on One Hundred and Eleventh street are Mount Olivet and Mount Greenwood Cemeteries, and a mile farther on is the Rock Island railroad station in Morgan Park.

The new track is situated in an attractive stretch of farm land, and the scene from the grand stand savors more genuinely of the country than that around any other race course in this vicinity. Everything was bright and fresh yesterday, and the faithful patrons of racing who had been attending the Lakeside races felt they had changed from a desert to a garden. The grand stand is a graceful and commanding structure, high and roomy, and possessing the appearance of solidity. The "lawn" in front of the stand, leading to the track, is of solid cement. Under the stand is a huge betting ring, big enough to accommodate a Derby day crowd, while to the left is the paddock, which is also a first-class structure.

Track Proves to Be Fast.

The track itself proved a pleasant surprise. It has been regarded as exceptionally safe, but it was anticipated it would be a little slow. This illusion was dispelled by the first race, from which the excellent time of 1:13 4-5 was hung up.

About 5,000 people made the trip to the track on the opening day. The main attraction in a racing way was the $2,000 handicap, at a mile and a sixteenth, in which an excellent field was engaged at weights that made the outcome appear uncertain and led to the favorite being at a price so good as 5 to 2. The race resulted disappointingly, The Conqueror II. winning so easily as to leave no question about the outcome during the last half mile of the race. Robert Waddell, the American Derby candidate, made his first start in the West, and finished second. Inasmuch as he was giving away great lumps of weight to all of his opponents the race makes Bradley's gelding look more formidable than ever for the big Washington Park event. At the same time Possart was exploded as a Derby possibility. The handsome Pontico colt, greatly favored in the weights and with Dominick, a crack jockey, in the saddle, was a betting favorite, but he showed only brief speed and was nowhere near the front at the finish.

The rest of the racing was notable for the success of long shots, the exciting duel between Boney Boy and Sevoy, and the revelation of a Derby colt possibly worthy of consideration in Operator, owned by H. B. Durham.

Conqueror II. Wins Handicap.

The Conqueror II. first by five lengths, Robert Waddell second by a length and a half, Louisville third by a nose, and Possart, the favorite, nowhere, was the result of the handicap.

Possart was installed an equal 7 to 2 favorite with Robert Waddell in the opening betting. The crowd, however, was Possart mad and swarmed around the bookmakers eager to back Possart at any old price. The "bookies" took all they wanted at 3½, then cut to 3, and just before post time 5 to 2 was the prevailing price. Waddell's price in the meantime had gone up to 7 to 1. The Conqueror's odds fluctuated from 8 to 1 to 5 to 1.

The delay at the post was tedious, made so by Possart's actions and Crowhurst's, Seaton's and Narvaez's persistency in trying to beat the barrier and not lining up according to their positions. When Dick Dwyer did swish his bunting Louisville, Waddell, and The Conqueror were in front, heads apart, the others, excepting Andes, all well up, and the latter standing flatfooted and in the hands of the assistant starter.

It was a grand horse race for half the journey. The entire field, with the exception of Andes, who was left at the post, were lapped racing down the backstretch, with The Conqueror II. leading Possart by a half length. The Pontico colt "chucked it" before reaching the far turn, and The Conqueror, increasing his lead from that point, won easily by five lengths. Waddell came from behind with a fine burst of speed and secured second place. Louisville and Star Chamber indulged in a fierce struggle for third money, which the first named won by a nose.

The first race, the Inaugural Dash, at six furlongs, went to Boney Boy, the second choice, by a nose, after a hair raising finish with Sevoy, in 1:13 4-5; good time. Joe Martin, with Crowhurst up, delayed the start by running away. Cora Havill II. at 9 to 1 took the second in a gallop. Operator, an American Derby candidate, out of "Hardy" Durham's stable, backed from 6 to 1 down to 2 to 1, showed good racing qualities by winning the third event. The winner and Boomerack ran heads apart for three-quarters of a mile and fought it out down the stretch. Operator had the most speed and stamina and won by nearly two lengths.

Harry Stover put Our Lizzie under the wire at 6 to 1 in the fifth, and Archie Zimmer got down on Trebor at from 15 to 1 to 25 to 1 and cashed in the last race.

Notes of the Turf.

Jockeys Crowhurst, Narvaez, and Seaton were fined $10 each by Starter Dwyer in the handicap.

Fireside was the medium of a big play and was backed from 5 to 1 down to 7 to 5. She failed to get a look in.

Crowhurst broke both reins trying to pull up Joe Martin when the horse ran away from the post in the Inaugural.

The train service was excellent and the railroad came near keeping its promise of making the run in thirty-five minutes.

Andes, who was left at the post in the handicap, was sent over the course by Germley for an exercise and ran two miles and a half before he could pull him up.

Trebor was a good thing at 25 to 1, but the regulars that played him at even money at Lakeside did not think so and naturally were surprised to see him beat Rhinelander, the 6 to 5 favorite.

The favorites were bowled over as fast as they were set up. Operator, winner of the third race, was an equal 2 to 1 favorite with Boomerack and therefore cannot be considered a clean cut first choice.

The Conqueror's victory was the subject of much unfavorable comment and caused almost universal dissatisfaction. It is no exaggeration to say the horse's race yesterday was twenty-five pounds better than any race he ran at Lakeside. Thus he got in at false weights and while the rest of the field in the handicap was struggling along under proper weight he was romping along to victory. Owner Vincent backed The Conqueror heavily and won a small fortune, but it is said he also played the horse heavily when he lost at Lakeside.

Fourteen regular, two field, and one combination book cut in at Worth yesterday for one day only. The block men in the big ring were George Hicks, James Murphy, Barney Sanders, Thomas Shannon, Ben Snow, James McGinnity, Horace Argo, Fred Peasch, Marcus Cartwright, Sig Lavy, Edward Austin, Barney Cunningham, Kid Weller, and Barney Wolf. Claud Varnell and James Devine ran the field books, with John Donovan in charge of the combination.

"GETAWAY" DAY AT AQUEDUCT.

Sadducee Captures the Rockaway Stakes in a Driving Finish with Trumpet—Outsiders Land in Front.

New York, May 2.—It was a characteristic "getaway" day today at Aqueduct. Only one favorite was first. Head and head finishes and generally spirited racing brought the best meeting that the Queens County Jockey club has ever held to a successful conclusion.

The Rockaway Stakes over the short seven furlong course was the feature. Sadducee, second choice at 11 to 5, beat the favorite, Trumpet, a head, making a new record for the course of 1:24⅘ over a track that was fully a second slow. Eight horses started, and Himself and Sadducee went out to make the running. Trumpet was well up for a quarter, but Burns took him back, so that rounding into the stretch he was five lengths behind Sadducee, who was a length before Himself and Speedmas. Burns then sent Trumpet up, and, catching Sadducee at the last furlong pole, a head and head drive to the wire followed. Burns held Little Michaels on Sadducee too cheaply, and the latter won by a short head.

Winner, ch. c., by Pursebearer—Complete. Start fair. Won driving, second handily. Billionaire, off running, was lucky, and is steadily improving. Curtsey ran away. Phoenician, off badly, and shut off on the turn, with good luck and good handling could not have lost. Mercer was claimed by T. H. Griffin.

Sadducee showed his usual high speed, was lucky, and in a driving finish showed the utmost gameness, but his seasoned condition surely won for him. He was bid up to $2,500 by N. Bennington, who also claimed Trumpet. Trumpet was easily best, but failed right at the end, after seemingly having the race won, and was evidently short.

ROUGH WORK OF JOCKEYS.

SEVERAL INSTANCES OF FOULING IN LOUISVILLE RACES.

Jaubert Is Set Back for Interference, but No Penalty Is Imposed in the Other Cases—Cochran on Miss Soak Is Caught Napping by Trinity Bell—Good Showing by Princess Otillie—August Belmont and Other New-Yorkers at the Downs.

Louisville, Ky., May 2.—[Special.]—The program for the fourth day at Churchill Downs was made up of overnight events, and the sport was ordinary. Twenty books did business for the Derby day crowd, but there were six less in line this afternoon.

The judges disqualified Jaubert after he had finished second in the 2-year-old event. Hans Wagner, the favorite, aided by a flying start, won the race, and Jaubert was the best of the others, but Britton could not keep him out from the rail in the final eighth, and Scoggan's colt swerved across Man-of-War and Baccle.

The judges might have gone further during the afternoon and disqualified a few more for performing the same trick. Miss Soak nearly knocked down Suave, but as the bump happened at the quarter pole it was overlooked and the race was allowed to stand as it finished. Trinity Bell, backed from 10 to 1 to 7 to 2, caught Miss Soak at the sixteenth pole and Jockey Cochran was so surprised he forgot to ride, and Trinity Bell beat Miss Soak home by a length. Another case of rough riding happened in the six and a half furlongs, in which Princess Otillie and Beauty Book were equal favorites. Rood, who was backed from 50 to 1 to 15 to 1, was badly cut off on the stretch turn and had to be pulled up. Jockey Adams took him around the outside and at the head of the stretch fouled Farell so badly that Gilmore had to pull up. Rood finished third, beaten a short head by Beauty Book. Princess Otillie, after getting away last, was beautifully ridden by J. Woods, and got home a winner by a length.

Chorus Boy outclassed his company in the mile event. He was bid up to $800, which was $200 over his entered price, and was retained by his owner.

There was a distinguished party of New-Yorkers at the track, headed by August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey club. Mr. Belmont has been visiting his breeding farm near Lexington.

Schorr Talks of Alard Scheck.

Memphis, Tenn., May 2.—[Special.]—John W. Schorr arrived here today from Louisville, where he pulled off the victory of his colt Eddie Busch, on Wednesday and thereby made a "killing." Mr. Schorr stated that had it not been for the defeat of Alard Scheck in the Derby he would have left Kentucky $50,000 winner. He said he would retain Scheck and would start him in the American Derby. Shortly after the Kentucky Derby was run he was offered $8,000 for Alard Scheck. "My son advised me to sell," said Schorr, "but I have not lost all confidence in the horse, although he has not won a race this season. I could have sold him for $20,000 five weeks ago, and if he isn't worth more than $8,000 now I'll keep him for breeding purposes."

PARKHURST HITS AT VAN HORNE.

Says Fort Sheridan Commandant Did Not Know What He Was Talking About.

PASTOR'S MIND MADE UP.

Implies Canteen Report Will Refute Stories of Increased Drunkenness.

AIDED BY SALOONKEEPERS.

The Rev. M. M. Parkhurst, chairman of the committee appointed by the ministers of Chicago to investigate the conditions at Fort Sheridan and Highwood since the abolishment of the post canteen, paid his respects to Colonel Van Horne yesterday in the following language:

"We cared little for what Colonel Van Horne said, for he has been at the post not more than sixty days and knows nothing about the true condition of things. He didn't know what he was talking about while we were in his office. In the language of one who heard him, he was both 'irritable and uncivil.'"

The wordy encounter between the ministers and Colonel Van Horne has not dampened the ardor of Dr. Parkhurst in his efforts to prove that post saloons are unnecessary evils. In fact, he already has made up his mind that there is no truth in the reports of disorder and drunkenness at Fort Sheridan and the neighboring Village of Highwood as a result of the abolishment of the canteen.

About Agreed on Report.

Dr. Parkhurst let it be inferred yesterday that the report of the committee of which he is chairman would be a wholesale contradiction of these reports, although he insisted that he had no knowledge of the opinions gained by his fellow-ministers who called upon Colonel Van Horne and the officials of Highwood in search of information.

"We find all the statements that there has been rioting and drunkenness at Highwood because the canteen has been abolished at Fort Sheridan are not supported by facts," said Dr. Parkhurst. "The number of saloons has not increased at Highwood since the canteen was closed, and we have the testimony of the saloonkeepers themselves that their sales have not increased one cent on account of the patronage of the soldiers."

The report of the committee will be made next Monday before the various ministers' meetings which take place that day. According to Dr. Parkhurst's statement it will contain the separate conclusions of each member of the committee, and a summary of the whole report which will constitute a recommendation to the churches of the United States that the action of Congress on the canteen question be approved.

Church Papers to Publish Report.

"Thirty millions of people will have an opportunity to read our report," said Dr. Parkhurst, "for it will be sent to thirty-two church papers for publication. We shall suggest to all ministers located near army posts to make an investigation similar to the one we have made, and next December when Congress assembles the evidence gathered will be submitted if any attempt is made to repeal the anti-canteen law."

Affidavits from President Hogan and Town Marshal Moore that the abolishment of the canteen has not caused any additional drunkenness and disorder in Highwood will form an important feature of the report, according to Dr. Parkhurst.

Moral Question Not Considered.

"Are you satisfied there has been any improvement in the morals of the soldiers since the canteen was closed?" was asked of Dr. Parkhurst.

"That question was not under consideration," was the reply. "We simply started out to find whether it was true that drunkenness had increased or whether the abolishment of the canteen had been detrimental to the soldiers. From what we have gathered in the form of evidence we conclude no harm has been done by closing the post saloon."

While the committee has been promised statistics from Fort Sheridan showing the number of soldiers arrested for drunkenness during the last six months, Dr. Parkhurst has small hope of getting these figures in time to incorporate them in the committee's report. The figures will show the strength of the garrison at different periods that a comparison may be obtained of the effects of the canteen closing.

Dr. Parkhurst said his committee might ask to be continued long enough to observe the conditions at Fort Sheridan when the soldiers receive their monthly pay. Payday comes next week, probably on Wednesday. At the paymaster's office in the Pullman Building yesterday the exact date on which the money would be distributed could not be learned.

Indignant at Colonel Van Horne.

National officers of the W. C. T. U. in Evanston were indignant yesterday at the published statement of Colonel Van Horne of Fort Sheridan, who is credited with having reflected in an uncomplimentary manner on the work of the W. C. T. U. among the soldiers. Mrs. Helen M. Barker said:

"Colonel Van Horne takes an uncharitable and biased view of the situation. I do not believe that any other organization in the country has done more good for the soldiers than the W. C. T. U. We have made it our aim to uplift them in every way possible and have spent a good deal of time and considerable money in carrying out our plans. Our line of work among the army men is open to inspection, and we have no apologies to make for what we have done."

M'COY WINS A CASE IN COURT.

Defeats Attempt of Anti-Saloon League to Convict Him for Violating the Midnight Law.

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—Kid McCoy has defeated the Anti-Saloon league despite a ponderous array of evidence, purported to have been collected against him by the Rev. John Quincy Adams Henry and a few other amateur detectives. The pugilist has thereby gained the right to continue selling drinks, both hard and soft, in his café in Broadway.

Justice Truax, in the Supreme Court, handed down a decision in favor of McCoy today. The case was heard before Alfred R. Page as referee. The Rev. John Quincy Adams Henry visited McCoy's place at a late hour. He was accompanied by M. S. Louks and M. A. Watson, and, it is alleged, they were much shocked to see young women sitting around the tables. One of them, said the Rev. John Quincy Adams Henry, came to him and said: "Buy me a drink." The preacher admits he complied, but ordered a glass of beer for himself, while the young woman partook of whisky. The reverend person alleges it was late, and he, being superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, agreed to aid in an attempt to have McCoy's license revoked.

According to the belief of the referee, both sides had a great deal of evidence, but that of McCoy's adherents, among whom were his brother, Homer, and several employés in the café, was the stronger. The Justice agreed with Page.

May Fight at Grand Rapids.

Billy Madden, who is with Gus Ruhlin and Denver Ed Martin at Grand Rapids, has practically matched Denver Ed Martin and Frank Childs to fight before the Olympic Athletic club at Grand Rapids about the third week in May. Matchmaker Fallon, hearing that the police of Detroit would not allow big fellows to box there, made a proposition to Madden which was accepted. Summerfield & Essig in behalf of Childs wired to Madden to close the deal, and all that remains to be done now is to name the date and post the forfeits. The proposed contest is booked for the Auditorium, which is large enough to accommodate a big crowd.

STAGE FOLK VISIT DOGS.

ENTRIES WITH THEATRICAL OWNERS CENTER OF INTEREST.

Anna Held, Clara Lipman, E. J. Morgan, and Will J. Davis Among the Exhibiters at the Armory Kennel Show—E. S. Willard Is Among the Visitors During the Day—J. Wallace Wakem Wins Many Prizes—Other Awards of the Day.

Actors, actresses, and dogs divided the attention at the Mascoutah Kennel club yesterday, for it was theatrical day. Clara Lipman, who brought with her two of her pets, was the first of the theatrical people to arrive. From that time on they came in twos and threes, and those best known were followed about and stared at like the canine exhibits. Most of the theatrical visitors had dogs on exhibition and, though none of them won prizes, the personality of their owners made them interesting.

Among the actors and actresses who had dogs entered are the following:

Miss Clara Lipman and Louis Mann—Fox terrier Pinochle and greyhound Dusty.

E. J. Morgan of "The Christian" company—Boston terrier Gloria A.

Harry Somers, assistant manager Illinois Theater—Fox terrier Robert J. Ingersoll.

Miss Anna Held—Fancy dog, Daisy.

Bunth and Rudd, vaudeville team—Two Yorkshire terriers, Vicky and Minnie, and a bulldog, Jack.

Will J. Davis—Fox terrier.

"Pinochle" fell asleep and Miss Lipman would not allow it to be disturbed. The greyhound, dazed by the noise, and deserted by its owner, whined all the time. Anna Held's dog, advertised by a huge sign over its kennel, drew large crowds all day.

Some Theatrical People Present.

Among the actors and actresses present during the day were: E. S. Willard, E. J. Morgan, Bunth and Rudd, Miss Lipman, Louis Mann, Will J. Davis, Harry Somers, Miss Maud Lambert, Miss Maude L. Berri, Miss Lillian Lancaster, and Reginald Roberts.

The judging was finished during the day. Miss Lillian Morean of New York entered a Japanese spaniel, "Ch. Mollo," which has won over 150 prizes. It won again yesterday, and its owner could hardly find a woman exhibiter in that class who would speak to her. Miss Haroldine Peck watched her fox terrier personally all day and explained its good points to the judges.

When the judges arrived at the fox and Boston terrier classes they found, they said, the best exhibits of these two breeds the West, and possibly the country, ever has seen. J. Wallace Wakem had on show "Seldon Stuyve," by Elmwood Varsity, out of Seldon Soubrette, and it took two first and three special prizes. In the Boston terrier class W. C. Titcomb's "Caution" captured the bulk of the prizes, and his kennel took every special cup offered in that class.

Tomorrow will be children's day.

BURKHARDT'S FINE BOWLING.

Commercial Champion Averages 233 2-3 in Individual Championship Series—Stoike a Good Second.

Veteran "Gus" Burkhardt, champion of the Commercial league and winner of the Dr. Timm trophy in the national tournament, did phenomenal work in the individual State championship last night. Totals of 216, 246, 248, all well earned, netted him an average of 233⅔, put him at the head of the list, and gave him a lead of seventy-five pins over Bangart and Chisholm, who are tied for second place. With this big advantage he is a strong favorite for the championship, which he is sure to capture unless he falls down badly in the final series.

His performance is one of the best of the local season. Only once did he miss the head pin, and in the three games he made but one error and had no breaks. The error was made in the last frame of the second game, when he missed a single pin spare. Not one of his twenty-five strikes could be classed as a fluke. In his last game he finished with six strikes and an eight count.

Next to his performance that of Stoike, the Northwest champion, was best. Although handicapped by a badly cut finger, which had to be bandaged several times, he pluckily stuck to his work and rounded out the fine average of 215. This put him in fourth place. Bangart again rolled consistently, making no errors.

Harry Chisholm, as on the night previous, rolled in championship form, hitting the pins clean and going through the three games without a break. He was charged with two errors. Worden came strong with a total of 612 and made only one error. Klingenberg was another of the cracks who rolled almost perfectly, getting no breaks and only one error in his score of 626. Champion Thompson had a bad night and fell to eighteenth place.

The final series, which will be rolled tonight, will be interesting, as, with the exception of Burkhardt, the leaders are well bunched. Scores:

ATTACK PRESENT SCHOOL SYSTEM.

Speakers at Child-Study Congress Allege It Injures Health and Growth.

ASK FOR SHORTER HOURS.

Colonel Parker Tells of "Tortures" Endured by Pupils in Lower Grades.

MEET THREE TIMES TODAY.

"The American Child," its present failings and future possibilities, was discussed from many points of view last night at the opening meeting of the seventh annual congress of the Illinois Society for Child Study in the Fine Arts Building. Dr. Derexa Morey-Errant, President of the society, criticised the present school system. Colonel Francis W. Parker told of the "horrible tortures" endured by the public school pupils. Tommy Morgan said the whole fault with the system was due to the lack of confidence in the state.

"The conditions in our schools," said Dr. Errant, "are largely opposed to the laws of health and growth. They do not offer the opportunities they should for physical growth. The change from the outdoor life of the farm to the indoor life of the city and factory has come so suddenly the schools have not had time to provide for it. There is nothing to take the place of exercise in the schools. We find the children confined for many hours, under conditions which are not always good in sanitary respects, and held to intellectual work entirely.

"Investigations show there is a large amount of ill health among the children of the country. The first demand of the school system is for a shortening of hours. There are many studies that can be carried on out doors. With this plan comes increased training in observation. Attention also should be given to the seating of children and to the number in each room."

Colonel Parker Talks of Torture.

Colonel Parker was severe in his denunciation of school methods which he says he at one time practiced.

"A total depravity fresh from the lower regions," he said, "has tortured many children. We have said the child must learn to work and because it needs discipline the work must not be made attractive. This work in the school consisted of learning words, of learning to spell. The child was kept up to it by the strap and ferrule. Children have had to face drudgery against which you older people would rebel if it were forced on you. The common school and the private school have been the most unnatural places in the world for a child."

Miss Mary McDowell of the University Settlement spoke of the child from the social standpoint. She said the child, like the American race, is in the process of formation and should not alarm people.

"The real American child," she said, "has many characteristics that make us tremble. The potential American child, however, should fill us full of hope. It is full of possibilities. It is gathering the best from the lives of the many people who make up our population. More democracy in the church, the school, and the home will help solve the problem. The aristocracy of the parent must to an extent be done away with. The 'chumminess' that is coming to exist between children and parents may find some peculiar expressions, but it is in the right direction."

Children Like to Do Something.

"The divorce of child life from nature is one of the most damnable things against which we have to contend in the city," said Professor Graham Taylor. "The school should stand for the leisure and recreation of the child. Americans as a race are intensely active. Children like to do something. Emigration and immigration are extremely pathetic in their influence upon the child. The American people are migratory. Few realize the effect of transient life on children. They are deprived of the things that are substantial and enduring. The schools should be built in a style that will suggest the enduring landmarks of one generation after another."

Mr. Morgan argued that children are made by society. They are cast, he said, in the mold of the small world of society about them. If people would realize the power of the state as contrasted to individual power and influence he believed the state could cast the children in the mold of ideal manhood and womanhood.

SEEK STAGE LIFE; LOSE CASH.

Would-Be Actors Complain That J. F. Palmer Took Advantage of Their Ambitions.

J. F. Palmer, said to be the proprietor of "Palmer's Theatrical agency," will face a charge of obtaining money by a confidence game in Justice Prindiville's court at the Harrison Street Police Station this morning. The charge is preferred by the members of one of Palmer's companies, who assert the theatrical promoter has swindled them by securing their money on promise of paying them $20 a week for their services. Palmer, it is charged, would exact small amounts from the would-be players on the pretext that he would return the money when his company should go on the road. One company got as far as Valparaiso, Ind., the complaints say, and there the box office receipts disappeared.

President Mitchell to Confer with Civic Federation Committee with View to Trade Agreement.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 2.—President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers is on his way to New York to attend a meeting of a special committee appointed by the National Civic Federation to devise means of promoting trade agreements between employers and their employés. The object is to perfect some kind of an agreement between labor and capital that will prevent strikes and lockouts, which are so costly to both. It has been suggested that in all branches of labor the employers and their employés enter into a yearly contract by signing a scale, as the miners, tinplate, glass workers, and other trades do now.

Address by Edinburg Teacher.

The commencement address was delivered by the Rev. Marcus Dods, D. D., professor in the New College at Edinburg, Scotland. He spoke of the duties of a minister of the gospel at the present time, and advocated thorough research and reverent criticism of all sources upon which the structure of the Christian faith is built. He also advised ministers to adapt their sermons to the intellectual capacity of the members of their congregation.

The Rev. Ezra B. Newcomb, President of the Board of Directors, also delivered an address and announced that William H. Foulkes had been awarded a fellowship in recognition of his excellent work during the last three years, providing for a year's trip abroad. George McKnight Layman was presented the Fleming H. Revell prize of $50 worth of books for the highest excellence at the seminary.

In the afternoon a meeting and later on a banquet of the alumni of the seminary was held at the chapel.

Of the graduating class, it was announced that twelve students had offered themselves for foreign missionary work. Six already have been assigned by the board in New York, as follows: William M. Barrett and William N. Blair to Corea; John H. Lawrence to India; Chauncey Case to China; Walter O. McIntyre to the Philippines; and James S. Cunningham to western Africa. In addition to these, Samuel Cameron Moore has been elected instructor of the Protestant college at Beirut, Syria.

Diplomas for Young Dentists.

One hundred and niety-six graduates of the Northwestern University Dental School received diplomas at the annual commencement exercises of the college held in the Fine Arts building yesterday. By the faculty it is believed to be the largest class ever graduated from any dental institution. Reference was made to its being the largest class ever graduated by several of the speakers, among them being Daniel Bonbright, LL. D.

Dr. Sheppard also made allusion to the possibility of much larger classes when the dental department of Northwestern University was located in its new quarters in the Tremont House. The trustees of the university, he said, had hoped to have the dental school along with the pharmacy and law departments in the new quarters by the first of the school year. Complications regarding the remodeling of the Tremont House made it probable, he said, that the building would not be ready for occupancy before Jan. 1.

The invocation at the exercises was made by the Rev. Amos W. Patton, A. M., D. D., following which the salutatory address was delivered by James Jacob Hoffer. The doctorate address was made by Edward C. Kirk, dean of the dental department of the University of Pennsylvania. Daniel Bonbright, LL. D., acting President of Northwestern University, presented the diplomas. In the evening graduates and alumni of the Northwestern University Dental School attended a banquet in the Victoria Hotel, at which over 300 persons were present. Arthur V. Hargett acted as toastmaster and the following responded to toasts: W. T. Eckley, M. D.; H. C. Puckett, C. P. Pruyn, D. D. S.; R. D. Sheppard, D. D.; J. G. Spalding, D. D. S.; W. H. Falloon, D. D. S.; Elgin McWhinney, D. D. S.; J. W. Erringer, D. D. S.

LAW FOR EVANSTON DRUNKS.

Chief Knight Says They Will Be Prosecuted After Fair Warning Has Been Given.

Newell C. Knight, the broker serves-without-price Chief of Police of Evanston, declares that drunken men will not be tolerated on the streets of the suburb, and that every case will be prosecuted after fair warning has been given. One of these offenders was the sole catch yesterday by Chief Knight's subordinates. He was Jacob Hatfield, a junk dealer living at 1817 Ridge avenue. After he had been allowed to sober up he was taken before the new Chief.

"So you have been getting full?" inquired Mr. Knight, with some dignity.

The offender replied in German and an interpreter was sent for. Then Hatfeld explained he had been in Chicago with friends and had taken too much.

"I'll let you go this time," said the Chief, but the next time you are brought here in an intoxicated condition you will have to suffer the consequences."

Hatfeld expressed his gratitude in enthusiastic German and shuffled away.

"I don't intende to be too hard on those fellows at first," said the Chief, later. "I intend to give them a chance to learn that the Police department is under new management, but after the first warning they will have to look out for themselves."

WANTED: MAN OF ANTI-DUST IDEA.

Doctors Agree Street Brooms Menace Health and Blocki Seeks Remedy.

GIVES ORDERS TO POLICE.

Commissioner Tells Special Detail of Duties Under "City Clean" Laws.

VARIES SWEEPING PROGRAM

DISEASES AGGRAVATED BY DUST.

The dust of Chicago keeps the eyes of citizens in an almost constant state of inflammation. It is possible for permanent injury to result from the constant irritation. Its less serious result is to produce conjunctivitis. It may cause granular lids, not in the sense people speak of it, but in the sense we understand it—the disease of the far East. The constant rubbing of particles against the membranes of the eyes has a tendency to cause them to harden to resist it, and may diminish the vision.—Dr. J. H. Collins.

The last few days of dust storms have increased materially the number of persons suffering from inflamed membranes. They have caused acute nasal trouble and have aggravated diseases of the throat. They are responsible for the prevalence of catarrh among Chicago people. They also carry tubercular germs.—Dr. Moreau R. Brown.

Conditions in Chicago are different from those in any other large city and they demand original methods of treatment. The dust of the streets is conducive to a number of diseases. These conditions should be met. I have suggested the substitution of asphalt pavement for the granite block. The latter cannot be cleansed thoroughly and the dust accumulates in the crevices. Asphalt is one cure that Chicago could use.—Dr. A. R. Reynolds, Commissioner of Health.

While experts agree that the dust stirred by the brooms of the street sweepers is a serious menace to health, Commissioner of Public Works Blocki is free to admit that no satisfactory way to abate the nuisance has been discovered.

Any one with an idea is invited to send it to the City Hall. Even though the idea be impracticable, the man who suggests it will receive the thanks of the Commissioner of Public Works and of the Health department.

By some members of the City Council it is recommended that the city take the initiative and offer a reward for a new and satisfactory method to cope with Chicago's peculiar conditions.

Commissioner of Public Works Blocki varied the program of street cleaning last night by ordering eight sweeping machines to start at 11 o'clock instead of 6, and in his efforts to abate the dust nuisance he was aided by the rain. But the man with an idea must have a plan for permanent relief.

Chance to Win Fame.

"I wish I had it," said Commissioner Blocki. "The man who can furnish it will become famous in Chicago. The change which will be made in street sweeping to prevent the scattering of dust may not prove practicable, as it will cost more and may eat up the appropriation. It will make the 'pick-up' men work until late in the morning. We intend to try the plan, however. Orders have been issued to the sprinkling wagons to use more care, but they are faced with the possibility of getting too much water on the streets and making it impossible for the machines to work."

Health Commissioner Reynolds suggested the substitution of asphalt pavement for granite block as one means of reducing the dust pest.

"You will have to get the wide tire ordinance passed first," said Commissioner Blocki. "The asphalt cannot stand the heavy traffic with narrow tired wheels."

Policemen Under Orders.

The Commissioner called to the Council chamber the 105 policemen who have been detailed to "city clean" duty and explained their duties to them. He said that, under the existing ordinance, he would be able to keep the city clean—except the dust.

"It will take more than six months, and more than nine months," he said, "but we can do it if the Council does not repeal the ordinance."

The 105 policemen will start out on Monday morning for a house-to-house canvass of the city. They will carry copies of the clean city ordinance, and every householder will be told of their provisions. The policemen are under orders to distribute the ordinances first and then to assume general supervision of the wards under the direction of the ward superintendents. They were told to warn persons seen throwing refuse in the streets, and to make arrests for the second offense.

The policemen will report to the ward superintendents at 8 o'clock every morning and at 5 o'clock every afternoon. They will enforce the separation of garbage, in accordance with the ordinances, and will prevent the overloading of wagons. They will see that street sprinkling is done, and enforce all the provisions of the clean city ordinances.

Meanwhile Superintendent Solon says that he may ask the Council on Monday night for a permanent detail of 100 men to work with the street cleaning bureau. The 105 policemen now on duty are on temporary detail.

Roach Promises to Sprinkle.

Meanwhile, Alderman Patterson, as a result of sending a request to General Manager Roach of the Chicago Union Traction company, has secured an order for the systematic sprinkling of the company's right of way in the following streets within the limits of the Twentieth Ward: Madison, Van Buren, Harrison, Taylor, Paulina, and Robey streets, and Western and Center avenues.

"The sprinklers stop at the boundaries of the ward," the Alderman said. "No matter what happens outside, our streets are to be sprinkled."

DRIVES THROUGH MANY ALLEYS.

Alderman Hunter Covers Forty-two Miles of Thirty-fifth Ward—Finds Much Waste Paper.

Alderman Hunter of the Thirty-fifth Ward has practically equaled the inspection record made on an automobile by Alderman Scully of the Thirteenth Ward by driving through forty-two miles of Thirty-fifth Ward streets and alleys in a morning. Mr. Hunter, however, used a light spring wagon and a fleet horse. He says he found the alleys thickly littered with paper, which had been thrown out by property-owners and bill peddlers.

Alderman Hunter's plan for awakening the attention of the people to the condition of affairs is to placard the ward with cards containing a request to keep the streets and alleys clean, and to insert advertisements to the same effect in the local papers.

Alderman Scully says his automobile trip, in which he covered forty-two and a half miles of alleys in an 800-pound automobile, was made in two and a half hours.

Since then he frequently has made the same trip, and is convinced that the automobile is the ideal machine for street and alley inspection.

HIRSCH REBUKES A CRITIC

RABBI DECLARES HE IS OPPOSED TO YIDDISH THEATERS.

Denies Accepting an Invitation to Rechristening of Irwin Playhouse and Asserts He Rebuked Manager Glickman for Using His Name — Would Have Ghetto District Broken Up and Jews Scattered in Small Colonies as American Citizens.

Dr. Emil G. Hirsch denies he accepted an invitation to the rechristening of Irwin's Theater. On the contrary, he says he took Manager Glickman to task for the unwarranted use of his name in connection with the event. He declares he never was in sympathy with the project and resents the insinuations made by Manager Glickman from the stage of the theater Wednesday night.

Dr. Hirsch was advertised as one who would take part in the exercises in renaming the Yiddish theater. Samuel Alschuler and Mayor Harrison also were advertised and both appeared. Manager Glickman declared from the stage that the eminent rabbi had deliberately broken his engagement.

"What business have I opening theaters?" said Dr. Hirsch yesterday. "I not only did not agree to appear, but in the presence of four other rabbis I told Glickman last Monday that he was taking an unwarranted liberty in using my name on his billboards, and he acknowledged that he was wrong and promised to right the matter. On Tuesday I received a letter from him in which he begged me to come over. He told me I was the best known Jew in the country and that my presence was absolutely needed. I immediately destroyed the note and thought the matter at an end, but the next day Wight Newmann came to my office and begged to me to go. I refused. Where Mr. Glickman gets the right to say I made an engagement is more than I can see.

Opposed to Yiddish Theaters.

"I do not believe in Yiddish theaters. My heart and soul are wrapped in making my people Americans in all that word implies. I am unalterably opposed to anything that will make them clannish, and the narrow sphere which now confines them, called the 'ghetto,' I desire to see broken. This the theater will not do. Manager Glickman told me his playhouse would draw the crowd that now patronizes the 10, 20, and 30 cent shows. I am not an advocate of the vaudeville show, but it has the merit at least of being carried on in a language that is a language.

"Yiddish is not a language. It is a jargon, and should not be continued. The Jews that were tossed about in the fourteenth century are responsible for it, and the additions that have come with time are marvelous. Such a language I do not believe in, and will not approve. I told Glickman so, and he realizes my position, yet he slurs at me as a reformer and praises his theater scheme.

"The Jews who believe as I do, that this craze for the ghetto is a fad, have organized all the Jewish charities that are worth anything. It was unfortunate that Israel Zangwill ever attempted to make the abode of the Jews a place for curiosity-seekers and to give it an embellishment that makes its citizens proud of it. Better for the Jewish people if they lived scattered far and wide, in groups of twenties and thirties, than crowded into a district with a population of 25,000.

Says He Is Not a Politician.

"Why should I attend such a function? I am not a politician. I do not approve of telling the Jewish people how great a race they are. I want them to forget they are exclusively Jews. When did this man Alschuler discover he loved the race as he now says he does? Why, he found out when he entered politics. Mayor Harrison spoke there because he, too, is a politician, but I have no ax to grind, and I do not intend to take part in any exercise that I believe is a step backward for my people.

"I am sorry when I hear there are bosses in the 'ghetto.' This should not be, and none of us want our people to hold the balance of power, and consequently be bought and sold like chattels. This will continue as long as the race holds tenaciously to this jargon and to its own locality, and a theater, more than anything else, will make this sort of thing continue."

VETERAN TO DIRECT DOROTHEA.

Lieutenant B. R. T. Collins Served on the Cruiser Scorpion During the Spanish War.

Lieutenant B. R. T. Collins of the Illinois Naval Militia, who has been selected to command the armed cruiser Dorothea of the United States navy on its trip from Philadelphia to Chicago, is a veteran of the Spanish war. He served as Ensign on the converted cruiser Scorpion, and took part in the blockade of Admiral Cervera's fleet in Santiago harbor. He will leave here next Wednesday, accompanied by Chief Engineer Granville Kimball, Machinists C. J. McFarland and W. B. Tulloch, and Yeoman G. C. Hurd, for Philadelphia to assume charge of the vessel, which registers 504 tons. On May 10 the remainder of the officers and crew will follow. According to present plans, the Dorothea will pass out of Delaware breakwater on May 12 and reach Buffalo about June 1. There the crew will visit the Pan-American Exposition. The ship is scheduled to arrive in Chicago on June 7.

Lieutenant B. R. T. Collins.

TWO NEW NAMES FOR JUSTICES.

E. N. Zoline and Stephen D. Griffin Recommended to Succeed A. J. Sabath and James C. Dooley

Judges of the Cook County courts met at a hurriedly called meeting yesterday afternoon, and recommended to the Governor the names of E. N. Zoline and Stephen D. Griffin in place of C. R. Jandus and John E. Owens to succeed as Justices of the Peace, A. J. Sabath and James C. Dooley, and the result was telegraphed to Governor Yates. Since Tuesday, when the first nominations were made, it was discovered that Jandus was ineligible, being a member of the State Legislature. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John E. Owens refused to accept the nomination. The hasty action of the Judges was taken that the Senate might act on the nominations before adjournment. E. N. Zoline, an attorney with offices in the Ashland Block, was recommended to succeed Justice A. J. Sabath, and Stephen D. Griffin was named to succeed Justice James C. Dooley.

Plans for Carnegie Library.

Wabash, Ind., May 2.—[Special.]—The Carnegie Library board of this city at its meeting last night decided to build the structure in the Grecian style. Correspondence has been opened with a number of architects over the country with reference to plans, and it is hoped to have the design adopted by June 1. Of the $20,000 donated by Andrew Carnegie $17,000 will go into the building proper and the remainder is to be expended for furniture.

The Tribune Amateur Gardeners' Contest.

W. H. Bowman, 3560 Archer avenue, who has built over 500 cottages for working men in the southwest section of Chicago, has decided to offer five special prizes for the best gardens in the district extending along South Irving avenue from Thirty-third to Thirty-fifth street and along South Oakley avenue from Thirty-fifth to Thirty-fourth street. There are 125 houses in this plot, occupied by perhaps 150 families. The prizes will be $15 for the best garden, $12 for the second best, $10 for the third best, $8 for the fourth best, and $5 for the fifth best.

Mr. Bowman hopes by thus supplementing THE TRIBUNE'S prize offer to stimulate still further an interest in pretty yards and window boxes in this section of the city which he has helped to build up. "The tenants in the three blocks mentioned," said Mr. Bowman yesterday, "have taken a great interest in THE TRIBUNE'S competition; practically every yard has been cleared of rubbish, grass seed has been sown, and a number of flower beds laid out. I am confident that by the time THE TRIBUNE judges make their rounds these three blocks will be as pretty if not prettier than any in the city. My object in offering special prizes is not only to show my interest in the movement for a beautiful Chicago, but to make sure that my tenants will be prize winners."

At the time the gardens entered in THE TRIBUNE'S competition are judged all the gardens in the district covered by Mr. Bowman's offer will also be passed upon by THE TRIBUNE'S jury. Thus all those who enter both competitions will stand a show of winning two prizes.

The movement of THE TRIBUNE for beautifying the city has started the firemen throughout the city to improving the grass plots around the engine-houses. The company occupying the most prominent location where there is a bit of spare earth is engine company 32, situated at the corner of Washington street and Michigan avenue. Alongside the engine-house for a space of ninety feet is a border of five feet between the engine-house wall and the sidewalk proper.

The firemen have already set out several plants, among them climbing ivy and morning glories. Rose bushes and flags have also been added to the garden and much of the spare time of the men is utilized in arranging the beds and training the vines. This spot is the only piece of public property from River street to Twelfth street, lying on the west side of Michigan avenue, that has as yet been improved. Pipeman Patrick Grant has assumed the title of "gardener for the company" and he guards the new flower bed as if it were a sacred reservation.

Prominent business-men along Michigan avenue have encouraged Grant in his efforts to follow THE TRIBUNE plan. One of them gave him an iron chain railing, another enough paint to paint it with, while another made provisions for securing seed for the new garden. In the space of ninety feet where the garden will be are three dead lights used to light up the engine-house basement. Between these dead lights the firemen intend to set out in green plants the letters "C. F. D." and the figure "32," representing the number of the company occupying the quarters.

Other companies in the outlying districts are inclined to improve the appearance of the quarters wherever circumstances will admit of it. Here there is generally space around the engine-houses where plants can be set out and trailing vines trained to follow the brick walls of the quarters.

LETTERS ON THE COMPETITION.

Valuable Suggestions on What to Plant by an Ardent Lover of Flowers.

Among the letters received by THE TRIBUNE from people interested in the best garden contest are the following:

When Back Yards Yawn.

Editor of The Tribune: For a gardener to really enjoy the subtleties of the soil he must arise early in the morning. It is not that the early bird catches the worm, for one soon comes to realize that there are more worms than birds, and that the latter may be sure of a choice morsel if they will happen around any time in the afternoon. It is not because early rising makes you healthy and wise; it may make you sick and absurdly light-headed. But it is because, though the morning is the time when one's soul soars the highest, it is also the time when one feels an affinity with the soil. And it is the hour when the spirits of former gardeners are abroad, and when they seem to come and sit on one's garden fence and signify their ghostly approval of these earthly deeds. There is Keats, not a gardener himself but a poet, who confessed that one of the greatest joys of his life was that of watching things grow. There is Wordsworth, some of whose finest poems were inspired by his garden flowers, and Burns, a gardener on a rather extensive and practical scale, but one who could sing immortally of the "wee, modest, crimson-tipped flower."

To be sure, one always mistrusts a literary gardener. He is like the literary lover, and is apt to simulate an affection for sweet Nancies in order to give vent to his greater devotion to literature. The seeds of the literary gardener sometimes germinate in the ink bottle, and one feels that he raises flowers only to form literary nosegays. But there is no doubt that a garden is a sort of floral sanitarium for sick literary souls, and that these, as well as those who love this bit of ground for its own sweet sake, will find that the morning is the time when backyards are at their best.

A DEEP DIGGER.

Vacant Lot Evils.

Editor of The Tribune: Too much cannot be said in praise of THE TRIBUNE'S movement for a more beautiful Chicago, and the end sought means not alone the adornment of our homes and yards with flowers but must also include the cleaning up of the waste places. It is desired, therefore, to call the attention of the proper authorities through your paper to one of these: the vacant lot on the northeast corner of West Madison street and Kedzie avenue.

An immense double-decker billboard now cuts it diagonally. Between this and the sidewalk on Madison street is an accumulation of waste paper. Behind it is piled the refuse taken from the cable slot of the street railway company, together with more waste paper, and for the last ten days the remains of an unfortunate cur—the victim of the same street railway—has here found an uneasy resting place, exposed to the view of passersby. Along the alley at the rear of the lot are several heaps of ashes, the overflow of the garbage boxes, and, altogether, the lot is a disgrace to the neighborhood.

A smaller vacant spot on the southwest corner of Kedzie and Warren avenues is likewise in need of a cleaning up. These blots should be wiped out in some way, and the influence of your valued paper to this end will be appreciated by hundreds whose homes are in the vicinity and will help to accomplish like results elsewhere in the city.

FRANK WETMORE, 900 Warren avenue.

Experience of an Amateur.

Editor of The Tribune: I have already sent my entry in the competition for prize gardens. The amateur gardener ought to be congratulated on having such a public spirited paper as THE TRIBUNE give almost a page of its daily issue to the subject of flower raising. I have been trying it with more or less success (generally less) for a few years, and for the benefit of those who want to begin will give a little of my experience.

I have a small back yard. When I commenced it was full of tin cans and ashes. Gradually I got them cleaned out and manured the soil, and now I can grow some simple things. I have tried sweet peas over and over again without any success; roses are no good; clematis a dead failure; honeysuckle lived one season; hardy azealia disappeared the first winter; evergreen shrubs, such as arbor vitæ, juniper, etc., all died the second year.

Now I confine my attention to old fashioned, common annuals. A few geraniums, verbenas, cannas, begonias, etc. I have tried nearly every kind of vine to cover fences and back porch, including clematis, paniculata, ampelopsis, veitchii, wistaria, and colua. None of them will grow in my yard. Japanese hop grows well, but towards fall the lower leaves get rusty and look bad, and finally they die off. So I do not intend to allow any of the young plants to grow this summer. They seed themselves profusely.

Madeira vine I consider the best for all ordinary purposes; the leaves are glossy green, the flower, although not bright, is pretty, and then no insect will live on the leaves. The roots multiply fast. I have a bed of tulips and hyacinths which will be in bloom in two weeks, but they must be renewed every year or the blooms are poor.

Two years ago I planted 200 crocus and the first spring did not see one flower. This spring about ten condescended to come up and bloom. We live on the West Side east of Ashland avenue and cannot expect to enjoy air which would be conducive to plant growth. Still, we must have flowers, and get them, too. Most people who have a small yard are too lazy to dig it, else they would have flowers as well as others have. Example is a good thing. Our neighbors, who never made a yard, are now at work. Wishing you success in your grand undertaking I am truly yours.

A RENTER.

Earth and Seed for Poor.

Editor of The Tribune: I most heartily indorse the stand you have made for a clean city, and shall be glad to coöperate in any way I can to the extent of my influence. It occurs to me that THE TRIBUNE might do a great work in encouraging many of the poorer people to beautify their homes by raising flowers in window boxes, if you could arrange to provide suitable earth, delivered in convenient places, and given to those who would be interested enough to come for it, and with the earth you could give a package of flower seeds. Merchants would gladly furnish small boxes for such a purpose, and a notice in your columns would bring in money enough to pay for loam and seeds. Flowers blooming in a home will have a tendency to stimulate the family to keep things neat and clean to correspond.

ROLAND A. NICHOLS,
Pastor Union Christian Church.

Hearty Commendation.

Editor of The Tribune: I commend heartily the efforts of THE TRIBUNE in the movement to beautify Chicago, and will do all that I can to aid in the worthy object. I shall speak of it publicly and do what I can to create the proper public sentiment.

WILLIAM M. LAWRENCE,
Pastor Second Baptist Church.

HINTS FOR AMATEURS. NO. 18.

Window Gardens in Down-Town Window Ledges.

Almost everybody in Chicago may have a garden, of one kind or another, if only the gardening desire is strong enough. Even the dwellers in hall bedrooms, and the men who "fairly live down-town," may have a glimpse of "green things growing" every day at the expense of a little time, care, and attention. The broad stone window ledges of many Chicago office buildings offer splendid advantages for certain kinds of floriculture, certain kinds of plants and creepers.

William A. Peterson, a professional florist and seedsman of Chicago, says that climbing roses, clematis, and a host of other charming vines which bear attractive blossoms may be induced to thrive and prosper on the broad ledges of down-town office windows. For the benefit of readers of THE TRIBUNE he has named some of these vines, those which, in his opinion, can best withstand the high winds, smoke, and dust of Chicago.

Boxes for down-town window gardens, it should be said in the beginning, should be as deep as possible, broad, flat rather than slanting, and not at all like the long, narrow window boxes of the residence districts. Vines well started should be procured, and they must be cared for every day, during the early part of the season, at least. While scarcely anything is worse for flowers than too frequent or indiscriminate watering, a single day of neglect and dryness may mean death to the blossoms. The earth, of course, should be as good as possible, well stirred up, and free from worms or other intruders.

For rose, the crimson rambler, which Mr. Peterson describes as "sure to bloom" under any ordinary conditions; the Seven Sisters, so called because the lovely, odorous blossoms, of delicate, shaded pink in color, grow in groups of seven on a stalk; the Prairie Queen, which might be described as the Seven Sisters, without the exquisite fragrance of the latter; and the Baltimore Belle, a beautiful white rose, are the best. All of these, if properly cared for, may be left outside all winter. All of them will bloom this summer if given half a chance. To look from a hot, dingy, down-town office out to a window framed in roses—who would not want a down-town window garden?

The Clematis paniculata is the variety of which every one talks, but the Clematis Virginiana, in Mr. Peterson's opinion, is quite as good, if not better, for general culture, and for down-town window boxes in particular. The paniculata is of Japanese, the Virginiana of native origin. The moonseed—not moon flower—vine is another good vine for down-town window boxes. It is similar to but far better than the well-known Dutchman's Pipe. The trumpet vine is always good and satisfactory, the Menispernum canadensis will supply a wealth of yellow blossoms, the Tecoma radicans will help out the trumpet vine's color scheme with its vivid red blossoms. The Lonicere sempervirens is also a good and faithful scarlet bloomer. The Ampelopsis veitchii, or Vitis inconstans, will brighten autumn days with its crimson berries. Celastrus articulatis and Celastrus scandens will supply berries of bright red and orange color respectively. By planting several clematis vines, such as the paniculata, Virginiana, vitalba, and viticella, the three first named of which blossom in July, August, and September, while the viticella will bloom during all three months, a success of white and purple blossoms may be maintained all summer. Where simple greenery and shade is desired the Japanese hop, Chinese matrimony, or even the wild cucumber will prove all that may be sought after.

For low-growing flowers pansies, mignonette, nasturtiums, geraniums, all the flowers generally used for window boxes, will serve admirably in the down-town regions. Hollyhocks, green corn, and a host of tall-growing bloomers will prove most satisfactory if an ugly view is to be shut out. Periwinkle vines, variegated creepers, and all the multitude of drooping vines will be more than satisfactory if an ugly wall or spot is to be covered. Nasturtiums alone will furnish a wealth of color—with a modicum of attention—if color is desired alone.

MAYOR USES UP TARGETS.

FILLS SHARPSHOOTERS' PARK BULL'S-EYES FULL OF LEAD.

He Takes a Day Off to "Celebrate His Birthday," and Shooting Under Police Rules Scores Twenty-four Out of a Possible Twenty-five Points—Uses Rifle Like a Cooper Novel Hero—Little Game on Kersten Fails to Win.

Mayor Harrison made a record yesterday on the pistol range at Sharpshooter's Park that indicated he would be a dangerous man for a footpad to tackle. Firing under police regulations, for he is loyal to the force and would not shoot otherwise, he made a score of twenty-four points out of a possible twenty-five. With the rifle, on the 200-yard range, he scored 91 out of a possible 100.

The Mayor wanted an outing, so he notified the several department heads in the City Hall that he was going to the country to celebrate his birthday. Of course every one knew the Mayor had observed his anniversary formally some time ago, and wondered at his temerity in giving this as an excuse. However, they agreed not to run away with their various offices during his absence, and the chief executive started for the happy shooting ground. He found Justice George Kersten and numerous other friends in the park. Justice Kersten had arranged a target to be known as the Mayor's target, and a score of members took a shot at it. Mayor Harrison made 21, while others perforated the bullseye, so there was little left of it. In deference to the Mayor the other marksmen, all of whom were entitled to a prize, insisted that their scores should not be announced, leaving to him the honor of having the best record published.

The Mayor, however, was not satisfied with his score. He reloaded his gun and began a ten-round onslaught upon the 200-yard range. Several bullets found the bullseye and others landed close enough not to injure his score materially. His total was 91.

Then the Mayor sought the pistol ranges, satisfied that he could fill any old target full of lead. Firing five shots at 100 feet and five at fifty feet while moving towards the target, as prescribed for police practice, the Mayor put ten bullets so close to the center that he secured a score of 24 points from a possible 25. While he was receiving the congratulations of his friends, Edwin L. Harpham introduced Alfred Gfeller, a crack shot belonging to the St. Louis Gun club. The Mayor immediately proposed that they induce Justice Kersten to enter a match, Mr. Gfeller being his opponent. Then the trio of conspirators approached the club's President.

"Harpham, I'll wager you the cigars for the crowd that Kersten can beat Gfeller shooting," said the Mayor.

"I don't like to take your money, Mr. Mayor, but I certainly cannot overlook the wager," was the response.

The justice promptly stated he was willing to shoot against anybody, and the contest began. When it ended Justice Kersten had scored 180 and Gfeller 173.

"He can't shoot," said the justice to the Mayor, confidingly, later.

FAVORS SOUTH SHORE DRIVE.

Council Committee Decides to Report for Passage the $1,000,000 Boulevard Measure.

If the recommendations of the Council Committee on Streets and Alleys South be adopted the South Shore drive ordinance, involving twenty-five miles of streets and the expenditure of more than $1,000,000 by the people living along them, will be sanctioned by the Council. The committee yesterday decided to recommend the ordinance for passage.

The South Shore drive ordinance, in practically the same form, failed to pass the last Council, though it received thirty-three votes as against thirteen in opposition, because it required a majority of the votes of the whole Council. This time it is regarded by its promoters as sure to pass.

Lake avenue is the nucleus of the system. Starting at Michigan avenue and Sixteenth street, the drive is to run east in Sixteenth street, and southerly by the following path: Prairie avenue, Twenty-third street, Calumet avenue, Twenty-ninth street, Groveland avenue, Thirty-third street, Lake avenue, and Oakwood boulevard, Fifty-first street, East End avenue, Lake avenue, south of Jackson Park, Seventy-seventh street, Muskegon avenue, Stony Island avenue, Eighty-seventh street, Western avenue, and Thirty-seventh street, between Lake and Western avenues.

The ordinance provides that the work of improvement be done under the direction of the South Park Commissioners.

Inspects Offending Tracks.

The Track Elevation committee of the City Council yesterday made a trip of inspection over the lines of the roads it hopes to have elevated by its next ordinance. The tracks under consideration are those of the Burlington, Northwestern, and Chicago Terminal east of Campbell avenue, and the Pan-Handle and Chicago Junction south of Twelfth street. There are several difficulties, all physical, in the way of the work, notably the crossing of the Burlington and Pan-Handle tracks at Western avenue and the crossing of the Burlington, Northwestern, and Terminal tracks at Ogden avenue. It will take considerable time and much diplomacy to draw an ordinance acceptable to all the roads.

Seeking Way to Save Cash.

All the heads of departments worked on their retrenchment figures yesterday, but were not ready to report the results. City Engineer Erickson made a start in his department by discharging five assistant foremen.

Coroner Opposes the Gavins.

Trouble, which arose over the disposition of the body of C. W. Sweney, who committed suicide after shooting his wife in a North Side apartment building, has widened the breach between Coroner Traeger and Undertakers P. J. Gavin & Sons, 226 North Clark street. The Coroner complains that the East Chicago Avenue police are accustomed to taking all Coroner's cases to the Gavin morgue and he has decided to lay the matter before Mayor Harrison. It is the argument of the Coroner that the body should be taken to the nearest reputable and responsible undertaker.

CLASH IN THE MERIT BOARD.

McGann Raises an Issue and Lindblom and Gamble Have Hot Argument.

A wordy clash between Controller McGann and the Civil Service commission, and a resultant argument between Commissioner Lindblom and Chief Examiner Gamble, gave rise yesterday to rumors of a physical encounter.

Some time ago the commission certified men off the list for foremen of index clerks when voucher clerks were wanted with the result that when a foreman of index clerks was asked for a man low down on the list got the place. The voucher clerks naturally objected, the [illegible]man's being the better place.

Yesterday the Controller went to the Civil Service commission and informed its members that they would oblige him by certifying men off the right lists and by holding the promotional examinations according to law. Chief Examiner Gamble explained that the certification had been done by orders of Commissioner Lindblom. Mr. Lindblom, however, could not remember having given such orders, and a sharp question of veracity arose. Mr. Gamble seemed to make good his point, however, and the discussion ended without bloodshed.

CEREAL POOL TO HAVE BIG RIVAL.

Independent Mills Unite for Purpose of Opposing the American Company.

MAY BE WAR OF PRICES.

Officers of Great Western Say They Are After Business and Will Get It.

CHICAGO GETS THE OFFICES.

A formidable rival to the recently formed American Cereal company, the "trust," already has put in an appearance. The officers of the new concern, which will be known as the Great Western company, say they are out for business and will get it, even if they have to make it warm for the American company.

The new company, which has been organized after a series of secret meetings in the Auditorium Hotel, will have a capital of $3,000,000, and will include ten of the largest independent companies in the country, having, it is said, a capacity equal to that of the trust.

Chicago is to be the headquarters of the new company, and offices were opened in the Great Northern Building yesterday. Chicago also is to have one of the new mills of the company. This mill, it is declared, will be the largest in the world, as it will have a capacity of 3,000 barrels a day, and will cost from $750,000 to $1,000,000.

It also is the purpose of the company to open offices in London and Hamburg within the next forty days and to make a vigorous effort to capture a large part of the foreign trade.

The officers of the Great Western company are:

President—Frank P. Sawyer of Muscatine, Ia.
First Vice President—Joy Morton, Chicago.
Second Vice President—Henry W. Little, Minneapolis.
Treasurer—Lucius C. Miles, Akron, O.
Secretary—David Oliver, Joliet.

The companies which are represented in the new combination are the Akron Cereal company of Akron, O.; the Muscatine Oatmeal company, Muscatine, Ia.; H. R. Heath & Sons, Fort Dodge, Ia.; the Nebraska City cereal mills, Nebraska City, Neb.; Steward & Merriam, Peoria; the Sioux Milling company, Sioux City, Ia.; David Oliver, Joliet; the Pillsbury-Washburne oatmeal business (except real estate), Minneapolis, and the Northwestern Cereal company, Minneapolis.

The capacity of the combined mills is stated to be about 6,000 barrels a day, which is declared to be about 50 per cent of the entire output of the country. It is proposed, in addition to the new mill to be erected in Chicago, to increase the capacity of the Fort Dodge mill from 750 to 2,000 barrels a day. The site for the Chicago mill has not been decided on. Treasurer Miles, while unwilling to say the new company proposed to make war on the American company, declared it was out after business, and that there was likely to be "considerable rivalry" between the two companies.

TWO HURT ON STREET CAR BY EXPLOSION OF MOTOR.

Passengers in a Panic and Rush Excitedly for the Doors—Car Filled with Smoke and Woodwork in Flames.

Two persons injured and a panic among fifteen passengers followed the blowing out of the motor on a south-bound Elston avenue electric car at Milwaukee avenue and Clinton street early yesterday morning. The injured were:

Gubbins, Austin, 834 North Branch street, assistant engineer of the Chicago avenue water works; spine injured, left leg sprained; went home unassisted.

Yancey, C., 3218 Forty-eighth court, telegraph operator; trampled upon, internal injuries feared; taken home.

Otto Anderson, the motorman, after the explosion, attempted to extinguish flames which had spread to the woodwork along windows on the front platform, but was unsuccessful, and the Fire department had to be called. Austin Gubbins, who is possessed of a portly build, was the first one of the passengers inside the car to reach the door. In his excitement his movements were impeded, and the consequent delay, short as it was, added to the fears of his fellow-passengers. In the rush his back was strained and his leg twisted.

As the car filled with smoke Conductor Martin Sieris ran inside and assured the passengers there was no danger, but they paid no heed to him, and struggled through the door as fast as possible. In the rush Yancey was knocked down and trampled on.

The cause of the explosion is unknown, and the street car company is investigating it. "The force of the explosion knocked me down," said Anderson. "I was struck in the arm by a piece of iron, and for a moment feared I was seriously injured."

BODY OF ROSENFIELD BOY FOUND IN THE MISSISSIPPI.

Discovery Regarded as Confirming Suspicion That Father Drowned His Four Children and Himself at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., May 2.—The body of Joseph Rosenfield, the 9-year-old son of William Rosenfield, was found in the Mississippi River, near Fort Snelling, today. It bore marks of violence, and its discovery is believed to confirm the suspicion that Rosenfield drowned his four children and himself a week ago.

Rosenfield and his wife had separated, and the father drove in a buggy to Minneapolis, where his wife was living, and abducted the children. He returned to this city, and it is supposed threw his children and himself into the river from the Marshall avenue bridge. He tried to persuade his wife to accompany him, and had she done so she probably would have met the same fate, but she was nursing her sister, who was on her death bed, and refused to go with him. The horse, attached to the buggy, was found wandering astray near the bridge.

Search will be made for the bodies of the other children, and there will also be a thorough investigation to ascertain what became of Rosenfield himself.

PASS MICHIGAN LIQUOR BILL.

Both Branches of Assembly at Lansing Agree to Measure Restricting Sale by Drug Stores.

Lansing, Mich., May 2.—[Special.]—Both Houses have passed the Humphrey bill, which provides such restrictions to govern the sale of intoxicating liquors by drug stores as to practically require druggists who sell such liquors to take out a saloon license. The window display of liquors is prohibited.

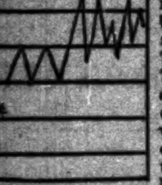
The House passed Senate bills providing for the establishment of rural high schools and requiring hotelkeepers to post in each room the rates charged for such room.

The Conference committee on the railroad tax bill held two fruitless sessions today and adjourned until next Tuesday.

JULY WHEAT AT 74 CENTS

GOES FRACTION HIGHER, BUT DECLINES BEFORE CLOSE.

Heavy Sales Made Around 74 Cents and Pit Wiseacres Decide Patten Is Putting Out a Line—Causes of the Advance—May Corn Sells at 55 Cents and July Also Advances—Shorts in Oats Still Trying to Cover — Other Commercial News.



July Wheat Range.

A show of strength at Liverpool just before the opening yesterday and a higher curb at Minneapolis gave wheat a better start than its finish of the night before, and on local demand July sold up from 73½c to 74⅛c. But around 74c, as on Wednesday, there was a great deal for sale, and pit wiseacres came to the conclusion that Patten was putting out a line. Selling against Milwaukee calls, which had ranged from 73⅝c to 73⅞c, was another drag against an advance, while the strength of corn and oats was an important price help. After bumping against the 74c mark and through it a number of times, the market closed at 73⅞c bid, a gain of ½-⅝c for the day.

May was in continued demand by elevator interests, at one time almost level with July. The range was from 73c to 74c, the close 73½-⅝c, a gain of ⅝-¾c. Counselman and Seaverns were leading buyers of May; Logan and Slaughter of July. Claims of damage by insects and by the hot, dry weather were the principal bull factors, though the Price Current reported reversals of crop form in various localities but no reduction in the general fine outlook. No cash demand developed, though there were some Liverpool bids below the market. Germany, it was reported, was still offering to resell cargoes. The seaboard reported sales of 120,000 bu. Country elevator stocks in the Northwest decreased 2,300,000 bu in April, to 2,500,000 bu. Figures of movement were in favor of the bull, 24 cars in the Northwest, compared with 439 last year, and 342,364 bu at primary points, a decrease of 233,000 bu. Clearances were 737,031 bu. Liverpool closed unchanged to ¼d higher for futures; spot unchanged to ½d higher. Paris was steady to ½c higher; Antwerp unchanged.

May Corn Brings 55 Cents.

Fifty-five cents was paid for May corn in the pit yesterday, a gain of 5c for the day. Demands of some of the shorts were urgent and they had to bid the market up to supply them. The trade was spasmodic and scattered and of moderate volume, though the biggest individual trades were 50,000 bu lots. The opening was from 50c to 51c and the advance was made by jumps, with no reaction of over ½c until the top price was reached, after which it settled down to 53½c bid, a net gain of 4c for the day. Phillips and his regular brokers took little part in the May trading. It was rumored that shorts had applied to him for private settlement at the opening price and that he had referred them to the open market.

Phillips himself paid the top price for a small lot, 10,000 bu, but promptly sold it to Ware-Leland at the same figure, and McIntyre-Marshall paid 55c for 20,000 bu.

Big Demand for July.

Trade in July was immense and the market strong, selling up to 47¼c and closing a split lower at a net advance of 1¼c. A Liverpool cable reporting a reduction of 50 per cent in the estimates of the Argentine exportable surplus, and the abnormally hot, dry weather in the corn belt, were among the causes which made July seem worth having, especially to shorts. Finley-Barrell were heavy buyers, taking about 2,000,000 bu, two-thirds of it between 46⅝c and 46⅞c, without moving the price ⅛c. Phillips was the largest seller—perhaps 1,500,000 bu.

Cash bids did not follow the advance in futures, and there was no business reported. It was still apparent, however, that the bull leader's intention is to move his contract stocks to the seaboard, where they will be safe from the clutches of Chicago shorts. Seaboard sales were reported at 48,000 bu. Country acceptances were small, and they will be smaller, as most of the elevators and receiving houses have stopped bidding. The congestion and rapid fluctuations of the market, on one hand, and the complaints of country shippers at not getting No. 2 prices on the other, have led the elevators to advise country shippers to consign their grain. The estimate for today is 275 cars. Primary receipts showed some increase—419,821 bu, compared with 360,138 bu last year.

Shorts Still Want May Oats.

Oats showed an improvement of ⅝@¾c at the opening, May starting out at 28⅝c and making a rapid advance to 29½c. From this point there was a later fluctuation of not more than ½c, making the big market of the day a matter of the morning hours. Corn helped it some, but it had decided strength of an independent character. Short demand and small offerings were the big bull factors. Around 29c Phillips and McReynolds sold the crowd a few, but the bull leader was on the other side, too. The seaboard was reported a heavy buyer, both here and at New York. Monday's business of this character was reflected in clearances of 121,700 bu. Commission houses bought September and sold July, following the market up in this way. Buckley was quite a heavy buyer. Hot, dry weather is doing as much for the price as the operations of the bull crowd. Growing oats are said to need rain badly, and in fact must have it this week. While May was making its sharp advance the July delivery price improved only ⅜c. The Northern Grain company was a large seller of July. Local cash demand was only moderate. Claims of decreased area were made by the Price Current.

Pork Makes an Advance.

There was good strength all through the provision lists, prices in which were advanced by light offerings, especially of May. This delivery of pork sold 30c higher than the day before, closing strong at the outside. July closed 22½c higher. Lard and ribs were steady to a shade lower on slight increases in the monthly showing of stocks where decreases had been generally expected. The world's stock of lard, however, showed a decrease of 19,600 tcs. Cudahy brokers bought lard and ribs. Other packers sold moderately. There was said to be an improved demand for cash product. The Price Current reports packing to date at 480,000, against 440,000 a year ago. Shipments were liberal, 1,919,000 lbs of cut meats, compared with 1,826,000 lbs a year ago, and of lard 907,000 lbs, as against 945,000 lbs last year. Western packing points were well supplied with hogs, having 78,000, against 66,000 a week ago and 63,200 the same day last year.

Rye was in good demand and so sparingly offered that prices advanced. May, which closed Wednesday at 51½c bid, sold yesterday from 52¾@53c, while July sold from 52@52½c. A fair cash inquiry existed, but nothing was reported for shipment. Inspection was 3 cars.

There was practically no barley on the market, inspection being but 3 cars. Nominal quotations were; Screenings, 30@37c; low grade, 40@45c; common to fair, 47@51c; good, 52@55c.

The seed market was somewhat unsettled, timothy being firm with $3.25 freely bid for September and $3.90 for contract, without much being offered. Clover, on the other hand, was slow and nominally $10.50 for contract, the season being about over.

Flaxseed was dull and easier, little being wanted. Cash and May closed $1.68, with early sales of the latter at $1.71 and $1.69. September was $1.25 bid. Receipts were 8 cars, with no shipments. Minneapolis had 8 cars and Duluth 1 car.

Trade Gossip on 'Change.

Estimated receipts today: Wheat, 35 cars; corn, 275 cars; oats, 215 cars; hogs, 45,000.

The question of corn inspection is still uppermost in the minds of the cash traders on 'change. A member of one of the largest receiving and shipping houses has this to say on their side of the case: "The corn now coming in is largely fresh shelled out of cribs. A considerable proportion of the receipts are consigned by interior dealers with the expectation that it will grade No. 2, and, if so, be available for delivery on May contracts. The argument, made before the Chief Grain Inspector on Tuesday, that farmers have sold No. 3 corn ought not to count because it was sold during the winter, when it was full of moisture. This kind of corn can't be expected to grade now, though by fall it might do so. It requires hot, dry weather to put it in condition. The Board of Trade takes no cognizance of how long corn can be kept after it is put in elevators. Shippers and exporters have taken No. 3 corn out of elevators and even shipped it abroad without complaint of its getting out of condition. The in-inspection is just as much too high now as the out-inspection was too low last winter. If corn has as little as 6 per cent moisture in it it is in elegant condition." Captain Rumsey of the directory, on the other hand, says: "The rule says contract corn must be dry; not 'reasonably' dry, as in the other grades. When you can indent your thumb nail in the chit of the corn it is not dry. The only logical way out of the difficulty is to change the rule."

The Hemmelgarn corn, samples of which were shown at the meeting in the inspection office on Tuesday, could not be reached by Inspector Bidwill and Commissioner French yesterday, owing to inability to have the cars switched to a team track and therefore no report was made on them. It is expected today.

Minneapolis memberships, which were quoted $975 on Tuesday, were $1,400 bid yesterday with none offered. The membership is at its maximum limit, under the rules, of 550.

Outlook for May Corn Shorts.

"I understand," said Scotten, "that Phillips is selling cash corn in New York on the basis of 47¾c in store, Chicago, for No. 2. This certainly makes it look as though May shorts would be forced to settle."

Captain Phillips is still confident that Kansas will beat its wheat crop record, in spite of the malign influence of flies, bugs, and other crop destroyers. Writing to a friend on the board from Sedgwick, he says that he has looked over a great many fields in Kansas and Missouri and talked with others who have made personal investigations, and that the outlook is for the biggest crops ever raised. There were insects in some of the fields, but they had done no damage, he said, and the only danger now is from drought.

Said a shipper who has been unable to participate in the cash business in wheat, corn, and oats which is reported, and who feels somewhat skeptical concerning it: "We will all be eating hay by the end of May. All the wheat is being shipped East and all the corn and oats are going out. There will be nothing left but hay."

The unusually hot weather brought numerous complaints from the wheat belt. One message from Minneapolis ran: "Hear complaints of wheat not stooling. Weather this week altogether unusual and unnatural; hot today." An Omaha wire said: "Some of our country reports show wheat becoming yellow on account of dry weather."

Deliveries on May contracts yesterday were 500,000 bu wheat, put out by Slaughter and Bartlett-Frazier; 50,000 bu corn, put out by Bartlett-Frazier and taken in by Phillips; 1,750 brls pork, put out by the Omaha and taken in by the Continental; 25,000 bu oats.

The South Dakota crop report for the week ending on Monday confirms the claim that the weather is too dry in parts of the Northwest. It says: "The warm weather stimulated all vegetation to good growth, and wheat, oats, and barley, except the latest sown, have germinated evenly, made healthy growth, and a good stand generally is indicated. In some Missouri Valley and extreme Southeastern localities it apepars that more rain is needed for germination of seed. While there are some scattered fields in the northeastern portion of the State too wet for good work, a good, general rain would be beneficial elsewhere, except possibly the extreme west portion, as the high southerly winds have absorbed much moisture from the surface soil."

General Crop Conditions.

The Cincinnati Price Current says: "The wheat crop maintains a good promise; conditions practicaly the same as a month ago. There are declines in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, and California; improvement in Tennessee, Ohio Valley, Pennsylvania, and New York. An increased corn acreage is likely. Oats acreage is decreased, but is starting well. Packing 480,000, against 440,000 last year."

Last month was the driest April ever known in Wisconsin since the weather bureau station was established.

An increased acreage of corn is generally predicted, a natural consequence of the high prices of the last year, and particularly because of the November and May deals. But no increase in the acreage will help the shorts in either May or July.

MOST PRODUCE DULL AND SLOW.

Buying on a Restricted Sale at Steady Prices and Only for Local Requirements.

Produce generally was dull yesterday, there being but light buying by retailers and almost nothing doing by shippers. Butter prices continue to favor buyers, holders generally being anxious to sell. Receipts are free, about 5,000 tubs daily. Cold storage men have laid in the bulk of their supply. All poultry and veal are in slack demand. Berry receipts were about 12,000 cases, including express and freight. Quality was generally poor.

IN THE NEW YORK MARKETS.

Quotations on Dry Goods, Coffee, Butter, Poultry, Metals, and Other Commodities.

NEW YORK, May 2.—[Special.]—There has been no business of any moment reported in print cloths, which are readily available on the basis of 2 9-16c for regulars. Brown sheetings and drills are quiet but firm for export grades; other kinds irregular. Bleached and coarse colored cottons quiet and unaltered. Prints are dull and irregular. Ginghams quiet and unchanged. Hosiery and underwear selling in moderate quantities in a generally easy market.

Coffee.

Rio on the spot was firmer, at 6¼c for No. 7. Sales, 3,000 bags Santos No. 5, at 6 9-16c; C. & F., 4,000, Maracaibo. Futures advanced 10@15 points and closed steady. Sales, 5,500 bags. Havre advanced ⅛ franc; Hamburg unchanged to ¼ pfennig higher. American warehouse deliveries, 17,116 bags. Rio quiet, at 75 reis advance. Exchange, 13 7-16d (1-16d decline). Receipts were smaller, the cables were generally firmer, and there was a noticeable disinclination to sell, and, under the circumstances, a small demand for local and foreign account caused an advance.

Metals.

Quietness was prevalent throughout the day in the local market for metal. Speculation was almost dormant and trading was confined chiefly to meeting immediate requirements of consumers. Advices from London also indicated a featureless market. Tin at that point was unchanged, with spot quoted at £118 and futures at £114 7s 6d. Locally the market for tin ruled quiet, but steady at $25.87½@26.00, and trade slow. Copper in London advanced 12s 6d under an absence of sellers and closed steady at £70 2s 6d for spot and £70 12s 6d on futures, with the local situation, while holding steady as to tone, showing little signs of activity and prices remained nominally on the basis of $17.00 for Lake Superior and 16⅝c for casting and electrolytic. Foundry iron ruled dull, but about steady at unchanged prices on the basis on $9.50@10.50 for pig iron warrants; Northern Foundry, $15.25@16.50; Southern Foundry, $14.00@15.50, and soft Southern, $13.00@15.50. Spelter was again easy and somewhat lower here in sympathy with a similar decline in London, prices there falling off 2s 6d, to £16 17s 6d. The local market closed easy at $3.95@4.00.

A letter from THOMAS DOLAN, Esq., President of the United Gas Improvement Company, states in part as follows:

The Connecticut Railway and Lighting Company has acquired and now owns the properties and franchises of the following street railway, electric light, and gas companies, located in the State of Connecticut:

Bridgeport Traction Company,
Shelton Street Railway Company,
Milford Street Railway Company,
Westport and Saugatuck Street Railway Company,
Derby Street Railway Company,
The Norwalk Tramway Company,
Norwalk Street Railway Company,
Waterbury Traction Company,
The Central Railway and Electric Co. of New Britain,
Norwalk and South Norwalk Electric Light Company,
Norwalk Gas Light Company,
Naugatuck Electric Light Company,
Southington and Plantsville Tramway Company,
Greenwich Gas and Electric Light Company.

THE FRANCHISES of the companies consolidated are perpetual.

The company also controls, by lease, the Waterbury Gas Light Company, and has completed arrangements by which it will acquire the Housatonic Power Company, upon the completion of its works.

The Connecticut Railway and Lighting Company has an authorized capital of $15,000,000, of which $4,000,000 is 5 per cent preferred stock, cumulative from and after January 1, 1904, and $11,000,000 is common stock. All of the above stock has been issued.

The authorized issue of bonds is $15,000,000, bearing date of January 1, 1901, payable 50 years after date, without any privilege of prior redemption, and bearing interest at the rate of 4½ per cent. per annum. Of these bonds, $9,350,000 have been sold to you, as above stated, their proceeds to be applied in part payment for various properties, and to the redemption of various underlying bond issues thereon. New bonds (part of the above $9,350,000) equal in par value to such of the underlying bonds as are not acquired, to be reserved with the Trustee. The remainder of the bonds are subject to issue from time to time for the acquisition of additional property, and for new construction, improvements, and betterments, under conditions stated in the mortgage, which properly protect the bondholders.

With the exception of small amounts of bonds of the Bridgeport Traction Company, the Derby Street Railway Company, and the Connecticut Lighting and Power Company, which as yet are not acquired, the bonds of the Connecticut Railway and Lighting Company are a first and only lien upon the properties mentioned, and the mortgage contains the provision that when additional properties are acquired by the issue of additional bonds they shall be free of any lien which takes precedence of this mortgage.

The Derby Street Railway Company bonds are callable April, 1904.

THE RAILWAY PROPERTIES OWNED by the Connecticut Railway and Lighting Company cover 161.6 miles of single track. The completed system will connect with the Winchester Avenue Railroad, into the City of New Haven, and the Company will therefore be enabled to transport passengers from New Haven to any one of the following towns:

Milford, Bridgeport, Stratford, Southport, Shelton, Derby, Ansonia, Westport, Saugatuck, Norwalk, South Norwalk, Darien, Stamford.

It also, through traffic contract with the Hartford Street Railway Company, is enabled to transport passengers from Hartford to New Britain, Berlin, Plainville, and Newington.

THE POPULATION SERVED by the street railroads owned by the Connecticut Railway and Lighting Company is 465,748, an increase of 35.2 per cent. during the last decade.

THE GAS AND ELECTRIC PROPERTIES owned by the Connecticut Railway and Lighting Company together serve a population of 139,581, an increase of 37.6 per cent. during the last decade.

THE NET EARNINGS of the constituent companies for the year ending June 30, 1900, were $505,335.68, and during the year the companies were run at great disadvantage. Upon the business done by them, under economical management, there should have been not less than $50,000 additional profit earned.

I will not attempt to estimate the decrease in cost of operation which should be expected from the supply of power from the Housatonic Power Company's dams. Whatever it may be, it will add so much to the earning capacity of the property.

The mortgage and other legal matters have been passed upon by Mr. George E. Terry of Waterbury, Connecticut; Messrs. Sheehan & Collin and Messrs. Seligman and Seligman of New York, and Messrs. John G. Johnson, Charles E. Morgan, and George S. Philler of Philadelphia.

A controlling interest in the stock of the Connecticut Railway and Lighting Company is owned by The United Gas Improvement Company, Philadelphia, and the operation and management are under the supervision of that company.

Very truly yours,
THOMAS DOLAN, President.

STOCK HOISTED OVER TEN POINTS IN UPWARD RUSH.

Terrific Strain of Work Begins to Tell on Brokers, Who Are Often Refusing Orders Which in Other Times Would Be Considered a Good Day's Business—Many Rumors Regarding Change of Ownership in Various Roads, but None Confirmed.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, May 2.—[Special.]—The feverish excitement of the trading on the Stock Exchange increased, if anything, today, and the speculative movement has broadened until it seems to have embraced nearly everybody, from big operators to clerks and messenger boys in the financial district.

The total recorded transactions for the day passed the 2,841,300 share mark, making it the second largest day on record, being exceeded only by Tuesday last. As on recent days, because of the rush of business, many transactions were never recorded, else the total would easily have been brought up to 3,500,000 shares. Even as it is, all the indications are that the present week will be far and away the biggest week that Wall street has ever seen, and this even should the trading on the last two days become comparatively small. Already the total for the first four days is close to the high record for any one week.

Further evidence of the volume of trading in the stock market today appeared in the exchanges of the New York clearing-house banks, which reached the figure of $525,215,108, the second highest record for clearances in the history of that institution.

The brokers on the floor today were actually in despair. Their complaint was not of too little business, but of altogether too much. Worn out—many of them, indeed, completely unnerved—by the steady strain upon them for the last few weeks, they time and again begged of their office managers to refuse any further orders, saying that they could not possibly execute them with any degree of satisfaction.

In a number of cases their requests were acceded to, but in a majority of instances customers were so persistent that the orders had to be taken. Nevertheless it is a fact that the amount of orders refused by several representative Stock Exchange houses would last summer have been considered a fair day's business.

Under what pressure the brokers are acting can be best imagined when it is stated that a serious effort was made today to bring about the closing of the exchange tomorrow in order to allow the overworked brokers and clerks some degree of rest and the overburdened officers more time to straighten out their in some cases highly complicated accounts. In the end this attempt to have the exchange closed was abandoned, but the agitation was none the less sincere and suggestive.

During the day it was currently reported that several brokers on the floor had collapsed through overwork and exhaustion. This is not the case, however. It is a fact, though, that two telephone boys, whose names could not be learned, other than that they were styled "Joe" and "Danny" by their fellow-members, were carried off the floor in a fainting condition. It was said, however, that their condition was not due so much to overwork as to overlate hours and rather irregular habits.

But while brokers did not collapse, several of them are near to the breaking down point, three at least being on the floor against the advice of their physicians.

There were three brokerage houses whose business consists largely of orders secured by private wire from other cities, who notified their out-of-town customers during the day that they could execute no more orders today owing to the generally clogged condition. The amount in commissions earned by brokers today can hardly be approximately estimated. Computing the commissions at $12.50 per 100 shares, the business yielded the brokers $355,163. Even if one-fourth of the orders were done on a $2 basis—that is, one member of the exchange acting as broker for another, and the remainder at the regular commission for outsiders, the amount derived would be $266,372. The government's share through the revenue tax of $2 per 100 shares amounted to $56,826. The offices of most of the active firms were opened late tonight, and the hotel accommodations at the Astor House and the Stevens House were quickly taken. It was reported that a stock exchange membership had been sold for $70,000, and that the purchaser was Frank E. Brumley, long associated with the house of Rolston & Hooley. The stock exchange authorities, however, stated that the last high price for seats known to them was $66,000.

As has been the case for several days past, the stock market today had one feature which stood out conspicuous above all others. As will be recalled, recent features have been St. Paul, Burlington, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, and the steel stocks, each one of these in its turn being taken in hand and advanced sharply, all of the issues except steel having at one time or another had a 10 point advance at least to its credit in one day. Today the feature of the trading was Atchison common stock, which was dealt in to the extent of over 550,000 shares. On the day previous the stock had sold at 73, then had gone up to 75, then on the announcement of a semi-annual dividend declaration of 1½ per cent had declined to 73, only later to rise to and close at 76⅝. Today, opening up more than a point—the tape recording the initial dealings at 12,000 shares from 77½ to 78—it advanced almost by leaps and bounds to 87¾.

Only a few hundred shares changed hands at that price, the quotation immediately thereafter beginning to fall until it had touched 84. There it held for some time until in the late afternoon on large buying orders, in which many blocks of a thousand shares came out, the quotation advanced to 87½ and finally closed at 87, a net gain of 10⅜ points.

To explain the wonderful activity and strength of the stock there were many rumors, but nothing that could be considered positive. One of these told of Pennsylvania buying for control, another that a Rock Island alliance was assured, and still another that leading directors of the company had told their friends that at next dividend meeting, even though it is six months off, the stock will be placed on a 5 per cent basis.

Generally in the street the opinion prevails that the most reasonable explanations is that despite their denials Pennsylvania interests are actually buying into the Atchison property. The theory in the street is that the purchase of Burlington, with which Pennsylvania is probably more closely identified than with any other Western road, has forced the officials of that road to the purchase of the Atchison property.

Next in point of interest came Union Pacific, which at one time sold up to the high figure of 133, which represented a gain of over 3 points from the close of the day previous. At the high figure many realizing sales appeared, and under them the stock declined until at the close the figure was 128½, a net loss of 1⅜ points on dealings of 480,100 shares.

This, in other words, signified that the combined trading in Atchison common and Union Pacific common aggregated for the day more than 1,000,000 shares. One firm alone took 50,000 shares of Union Pacific, while another firm took 45,000 shares of Atchison common.

Other features of the day were a 3-point rise in Chesapeake and Ohio, a 2¼-point advance in St. Paul, a 2-point gain in Denver and Rio Grande preferred, a gain of 2⅞ points in International Power, a rise of 3¼ points in National Biscuit, of 1⅞ in Norfolk and Western, of 2 in rubber goods, of 3 in United States Rubber preferred, and of 8 points in New York Air Brake. On the other hand, some stocks heretofore conspicuous showed declines for the day. Among the losses were Amalgamated Copper, 1⅜; Smelters, 2¼; Chicago and Alton, 1⅝; Northwest, 3; Lackawanna, 2½; Erie, 1⅜; Great Northern preferred, 2⅞; Louisville and Nashville, 1¾; New York Central, 3⅞; Reading, 1⅜; Southern Pacific, 1; Northern Pacific, 1; Wabash preferred, 1⅝; Wisconsin Central, 1⅝; United States Steel common, 1¼; and United States Steel preferred, 1¼.

These figures, in short, tell the story of the market for the day. While strength was developing in some securities, heaviness was showing in others. Under the circumstances, it was declared in the street that the irregularity was only what might have been expected. There had been almost a continuous rise from the first of the week, and a reaction was declared to be not only inevitable but overdue.

During the day call money rose at one time to 6 per cent, but the rise was only temporary, most of the day's loans being made at 5 per cent.

On the curb American Can was again the most active stock in the list, but the strength of the last few days was succeeded by a downward movement which carried both issues considerably below the closing prices of Wednesday. The common stood at the end of the day at 29¼ bid, a net decline of 1⅛ points. A larger loss appeared in the preferred stock, which closed at 78 bid, as compared with 79¼ bid the previous day.

Standard Oil sold 3 or 4 points above the record price of the previous day, but it showed no net gain for the day.

Chicago, Burlington and Quincy purchase bonds were fairly active, declining about half a point. They closed at par bid, with bonds offered at 100¼.

NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

General Tendency of Cash, Bonds, Stocks, and Other Securities in Wall Street Exchange.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The Atchison stocks took the leadership of the market away from Union Pacific today both in point of strength and activity. During most of the day the volume of transactions in the two common stocks ran a close race, but the dealings in Atchison common and preferred easily outstripped those in the two Union Pacific stocks. A heavy preponderance of the total transactions in the whole market centered in these stocks.

The money rate was distinctly firmer today, ruling at 6 per cent early in the day, and it was said that a number of the banks were calling loans. The Subtreasury figures, which include the payment of the greater part of the gold exports, show a loss by the money market thus far of $5,758,000.

Union Pacific convertible bonds continued active and the bond market otherwise was irregular. Total sales, par value, $7,165,000.

United States refunding 2s coupon declined ⅛ and the 3s ¼ per cent on the last call.

Close—Money on call firm at 4@6 per cent; last loan, 5 per cent; ruling rate, 4½@5. Prime mercantile paper, 3¾@4½ per cent. Sterling exchange firm undertone, with actual business in bankers' bills at 488 for demand and 484⅝ for sixty days. Posted rates, 485¼@489. Commercial bills, 484¼@484½. Silver certificates, 60. Bar silver, 59½c. Mexican dollars, 48½c. Government bonds weak; State bonds strong; railroad bonds irregular.

IN THE BOSTON MONEY MARKET.

General Tendency of Cash, Bonds, Copper Shares, and Other Securities at the Hub.

BOSTON, Mass., May 2.—[Special.]—The local market shook off the thraldom of Wall street influence today in real earnest, and instead of the arbitrage issues dominating the situation, as has been the case on previous days, the copper shares came forward as market features.

It was notable, too, that the Standard Oil coppers were not conspicuous in the movement, but that the important features were issues that are supposed to be without the immediate pale of Standard Oil influence.

Copper range moved up 5½, to 64; Baltic 2, to 50; Isle Royal 2, to 56½; Wolverine 5, to 59½; Franklin 1⅛, to 19¾; Parrot 1, to 56; Centennial 2½, to 34½; and United States Mining ⅞, to 23⅝. Amalgamated showed early strength, but late weakness, selling down 1⅞, to 121⅝; Butte eased off 1, to 114; while Boston and Montana, which in the morning gained 4, to 450, dropped later to 445. Among the miscellaneous issues good buying of Chicago Junction was noticeable, the price rising 4, to 157 at the highest. Union Pacific, Atchison common and preferred, Burlington, and Sugar were active.

Call loans, 3½ to 4½ per cent; time loans, collateral, 4 to 4½ per cent; time loans, mercantile paper, 4 to 4½ per cent; clearing-house loans, 3 per cent.

FOREIGN MONEY MARKETS.

General Tendency of Cash, Bonds, and Securities in London, Paris, and Berlin.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Commercial Advertiser London financial cablegram: A large business was done on the Stock Exchange here today. Buying orders had accumulated over the holiday, the execution of which gave the market the appearance of great activity, but the tone also was better, more buoyant than it has been for a long time. The new consols are hardening.

In the American department business was excited, but confused and irregular. London rushed in to take profits during the first hours of the morning. Soon came, however, a furious demand for Atchisons, which went kiting and rallied the whole list. There was a pause during which the market fluctuated feverishly. Then the Atchison boom was continued and the street heard that Pennsylvania was buying large lines of it. Union Pacific hung rather heavy, although 150 was talked of for it on the reported guarantee of 6 per cent on the stock by those who are acquiring control.

The feature of the day's business, however, was the gigantic options in Americans. This is regarded by some people here as the only safe method of dealing in them now. United States Steel was active around 55⅝ for the common and 103⅞ for the preferred. There was a big rush for Grand Trunks on vague rumors of working agreements being arranged between them, Northern Pacific, and the Leyland line.

The bank has bought £203,000 of gold in American bars. The call rate for money was 3¼; bills, 3½ per cent. The weakness of the Paris cheque is causing some inquiry for gold from France. There was a demand for silver for India. Exchange on Paris, 25.16; on Berlin, 20.44½.

Closing stocks: Consols for money 94⅞; do for the account, 94⅞; Atchison, 80; Canadian Pacific, 103; St. Paul, 177⅝; Illinois Central, 101½; Louisville, 112⅝; Union Pacific preferred, 100; New York Central, 172½; Erie, 42⅝; Pennsylvania, 79⅝; Reading, 22⅝; Erie first preferred, 72⅝; Northern Pacific preferred, 104; Grand Trunk, 12; Anaconda, 10⅝; Rand mines, 42½; United States Steel, 55⅝; do preferred, 104. Bar silver steady, 27⅝d per ounce. Money, 3@3½ per cent. The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3 7-16@3½; do three months bill, 3 7-16@3 9-16 per cent.

LONDON, May 2.—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes: Total reserve, decreased £1,016,000; Circulation, increased £593,000; bullion, decreased £433,395; other securities, decreased £540,000; other deposits, decreased £3,168,000; public deposits, increased £1,564,000; notes reserve, decreased £1,120,000; government securities, decreased £60,000. The proportion of the Bank of England's reserve to liability is 46.68 per cent; last week it was 47.21 per cent.

Money on the Continent.

PARIS, May 2.—Prices on the bourse today were firm. Internationals were well impressed with the advance in Turks on the news regarding the unification scheme, providing a 4 per cent bond for about 95 per cent. Ottoman bank was thereby benefitted. Rio Tintos were dull, finishing better. Kaffirs closed firm. After the close of the bourse the general firmness was accentuated. Exchange on London, 25 francs 16 centimes for checks. Spanish 4s, 73.25.

The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes: Notes in circulation, increased 43,600,000 francs; treasury accounts, current, decreased 56,700,000 francs; gold in hand, decreased 26,450,000 francs; bills discounted, increased 124,125,000 francs; silver in hand, increased 525,000 francs.

BERLIN, May 2.—Business on the boerse today was generally dull. Mines declined on unsatisfactory reports from the manufacturing districts. Americans opened strong, but declined in response to London. Exchange on London, 20 marks 44½ pfgs for checks. Discount rates: Short bills, 3½ per cent; three months, 3 per cent.

The weekly statement of the Imperial Bank of Germany shows the following changes: Cash in hand, decreased 10,460,000 marks; treasury notes, decreased 780,000 marks; other securities, increased 41,020,000 marks; notes in circulation, increased 65,280,000 marks.

BANKS LOAN IN NEW YORK

LOCAL INSTITUTIONS PLACE MORE MONEY EAST.

Advance in Call Rates to 6 Per Cent in Wall Street the Cause of Request for Funds Here—E. A. Hamill on the Money Market—National Biscuit Common Booms in Chicago—R. H. Donnelley for President of the Local Exchange.

A sharp advance in call money rates to 6 per cent in New York yesterday led to a demand in Wall street for Chicago funds. Requests were telegraphed to local institutions and some Chicago money was loaned in Wall street at 5 per cent. That rate was bid for more. The loans were estimated at between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000. Money in New York ruled at 4½ to 5 per cent, with the last loan at 5. Many loans were marked up to 6 per cent.

Indications so far are for a poorer New York bank statement this week than has been the rule lately. New York dispatches said that the banks had lost to the Subtreasury on account of gold exports and internal revenue and customs collections $5,758,000. A fair amount of money is being paid out on May 1 interest disbursements, but only a little of this will appear in this week's statement. Large sums have been sent to New York this week from the interior.

The Bank of England's minimum discount rate was unchanged yesterday at 4 per cent.

E. A. Hamill on the Market.

President Ernest A. Hamill of the Corn Exchange National Bank, who has returned from New York, said, in speaking of the money market and conditions: "There is a strong demand for money for stock exchange purposes, and the demand for general mercantile business is not urgent; in fact, a little less paper is for sale in New York at the present time than there was ninety days ago when I was there. Everybody in New York is talking Union Pacific and the stock market. I think there is bound to be a great reaction later on in stocks, but it is not coming now. When the reaction does come stocks will go, as they always do at such times, lower than their intrinsic worth. I am not bearish, for one reason, because the railroad interests of the country are to be fixed together on the community of ownership principle.

"The evidences of prosperity are on all sides in New York and Philadelphia—not only with stock brokers, but with manufacturers, jobbers, and retailers."

Chicago in the Market.

Induced by conservative advices from Wall street correspondents and Chicago brokers in New York, local houses sold stocks at the opening of the market yesterday. The realizing was heavy and general. The exception to the rule of selling was in Atchison issues, which were bought on a large scale. The advance in Atchison was attended by a good deal of realizing by Chicago traders, but buying also was large.

John W. Gates and other members of the Waldorf clique were said to be large purchasers of Atchison yesterday. Mr. Gates might like to be represented on the Atchison Board of Directors, as the road runs near the plants of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company. The Moores are reported to be heavily interested in Atchison. The buying is credited, however, in most quarters to the Pennsylvania road, which wants to protect itself against the Morgan-Hill alliance and secure its own outlet to the Pacific coast.

Chicago trading was nearly equally divided between buying and selling. In the afternoon the morning selling attitude changed to buying. The selling in the early part of the day was influenced by New York messages. John Dupee wired his house before the opening that he intended to sell stocks, as he believed it advisable to reduce long lines. A. M. Day sent the same advice, making an exception of Atchison. Post & Flagg, Strong, Sturges & Co., and other houses were cautious in their advices. Notice was received from a number of Eastern correspondents that a great number of specialists are refusing to take orders, and correspondents cannot accept orders and guarantee execution in case the market should sell over or under the limit.

Boom in Biscuit Stock.

National Biscuit common stock took the lead of the local market away from Can securities yesterday. The movement in Biscuit carried it from 41 to 45 with scarcely any reaction. That figure brought realizing which depressed the stock, but it closed firm at 44, a net gain of 3½ from the previous close. The buying was largely by Chapin & Gaylord and Schwartz, Dupee & Co. The movement is attributed to a pool. Comparatively little stock was met on the advance from 41 to 45. The impetus of the trading in the common carried the preferred up to 98¼. Trading in the common amounted to 14,670 shares.

American Can stocks were less active and weak. The common improved from the low point, but the preferred lost 1⅜. Central Union Telephone made another gain of 1, and Chicago Edison the same. Northwestern Elevated common was firm at 40.

Range of Cotton Prices.

Cotton—It was an exceptionally dull day on the Cotton Exchange. The variations did not allow even the scalping element to make the usual "turns," and offered no inducement to investors or the semi-professional trade. The opening was steady with prices 1@4 points lower. Both departments of the English market declined sharply from liquidation, prices declining to the lowest level reached since the season opened. After the call the market steadied a point or so on covering by nervous shorts, who feared possible manipulation of July and August. Receipts were up to the average, and crop news was favorable except in the Southwest, where rain was needed. It was said that in parts of Texas farms were being given over to prospecting for oil, but this new attraction for planters was not sufficiently broadcast to seriously affect the acreage of that State. Mill reports from Fall River and the South were gloomy as heretofore, with demand for cloths almost at a standstill. The weather forecast being favorable, and the estimates for tomorrow's receipts being large, shorts made no attempt at depressing values in the afternoon. The market was finally dull but steady, with prices net 5 points lower to 3 points higher. Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 8 5-16c, middling gulf, 8 9-16c. Sales 90 bales. Futures closed dull but steady: May, 7.91c; June, 7.90c; July, 7.91c; August, 7.61c; September, 7.24c; October, 7.24c; November, 7.17c; December, 7.17c; January, 7.18c.

FRIDAY, MAY 3, 1901.

The Chicago Constitutional Amendment. There is yet a hope, though it must be admitted it is a faint one, of the passage of the constitutional amendment drafted by the Civic federation. The resolution for a constitutional convention was defeated yesterday, as it should have been. The McKenzie resolution to limit the representation of Cook County also most properly failed to get the necessary number of votes. A handful of country Representatives, some Republicans and some Democrats, appreciated its injustice and refused to support it. An effort will be made to bring it up again today, but it is not likely to prove successful. In view of its defeat the country members may not feel inclined to vote for the Chicago amendment. It is to be hoped, however, that they will be liberal-minded enough not to beat it. It certainly will receive the vote of every Cook County member. No excuse, good, bad, or indifferent, can be found for any Representative from this county who fails to do the best he can for it.

The Referendum in Boston. The statistical department of Boston has recently issued some noticeable facts showing the comparative interest taken by electors in that city in referenda as against ordinary voting contests, during the decade from 1890 to 1899. While it appears therefrom that in general somewhat less interest is shown in referenda than in electoral contests, it appears on the other hand that interest in the former has distinctly increased during that period. For the five years 1895-'99 the mean per cents of actual to possible votes were 69.23 on license, 66.51 on all other questions, and 67.52 on all referenda, while the corresponding per cents for the principal offices were: For Mayor, 80.12; for Street Commissioner, 71.86; for Aldermen, 68.48; for Councilmen, 67.52; for School committee, 62.80. On questions other than license submitted to referendum, the highest per cent of the possible vote was cast in 1899 respecting the restoration of car tracks in Tremont street, and was 75.63. There were in all, aside from license, ten questions submitted to referendum, and there was an almost steady increase of interest shown. The lowest per cent of the possible vote, 33.40, was cast in 1894, and the highest, 75.63, in 1899. The mean per cent in respect to license also increased from 67.15 in the first half of the decade to 69.23 in the last half. These facts indicate that in Boston at least the referendum is a practicable and an increasingly popular method of settling public questions.

The South Carolina Exposition. Following closely upon the Pan-American Exposition, which opened informally this week at Buffalo, the gates of the South Carolina Interstate and West Indian exposition will be thrown open, and the North will be invited not only to visit but to contribute to it. As it will open in December and not close until May, 1902, Charleston should be a pleasant place of winter resort for sightseers. Although Congress failed to make an appropriation for this exposition, the Charleston people are far from discouraged. Ground is already broken for the buildings and the scheme has been placed upon a sound financial basis. Several Eastern cities have promised to participate, among them Philadelphia and Baltimore. Cuba, Porto Rico, and adjoining islands will contribute exhibits. As the exposition is commercial in its character, and intended to develop trade relations between North and South, the Charleston people are determined it shall be a success, and they will offer unusual inducements to attract exhibiters and visitors. One of these will be the cotton palace, which is to be built by the City of Charleston, in which cotton will be on exhibition in all its stages, from its growing in the soil to its preparation for the spinner and its final appearance as a manufactured product. In one respect the Charleston exposition will be fortunate. As it opens almost directly after the close of the Pan-American undoubtedly many of the exhibits as well as popular entertainments of the latter will find their way there, and thus add to its attractiveness. But apart from this the spirit with which the people of that State have entered upon the work promises a decided success.

The Weight of Evidence. In the reports of the investigation made by the committee of ministers into the results of closing the canteen at Fort Sheridan two things strike the average man with particular force. In the first place the committee visited the fort itself, and there heard what the officers of the post had to say on the subject. To a man, from Colonel Van Horne to Chaplain Vattman, the officers declared that since the post canteen was closed drunkenness has increased, and the effect on the morals and discipline of the soldiers has been demoralizing. The men who gave this testimony, it should be remembered, are directly responsible for the welfare and for the conduct of the enlisted men. That they do have a deep and personal interest in the welfare of the private soldiers whom they command they have shown many times, often at a considerable cost of inconvenience and even danger. It is one of the best traditions of the United States army that in times of war and of peace alike the officers of that army look after the comfort, safety, and welfare of their men before they consider their own. Yet the statements made by these officers were hotly denied and disputed by the ministers making the "investigation," one of whom finally declared that even if proof should be overwhelming that the abolition of the canteen has had a bad effect he would never ask that it be resumed, because he objected to the government keeping a "saloon." From Fort Sheridan the committee went to Highwood, a neighboring village, the saloons of which have been frequented by the soldiers since the canteen was abolished at the post. Here the principal witnesses who appeared to oppose the testimony of the army officers at the fort were none other than the eight saloonkeepers of Highwood. They were unanimous in testifying that the closing of the canteen had not increased the amount of drinking in their saloons, and stood in a solid phalanx behind the ministers in opposing the resumption of the post canteen. To a man whose eyes are not blinded by prejudice there can be no hesitation in deciding between the testimony of the saloonkeepers of Highwood on one side and that of the officers of Fort Sheridan on the other.

THE UNANIMOUS BANQUETERS.

Mr. Jefferson said in his first inaugural address: "We have called by different names brethren of the same principle. We are all Republicans; we are all Federalists." According to President McKinley a somewhat similar state of things exists at New Orleans. He was at a banquet in that city day before yesterday at which were present the Governor, the Mayor, and many other distinguished citizens of Louisiana, all of them Democrats. The President, in the graceful and playful remarks made by him on this occasion, sought for, but could not find, the differences of opinion of the Republican guests and the Democratic hosts.

The President said that presumably the latter were all protectionists, as were the former — at least so far as sugar was concerned—for he remembered how, when he was chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, some prominent Louisianians had appeared before the committee to say that rice and sugar must be protected. As the President was being entertained in a city which became an American city through expansion, he said it did not seem to him that there could be much difference of opinion between himself and his entertainers on the subject of expansion.

The President did not believe there was much if any difference of opinion between Republicans and the Democrats he addressed as to the desirability of river and harbor improvements—especially when the Mississippi was the river to be improved. There was no difference of opinion between them as to the expediency of promoting domestic and foreign commerce. He was inclined also to believe that his hosts were in favor of good money and plenty of it, as were their guests.

So the President was able to discover a good deal of unanimity so far as he and his Louisiana friends were concerned. The discovery seemed to please them, for they laughed and applauded. There was an evening of "good feelings."

A long Presidential tour puts to a severe test the powers as an attractive public speaker of the man who makes it. He has to make many addresses. Most of them are brief, but the ability to make a number of successful short speeches is as rare as the ability to write a number of successful short stories. The speaker is expected not to repeat himself and not to be commonplace and dull, but to have at least one new and happy thought in every address, and always to be bright if he cannot be brilliant. President Harrison was an adept at this business, and President McKinley's abilities in it are not to be lightly spoken of. He has made several felicitous addresses since he left Washington. The best of them all was the one at New Orleans.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT.

The students of Wellesley College in Massachusetts recently held a mass-meeting and seriously discussed the problem of self-government. It is reported that the addresses of the young women were earnest and practical, and that the large majority of them are in favor of the plan which will probably be adopted by the college authorities. This action of the young women of Wellesley has not been taken merely to secure a wider degree of personal liberty, or the opportunity to violate the ordinary social conventions or give Mrs. Grundy a chance to talk. They aver, indeed, that even while governing themselves they do not favor emancipation from chaperonage, even though the chaperon is rapidly becoming a thing of the past. The Boston Transcript, discussing the outcome of the meeting, says the scheme has been suggested by the attitude taken of late by sociological talkers and workers. "In a few words it is throwing upon every girl the responsibility of her own conduct, which must teach her self-reliance and self-control, and furnish her with a certain poise not to be acquired except as a development of the individual."

The outcome of the Wellesley experiment will be watched with much interest. A similar experiment has been tried in the Hyde Park High School of Chicago, with a fair degree of success. Better results may be expected in an institution where the pupils are older and nearer to active life and where they are assembled of their own volition, and not, as a rule, from parental suggestion to acquire the finish of education and to prepare for the active duties of life. It is another instance of the tendency of all the progessive movements of the day and of nearly every scheme of reform to assert the individual.

THE STREET SWEEPER NUISANCE.

Yesterday's TRIBUNE contained a graphic description of the ignorant activity displayed by the Street Cleaning department in ordering sweepers into the business district at 9 o'clock at night to ply their dusty work until the hour for closing the theaters. If the object had been to incommode the greatest possible number of people the work could not have been done with more malignant skill. Sprinkling carts did not precede the sweepers, and the latter raised blinding clouds of disease breeding dust wherever they went. There could not have been a better exemplification of how not to do it.

Fortunately, when the new Commissioner of Public Works read of what had happened the enormity of this proceeding struck him, and he gave orders to prevent the repetition of it. He has directed that the work of sweeping shall not begin until after the theater crowds are off the streets. One of his subordinates makes the point that this will be a mere shifting of the inconvenience from the evening to the morning crowds. He assumes that there are as many people on the streets at the time when the sweepers will get through in the morning under the proposed new arrangement as there are now at night. There will not be, unless his employés dawdle with their work. The objection probably is due to unwillingness to change the existing system and to make the men work later at night.

There will be no such dust nuisance as there was night before last at any time in the morning or evening if the sprinklers precede the sweepers. One city employé says they did so night before last. They did not, though they should have done so. There are other cities in which the dirt is removed by sweepers without creating such an intolerable nuisance as Chicagoans are subjected to again and again. What is done elsewhere can be done here. The new commissioner appreciates the necessity of an improvement in this branch of the public service, and nothing but the inveterate stolidity of subordinates who object to change of any kind in the established routine can prevent his carrying out his commendable plans.

A NEW ATHLETIC SPORT.

A letter from Ulverstone, in Tasmania, to the New York Herald contains the details of a new athletic sport which that far away country has contributed for the entertainment of the world. It combines the useful with the ornamental, and holds out prospects of great utility to households should it come into general vogue.

The new sport is called "axmanship." Its name explains its character. The axmen meet once a year in Ulverstone, and compete for the championship in splitting and sawing wood, under the auspices of an organization called the "United Australian Axmen's association." In this year's carnival there were entries from Victoria, New South Wales, and New Zealand, as well as Tasmania. It lasted three days, and the average attendance was over 6,000, including the Governors of those provinces and other officials. This year for the first time the axmen's and sawyers' championships were won by the same man, Thomas Pettitt of Spruit, Tasmania, who broke the records, chopping a log of tough wood, six feet four inches in girth, in four minutes eight and one-half seconds, and sawing a log of the same size in one minute and forty-nine seconds.

The new Tasmania athletic sport has much to commend it, as it combines play and work, and can be made not only of great profit to the individual muscle, but to the happiness of the home and the well being of the community. If all the muscular energy now running to waste in football, fisticuffs, baseball, bowling, golf, tennis, etc., and which yields simply delightful personal entertainment, could be devoted to the Tasmanian sport how much could be done for the general good while the muscular profit would still remain!

It is not likely that the new sport of axmanship will spread rapidly, for it requires extraordinary brawn, but should the smart set take it up and thus give it a send off it may yet become quite common, and to the extent that it is so it will be likely to make home happier and reduce the area of domestic infelicity. If methods can be adopted to relieve the monotony of splitting and sawing by the introduction of cheerful discourse and attractive surroundings the new pastime might become quite popular.

EXCESS IN COLLEGE ATHLETICS.

Professor Arlo Bates of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology undertakes in the May Forum to stem the torrent of enthusiasm for college athletics. He thinks the physical is being advanced at the risk of injury to the intellectual. The college man, he believes, is frequently turned from literature and the inner life by a too great zeal for athletics. His article is a sober presentation of the evils of excessive devotion to sports and of consequent neglect of books. While exception justly may be taken to some things he says, his indictment is one that not only provokes thought but commands assent in many points.

Mr. Bates takes as his text the case of an ex-college athlete who asked to be told how he could learn to enjoy reading. This young man confessed that his interest during his college career was centered in athletics. He kept up with his classes, but his heart was altogether in his games and in the newspaper comments on them. After graduation he went into business and became ambitious to do some solid reading, but was disgusted to find that he had no interest in books—that he cared only for the sporting page of the daily newspaper. Mr. Bates cites this young man as a horrible example of the effects of too much athletics. His generalizations on the subject are not altogether sound.

It is true that scores of college athletes pour most of their energies into bodily exercise, and that their mental training suffers to some degree in consequence. The athletic feature undoubtedly is being overdone in many institutions. Mr. Bates is justified in charging that the abnormal public attention lavished upon college sports and upon the boys who engage in them is a bad thing. It tends to make the students value muscle more highly than brains, and popularity more highly than learning. But Mr. Bates jumps to a questionable conclusion when he infers that the really studious boys are thus turned from intellectual tastes and pursuits. Students merely follow their natural bent when they choose to give their main attention to football or to any other sport. The man who finds books a bore after leaving college would never have been deeply in love with them in any case. It is nonsense to say that athletics kept him from becoming a learned man. Probably what athletics did was to keep him in college a good deal longer than he would have remained without that outlet for his overflowing physical energies.

THE CHINESE INDEMNITY.

The International Committee on Indemnity at Pekin has reported in favor of a total of $273,000,000. Large as is this bill of damages which China must pay for the Boxer riots, it is considerably smaller than some of the European powers were at first inclined to demand. Credit for this reduction must be given to the United States. When the other powers were pressing claims amounting to a total of $400,000,000 the Americans urged that one-half or one-quarter of that sum ought to be sufficient. The reduced amount finally agreed upon undoubtedly bears witness to American influence in the international councils at Pekin. It will be remembered that an American, Mr. Foster, induced the Japanese to make a large reduction in the indemnity which China had to pay after the China-Japan war. Now the Chinese government owes thanks to the United States for a similar act performed solely out of good will and a desire to be just.

There still remains the knotty problem of how this enormous sum is to be raised by China. The three chief sources of revenue are the marine duties, the land tax, and the "likin" duties, levied on goods when they go from one province to another. The continental powers of Europe are in favor of increasing the tariff rates and mortgaging the receipts of the custom-houses to secure a part of the indemnity. But these revenues are already hypothecated to some extent to secure British loans. An increase in the rates would necessarily shut out some of the imports that now enter China. As the United States and Great Britain are most largely interested in this trade, both are opposed to any serious increase in the customs duties. Such a step would tend to close the open door, for which both have contended so earnestly.

The land tax paid to the imperial government through the provincial Viceroys was originally sent to Pekin in the form of grain, and a part of it is still paid in that form. The rest is commuted into silver, but in either form it is subject to much official peculations before the remnants of it reach the capital. The likin would be the most available tax to levy upon for indemnity purposes if it were not for the fact that to seize it would in many cases be to deprive local and provincial officials of their pay, which is already so meager that it has to be eked out by illegal "squeezes." The problem might be solved with comparative ease if the whole wretched fiscal system of China could be remodeled, but that would be likely to precipitate a worse disturbance than the one of last summer. Under these circumstances it will require much careful study to collect $273,000,000 from the impecunious empire.

STREET TRADING CHILDREN.

A general movement is on foot in the larger cities of England to inquire into and deal with the subject of children who trade in the streets, especially at night. Two years ago the City of Liverpool, where there was especial need therefor, adopted some advance regulations in respect to this matter. Manchester and other provincial cities are now moving in this direction, the London County Council has lately had prepared an elaborate report on the subject, and a committee of the House of Commons is making a general investigation in the same line throughout the country.

Liverpool forbade all trading in the streets by children under certain ages, required a license in any case, provided that visiting a saloon should forfeit the license, and made an effort to study the life of the children involved. In a report recently issued by the city it is stated that under the new regulations the number of children in the streets during school hours and late at night has greatly decreased, and that the appearance of those who are licensed has decidedly improved. The fact has been established, however, that in many cases the children trading in the streets come from unfit homes or live in lodging-houses, and that some of them still lack decent clothing. It is accordingly recommended that the city should provide suitable dwelling places and also uniforms for these children, leaving them to pay for them, unless unable so to do. It is also recommended that girls should be further discouraged or altogether prohibited from trading in the streets at night.

Small children hawking gum, or flowers, or papers in public places late at night constitute one of the most indefensible sights to be found in a great city. Sometimes the sight means that parents are ill or involuntarily out of work; sometimes that they are needlessly exploiting their children; sometimes that the child has no home. In any event, however, their trade should not be encouraged by patronage. Such patronage betrays the same sort of cheap and unthinking sentimentalism which leads one to buy a paper of the smallest baby who can "holler" it on the corner, rather than from a man or from a boy of proper age for handling papers.

Public regulation is, however, as Liverpool has demonstrated, the most effective method of coping with such child labor. If in the attempt at such regulation trying conditions farther back in the child's life are brought to light so much the more justification for the attempt.

IN A MINOR KEY.

Reciprocity.

"But you are several years under age, you know," said the friend of the family. "How did you persuade your mother to consent to your marrying so young?"

"I told her," replied the youthful bride-elect, "that if she didn't I'd never give my consent to her marrying that old widower that's been coming to see her so long—and I'd tell him just how old she is."

Obviously.

Mr. Chugwater—"Some of the eggs burst, I suppose. Why don't you use your intellect once in awhile, instead of asking me about everything?"

Deplorable Mixup.

"The way of it is this," said the young man in the golf suit. "Dick's in love with the girl that's sweet on John. John is smitten with the girl that's making eyes at Tom, and Tom's stuck on the girl that's after me. That makes me the key to the whole situation."

"How is that?" asked the young woman in the light buff shirt waist.

"Why, I don't care for any of them. I withdraw from the combination and it recoils back on itself and makes everything right. Don't you see?"

ANOTHER SIGN OF SPRING.

A. Weed of Alexis was in the city yesterday afternoon.—Monmouth (Ill.) Review.

YESTERDAY, between 4 p. m. and midnight, would have been a good time for the street railway people to have sprung their open cars on the public. They have seldom overlooked such a chance.

O, DEAR.

[From the Works of Wit Leslie, the Original Hoosier Poet.]

Just hark to me, I'll put in a song
Those people I have chosen upon;
Whatever they do, whatever they be
I hope they won't think hard of me.
 O, Dear!

There's old Jack Rice, the very first one
Where you can get blacksmithing done;
He'll whack you out most anything
From a coon dog collar to a wedding ring.
 O, Dear!

There's Hiram Link, little further west,
He's our log hauler—one of the best.
He buys his hay, but steals his corn,
And he'll get drunk as sure as you're born.
 O, Dear!

And there's Bill Raurk, you all know, well,
He has groceries for to sell.
He's got his sugar full o' sand;
Look out, he'll cheat you where you stand.
 O, Dear!

And there's Bill Dunn, as you kin see,
He's cute as a mouse, and quick as a flea;
He goes to church and sings and prays,
And sinful games of cards he plays.
 O, Dear!

And there's Jim Watt, I most forgot,
The very worst pill of the very whole lot.
Dang it all, I never did see
What a place those Springs is a-getting for to be.
 O, Dear!

CHINA will have to raise part of that indemnity from her "likin" revenues. Perhaps this will make the demand more to her likin'.

JUPE'S GOOD JOB.

"I will see that the dust is laid," said Jupiter Pluvius yesterday morning to one of our high-priced assistants, whom we dispatched to interview him. As Jupe made this significant remark he clasped his hand tighly around the handle of his sprinkling pot. Jupe was wearing a mackintosh and a slouch hat—the kind of hat worn on railway journeys by people that know how to be comfortable. It doesn't fall off when you lie back in your seat. It was an old hat, of gray felt, and looked as if it had seen much service. One could tell by the way that Jupe cocked it over his ear that he meant every word he said. And he did. After luncheon he started in sprinkling, and by dark he soaked Chicago good and plenty. We suggest to Superintendent Carroll that he get a hat like Jupe's. It's all in the hat.

IN order to make the situation clear it should be stated that Colonel Van Horne was commissioned to aid and abet drunkenness in the United States army. The sight of a sober soldier irritates the commandant beyond measure, and if he had his way every man jack of 'em would be in the guardhouse or the hospital.

Notes from an Amateur Experimental Farm

SELECTING A SITE

AMATEUR farming is a disease which is most prevalent among people who have lived for some years in flat buildings. It is especially virulent in the spring and summer, usually wholly disappearing during the winter months. In the first stages of the disease the victim is usually subject to strange, though harmless, illusions and hallucinations. He fancies that he sees in his mind's eye a little house standing far back from the dirt road in a grove of stately oak trees. The front of the house is half covered with vines and climbing roses and the air is full of the perfume from the hay fields. Back of the house is a big red barn, wherein an imaginary horse eats nonexistent oats and a deer-like Jersey cow chews a phantom cud.

Before the house the green turf sweeps down to the road in billows, and a couple of picturesque property lambs gambol gracefully under the oaks. Up the same oaks squirrels are running, waving their bushy tails and chattering defiance to even imaginary invaders.

In the secondary stages of the disease the illusions become more alarming. The patient sees people driving up to the house and offering large sums for the yellow-legged spring chickens which have suddenly appeared in large quantities in the foreground. The Jersey cow comes forward and modestly presents ten pounds of golden yellow butter, tastefully done up in a napkin and stamped with her coat of arms, for the possession of which the assembled multitude quarrel furiously, each of them raising his neighbor's bid. From the barnyard appears a procession of hens, each bearing a fresh-laid egg, with the date of its arrival written on it in indelible pencil. At this point the multitude falls down on its knees and each of the number offers all his earthly possessions for a dozen. Gradually these visions fade into one, and the patient sees himself sitting in an easy chair on a rose-embowered veranda, with a bag of double eagles beside him and a couple of attentive servitors offering him mint juleps and other cooling refreshments. When this stage of the disease is reached the patient needs careful attention and watching. He is likely to become violent and attack the janitor of the flat building or imprudently resign his lucrative position in a La Salle street insurance office.

"THE JERSEY PRESENTS TEN POUNDS OF BUTTER."

But the crisis of the disease comes when the patient sits down and begins to put his illusions into writing. After a prolonged and painful struggle he will produce a piece of literature like this:

Wanted—In the vicinity of Chicago, a place of from three to ten acres, with small house and barn. Must be reasonable. Rent for six months with view to purchase.

The patient will demand that this production of a disordered brain be promptly inserted in the real estate columns of some Sunday newspaper. His nurses and other attendants will, of course, strongly oppose the idea, but experience has demonstrated that in humoring the patient at this critical period lies the chief hope of permanently restoring him to health and urban happiness. In no other way can the antitoxin be secured which will successfully combat the amateur farming bacillus on its native heath.

The next day after the victim's literary effort has appeared in print a man wearing a silk hat, a frock coat, somewhat shiny about the seams, and an enthusiastic manner will call and ask to see him. At whatever risk, permission should be given for him to interview the patient.

"I have just what you want," the caller will begin. "Beautiful scenery, a small house, two springs of water, and as much land as you want. I will rent, sell, or trade for down-town vacant."

"Where, may I ask," the patient will say, "is the place you speak of located?"

"About sixty miles southeast of Nashville, Tenn., will be the answer; "right in the great coal and iron district, and," lowering his voice to a whisper, "I may say to you that signs of oil and other minerals are plentiful in the land."

"A NICE LITTLE PLACE FOR $300 A MONTH."

It must not be expected that this first treatment will effect a cure. The patient will simply take it as a criticism on his literary style and will amend his effort so that it will read: "On the north shore, within thirty miles of Chicago."

The visit of the next caller is likely to be followed by a slight relapse, depending upon the vividness of the description of the "simple little place" which he has to offer at one of the better known suburban villages along the north shore. He is vague as to prices and exact locations, but wishes to take the patient out on a personal tour of inspection. It would be dangerous to refuse permission to make this trip, no matter how great may be the apparent risk.

The patient will ride up the north shore on a suburban train and will be met at the proper station by the real estate agent with an impressive landau and pair of high stepping horses. He will be driven through winding roads and carefully laid out country places to a large stone structure, containing twenty rooms, with a caretaker's lodge in front and several cast iron deer disporting on the lawn.

"Now, here," the real estate man will say, "is a modest, quiet, little place. It has all the charms of a truly rural situation, and at the same time is fitted with a hot air furnace and a driveway bordered with large whitewashed stones. I can let you have this whole place, just as it stands, including the ornamental, artificial ravine at the rear for $350 a month."

This treatment is likely to result in a great improvement in the patient's condition, but, sooner or later, it will be noticed that the phrase "must be reasonable" in the literary production already referred to "is somewhat vague and uncertain. I should have been plain about it and said $40 a month."

There is nothing the friends and attendants of the amateur farming victim can do when this discovery is made except to be patient and wait for the treatment to run its regular course. A few days after the second correction has been made a third real estate agent will appear. He will be so fluent and so enthusiastic that all the worst symptoms of the disease will reappear. He will take the patient out on one of the elevated roads and will show him a little toy house, painted in several bright colors. Then he will point out a plat of ground, measuring about 20x30 feet, in the rear of the house, and will declare that it offers a "fine opportunity for market gardening."

"FINE OPPORTUNITY FOR MARKET GARDENING."

Only one more treatment is usually necessary. It comes in the shape of a man with a place to which none of the objections which have proved fatal in the other cases applies. There is plenty of ground about the house, it is located only a few miles from the city and close to a railroad station, it rents for even less than the amount fixed, and there are other advantages over which the agent grows eloquent. The patient, who is now well on the way to recovery, goes out to look at it. It is a small frame house, without shade of any kind and long innocent of paint. It is badly in need of repair and worse in need of cleansing. In the dirty yard around the house a couple of buggies and other vehicles, each of them minus at least one wheel, are sadly reclining. On the remnants of the fence a gaunt cat is perched, and a yellow hound dog is tied with a rope to a stake in front of a barrel lying on its side. In the background a brown and white billygoat is playfully eating the decayed remains of what was once a lawnmower.

"All the live stock and implements go with the place," says the agent, whose sense of humor has never been developed.

In nine cases out of ten the cure is now complete, and the recovered victim hurries back to close a lease of his flat for two years, with the privilege of renewal.

Once in a great while, however, a man has been so strongly infected with the amateur farming virus that even this treatment is not efficacious. He goes rapidly from one crisis to another, until finally he wakes up some morning and finds that most of his delusions and hallucinations have become realities. The Jersey cow may not voluntarily bring forward the pat of butter, and the hens may leave their eggs where they lay them, but, in general, he realizes all that he has dreamed of. It is almost always the case that he runs across the place which strikes his fancy purely by accident. He falls in love with it at first sight. Sometimes he is found later anxiously consulting a divorce lawyer in the real estate line. But in the first blush of possession he feels that he must be envied of the gods.

"LIVE STOCK AND IMPLEMENTS ALL GO WITH THE PLACE."

*Decrease.

Look for Less Traffic.

Some officials here believe that the high water mark of railroad traffic was reached in March and that from now on there will be a decrease in business. A leading official of one of the Eastern roads said yesterday: "I believe that east-bound freight rates will be lower the coming summer than ever before. Tariff rates are not being maintained on any class of traffic, big shippers of grain and provisions dictating the rates. There has been a marked decrease in traffic and all indications point to a greater falling off. Every railroad in the country during the last three years has added largely to its equipment. The managers will not want these thousands of cars to stand idle and to keep them moving will take business at any rate they can get. I do not think the outlook could be more unfavorable."

Will Take Up Colonist Fares.

Commissioner Donald has just issued a call for the regular monthly meeting of the Central Passenger association to be held in the Monadnock Building on May 8. Among the more important subjects to be considered are the following: Division of colonist fares to Western destinations, adoption of uniform style of prepaid ticket order, Pan-American subjects, differential party fares, checking excess baggage of advance agents of theatrical troupes without charge, special excursion rates to Colorado and Utah points during summer months tendered by Western lines.

Excursion Rates Granted.

Excursion rates at a fare and one-third for the round trip have been granted by the Central Passenger association roads for the following occasions: Cumberland Presbyterian Church, General Assembly, West Point, Miss., May 16 to 24, from all Central Passenger association points; Ancient Order United Workmen, Supreme Lodge, Buffalo, N. Y., June 10 to 20, from all Central, Trunk Line, and Southeastern association points; Municipal League of the State of Indiana, Columbus, Ind., May 8 to 10, from all points in Indiana.

Other News from Railroads.

There was on exhibition at the Michigan Central ticket office yesterday a large oil painting by H. H. Cross, the well-known painter of Indians and Western scenery. This painting represents an American Indian warrior astride a fiery and untamed buffalo, rushing madly along a railroad track in the direction of the Pan-American exposition. The Indian is armed with a spear in his right hand and the emblematic pan over his shoulder.

There is considerable complaint from all sources that the rates agreed upon by the railroads east of Chicago to Buffalo for the Pan-American exposition are too high to induce any business. The fares are in [illegible] being based on the limits of the tickets. It is believed a flat rate of one cent a mile ought to be made, with tickets good for ten days at least.

The Chicago Great Western has obtained the funds necessary to construct the proposed extension from Fort Dodge, Ia., to Omaha, Neb. The new line will cost $10,000,000, and a syndicate of bankers has subscribed a fund of $10,500,000, 15 per cent of which has already been paid.

New Railroad Incorporated.

Springfield, Ill., May 2.—[Special.]—The Peoria and Springfield railway company today filed articles of incorporation with the County Recorder. The life of the corporation extends for fifty years from May 1, 1901. The incorporators and first Board of Directors are composed of Dwight L. Wing and Turney English of Springfield, Thomas W. Kenyon of Athens, Tompkins C. Delavan of New York, and Myer Shamburg of Philadelphia, Pa. The capital stock of $2,000,000 is divided into 20,000 shares, each being valued at $100.

HOLDS TO UNION PACIFIC.

HARRIMAN DECLARES HE HAS NOT LOST CONTROL.

Belief That Vanderbilt or Other Interests Had Succeeded in Acquiring Control of the Overland Route Is Weakened by Yesterday's Developments in Wall Street—Pennsylvania Now Said to Be After Santa Fe Stock, but the Report Is Denied.

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—Friends of E. H. Harriman declared confidently today that control of the Union Pacific railroad had not passed to others. Mr. Harriman himself, when asked about the matter, replied:

"I certainly have not let go of anything that I have had."

Mr. Harriman was pressed for a further explanation, but he said:

"There is really nothing to be said on the subject. There is no news."

The belief prevalent in Wall street since last Monday that Vanderbilt or other interests had succeeded in acquiring a majority of the Union Pacific shares was weakened by the confident tone of Mr. Harriman's friends, supplemented as it was by the erratic course of Union Pacific shares in the stock market.

Harriman in Control.

Reports were current on the Stock Exchange that in the brisk competitive buying last Tuesday Mr. Harriman and George J. Gould had secured enough of the stock to insure the Harriman syndicate's control of the property. It is generally believed that Mr. Harriman and his friends, after obtaining complete control of the Union Pacific, originally allowed their stock holdings to diminish, trusting in their ability to secure proxies enough to enable them to retain the management.

While all doubt as to the future control of the Union Pacific is by no means removed, the statement may be made on good authority that the close of the Stock Exchange today found the Harriman syndicate in a much stronger position than it was in Monday and Tuesday. There is also good reason to believe that the Vanderbilt and affiliated interests have secured a large piece of the stock, and that even if there is no change in control there will be an arrangement designed to protect the interests of Chicago and Northwestern and St. Paul.

Deal On in Santa Fe.

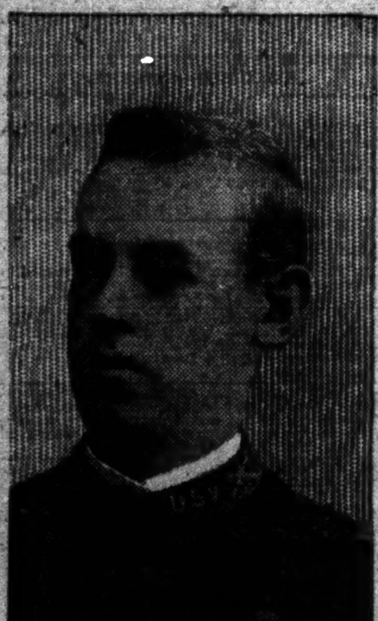
Extraordinary trading in the stock of the Atchison, Topeka and Sante Fe railroad revived the rumors that the Pennsylvania railroad interests were buying into that property. More than 556,000 shares of Atchison common and 118,200 shares of preferred changed hands. The bidding for Atchison was sudden and sensational in character, the price advancing steadily from 77½ to 87¾.

Representatives of the Pennsylvania railroad interests denied there was any attempts being made by the Pennsylvania people to secure control of the Atchison. New York brokerage houses, however, are known to have sent to Philadelphia large blocks of the Atchison stock purchased in this market. More than 100,000 shares of Atchison common have been shipped to buyers in Philadelphia, it is asserted, within the last two or three days.

PROMOTED TO REGULAR ARMY.

Captain Edward Miller of the Thirtieth Volunteer Infantry Receives Honor for Gallant Service.

Bloomington, Ill., May 2.—[Special.]—The recent appointment of Captain Edward Y. Miller of this city to a First Lieutenancy in the regular army by President McKinley was a signal recognition of his ability as an officer and of gallant service with the volunteers. Captain Miller has announced his acceptance of the post and will shortly take the required examination. He has been connected with military affairs for a number of years. While serving as Captain of Company D, Fifth Illinois Infantry, the Spanish-American war broke out and he and his company proceeded to Springfield and thence to Chickamauga Park. Although the services of the regiment were not needed, yet it gave a good account of itself while in camp. When Colonel Culver of the Fifth was asked to recommend a number of officers from his command for service abroad, he selected Captain Miller and President McKinley appointed him a Captain in the Thirtieth Volunteer Infantry, Colonel Cornelius Gardiner's command. Captain Miller and his company became distinguished in the Philippines and his selection for regular army service is a second mark of honor, and, as his brother officers will declare, an honor worthily bestowed.



CAPTAIN EDWARD Y. MILLER.

ICE JAM IN RIVER IS WORSE.

Stream Blocked from Lake St. Clair to Port Huron and Down-Bound Fleet Held in Check.

Detroit, Mich., May 2.—Reports from up the river today indicate that the ice jam is worse than any time since it began. The ice extends from Lake St. Clair to Port Huron and as far north in Lake Huron as the eye can see. The wrecking tug Favorite and the steamer Hutchinson, which started the ice yesterday and liberated part of the down-bound fleet, are reported fast near Algonac.

St. Clair, Mich., May 2.—The running ice caught the barge Uranus at Marine City today and drove it against the steamer H. S. Pickands. All the upper works on the Pickands' bow were carried away, and a hole was punched in the stern of the Uranus. The ice stopped running tonight. The ice is crowding the steamer Nyanza on to the head of Fawn Island and it is likely to go aground.

Cleveland, O., May 2.—Vessel men today figured up the results of the engineers' strike and the ice jam in St. Clair River and estimated that the delay to navigation this spring has so far cut into the season's carrying capacity of the lake fleet that the surplus tonnage which confronted them during the winter has been entirely overcome. Every day that is lost now on account of the ice reduces the season's capacity of the lake fleet 100,000 tons in the ore trade. The prospects for keeping freight rates up to the figures already established are correspondingly bright.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 2.—Four of the grain fleet from Chicago, which were fast in the ice in the St. Clair River, reached here this afternoon. The Thomas Cranage led the fleet, arriving at 3 o'clock, closely followed by the Fitzgerald. The St. Paul and Holden came in at dark. The rest of the boats which passed Detroit yesterday will be in during the night.

MAY CORN SELLS UP TO 55 CENTS.

Small Shorts Have Wild Time Trying to Cover and Phillips Does Little.

BIG BEARS HANGING ON.

Several Ask Bull Leader to Settle, but He Refers Them to the Market.

ADVANCE IN JULY PRICE.

May corn sold yesterday at 55 cents, an advance of five cents for the day on an excited demand by shorts.

Before the opening some of the shorts tried to settle with Phillips on the basis of the closing price of the night before, and, failing that, of the opening price of the day, but he declined. After the close of the regular session it was persistently rumored that one concern short 900,000 bushels had approached Phillips with an offer to settle at 59½ cents, an advance of 4½ cents above the highest price recorded in the pit. The story was told with much detail, but was flatly denied by the bull leader.

These were some of the striking features of the May corn deal, which grows more sensational as it grows nearer the end, which may not come before the last day of the month.

Wild Rush at Opening.

There was a wild scurrying and scrambling in the pit at the opening, and at intervals during the session. Stop-loss limits were reached and passed in the twinkling of an eye, and few of the orders were filled at the price set. The demand was for small lots, none over 50,000 bushels, but the small short makes as much noise, or more, trying to get out of a tight place as the big one. The big shorts are still standing behind their guns, with what pleasure they may find, but there is a suspicion that they are short of ammunition. With a long line, estimated as high as 15,000,000 bushels, and only 27,000 bushels of contract grade in the receipts yesterday, these receipts must increase steadily at least 2,000 per cent throughout the month to relieve all the shorts of their difficulties or swamp the long holders.

Phillips himself took little part in the pit operations in May. He stood on the edge of the pit much of the time, with his arms folded, watching the shorts boost the price higher. The attitude was typical, the same as that of the wild day in March when the bear raid forced a break of four cents, and he seemed to be threatened with total annihilation as a bull operator and leader of the farmer speculators. But the expression was vastly different. In March it was a grim, set, dogged look, a hang-on-till-death expression. Yesterday the bull leader wore a contented look as if he were saying: "Go ahead and enjoy yourselves in there. You are making higher prices, but they are not high enough yet to interest me. My turn will come later."

Phillips Does Little Openly.

The only part Phillips took openly in the May campaign was to pay the top price for one lot of 10,000 bushels, but he immediately sold it at the same price to Ware & Leland, commission men. Another lot of 20,000 bushels was bought for McIntyre & Marshall, a New York house, an indication that some of the seaboard exporters who have hedges out in May against cash purchases are beginning to come in.

After touching 55 cents late in the session the May price settled back to 53½ cents at the close, a net gain for the day of 4 cents.

Trade in July corn was almost as excited as in the May and much heavier. There is a large short interest in that month, and the indications that Phillips will ship all the contract corn to the seaboard are making the shorts anxious. Possible injury to the growing crop by the unseasonably hot, dry weather in the corn belt and cabled reports that the estimates of the exportable surplus in Argentina had been reduced 50 per cent were also bullish factors. One house—Finley Barrell & Co.—bought nearly 2,000,000 bushels, and Phillips' sales were put as high as 1,500,000 bushels, but whether on orders or as a hedge against cash holdings was an open question. July corn closed a shade over 47 cents, a net gain of 1¼ cents.

Phillips Talks of Markets.

Phillips had little to say about the situation. "It looks as though the May price would go higher," he admitted. "Certainly no big purchases could have been made on that market today without a much sharper advance. Some applications for private settlement were made, but they were small ones and the applicants were referred to the market. When the price gets high enough there will be some corn for sale. I do not think the advance too rapid and do not fear it will increase the contributions of contract corn from the country. Just about as much will come anyway. There is little corn in the country which will grade if the inspection is maintained and I have no doubt it will be."

Says Buy and Hang On.

To his trade Phillips gives the following advice:

"What more can we say to you on corn and oats? Buy July corn for investment and, our word for it, you will not have occasion to regret. We may have little recessions from time to time, but don't become shaky, but realize that corn is worth the money, and we advise holding your stocks into the summer, when we feel confident you will, without a question of doubt, realize much higher prices. The foreigner is bound to come to us for the comparatively small amount we can spare from our light stocks held in this country, and we are also confident that they will be obliged to accept the actual conditions and take our corn at advanced prices. You no doubt noticed the action of the market today in both corn and oats, hence it is unnecessary for us to go into details at this writing. We repeat, buy both corn and oats, and we predict a still higher range for any month."

The ordinary cash business in corn was at a standstill. No. 3 corn, which just missed grading No. 2, selling at two cents under July, and therefore nine cents under May. Shorts were subjected to margin calls to cover the advance of the day and are now going through a part of the experience to which Phillips was subjected during the bear raid.

SWEPT BY FIERCE FOREST FIRE.

Large Areas of Timber and Orchards in Pennsylvania Destroyed by Blaze in Mountains.

Uniontown, Pa., May 2.—One of the fiercest forest fires that ever swept over the mountains has been raging for two days and nights between Somerfield and Addison, in Somerset County. Large stretches of timber, orchards and fences have been destroyed, and a blackened waste marks the track of the fire. The citizens succeeded in saving their homes and buildings. Many sheep were burned. The fire is now under control.

Charged with Conspiracy.

Flint, Mich., May 2.—[Special.]—Joseph W. Stockwell, former court stenographer of this city, is under arrest charged with conspiracy, and warrants are out for ex-Under Sheriff C. K. Warner, ex-Prosecuting Attorney Johnson, Rose Taylor, George Rowland, and Dr. W. H. White on a similar charge. It is claimed that last June, by means of a false charge, Jacob Raquet, a Saginaw brewer, was mulcted out of $3,000.

Amos Sterling Convicted of Murder.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 2.—Amos Sterling, colored, was today convicted of murder for the killing of Roy Wilson White, the young University of Pennsylvania professor, who was robbed and beaten to death with an iron bar in West Philadelphia on May 19 last. Two other negroes, Henry Ivory and Charles Perry, have also been convicted and are under sentence to be hanged for complicity in the murder.

YOUNG MEN FOR STEEL WORKS.

Hundreds May Find Employment There, Says Superintendent Laudig, but They Must Work.

"The great iron and steel works of this country offer employment for hundreds of well trained young men—providing they do not wear white collars," said O. O. Laudig, superintendent of the Joliet steel works of the Illinois Steel company in a lecture yesterday to the students of the Armour Institute of Technology.

Superintendent Laudig had been secured by the officers of the institute to make a talk on "Practical Blast Furnaces." Besides giving the students in engineering an explanation of the chemical reaction that blast furnaces produce in ores and the details of furnace construction and management, the speaker gave his hearers advice about their relations to their employers and fellow-workmen while inside the steel works.

"If technical students do not learn at school that their education does not enable them to play the gentleman in the iron works they learn it afterward. The kind of men, educated or not, are not wanted who come down to work at 9 o'clock and expect to go at 4:30 or 5. A young man with training has a great field open for him in the iron works today, but he must not be dainty. He may be prepared to get along with six hours' sleep a night and little time for recreation. The student who comes from a technical school will find he will not be required to dress better than his employer, and the superintendent of the iron works usually looks more like a coke shoveler than a manager during working hours.

"When you have men working under you it is probable you will have to work along with them, but always let them know that you are a trifle better than they are. It is a necessity that you have your men under perfect control, and you cannot do this if you work on their level. Let the workmen do the work and you do the directing. The overseer belongs over his men, not with them. This is something that good managers find out early in life."

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS.

ATTRACTIVE DESCRIPTIONS BY A LOVER OF NATURE.

In "The Delectable Mountains" Arthur Colton Has Told Several Tales Which Have for Setting Charming World Pictures of Outdoor Scenes—The Stories Themselves Are Uneven in Worth, but the Descriptive Talent Shown by Author Is of the Highest.

CIRCLING about a certain eminence or group of eminences of New England, which may or may not be on the map, lie to east and north and west and south villages, valleys, woods, and rivers each with its own story. Mr. Arthur Colton has written out these stories, collected them in a volume, and, for obvious reasons, called it "The Delectable Mountains" (Scribners) the aptness of which title it must be left to the taste of the individual reader to decide. The stories are unquestionably well written, and those who love nature and human nature in their pristine simplicity and unrestrained wildness will probably like them. The story itself often suffers in the writer's interest in the setting of it, but that is pardonable, since he has a much clearer insight and a much livelier imagination concerning his rivers and woods and valleys and characters when taken severally than when taken collectively and in given relations to each other. Take for example his description of the Wyantenang River in "The Leather Hermit." "It is no spendthrift flood stream to be whirling over the bottom lands in April and scarcely able to wet its middle stones in August, but a shrewd and honest river, a canny river, flowing among a canny folk, a companionable river, loving both laughter and sentiment, with a taste for the varieties of life and a fine vein of humor. Observe how it dances and sputters down the rapids—not really losing its temper, but pretending to be nervous—dives into that sloping pass where the rocks hang high and drip forever, runs through it like a sleuth hound, darkly and savagely, and saunters out into the sunlight, as who should say in a guileless manner, 'You don't happen to know where I'm going?' Then it wanders about the valley, spreads out comfortably, and lies quiet a space. 'But it really makes no difference, you know,' and after that gives a chuckle, rounds a bunch of hills, and goes scampering off quite taken up with a new idea. And so in many ways it is an entertaining and friendly river, with a liking for a joke and a pretty notion for dramatic effect."

And here, loath to leave the river, one must turn to the story enacted on its banks, which is not nearly so interesting. Almost every page offers some such pen picture, and it is these that stand out until one forgets the story itself.

One tale that the reader will not be likely to forget, however, is "Nausicaa," at the same time it is the personality of two of its characters that makes for the attraction of it. Sandy is a sick soldier, who is taken in and nursed back to health by a lady of means and refinement. During his convalescence he would repeat to his kind friend and her beautiful niece, by way of entertainment, bits of poetry composed by his friend, Kid Sadler. Kid's poetry was rich in philosophy, picked up in the alleys and byways of life, but for polite society Sandy knew that it needed expurgation, and his attempts in that line are amusing. "An' 'is auburn hair's burned bricky red from leanin' over hell" Sandy, after a moment of agonized effort, changed to "An' his auburn hair's turned bricky red from falling down a well." Also in—

"An' now I know a few things
That's useful and selected,
As to how to put hard liquor where Hard liquor is expected."

He changed the last lines to—

"An' put them things in moral verse

with a plea for Kid's obscurity, attributing it to poetic license, but the beautiful niece loved it, and Sandy was satisfied. Both Sandy and Kid are delightful, and it is to be hoped Mr. Colton sometimes will let his readers follow them much farther in their career.

Upon the stirring events that marked the active antagonism of the poor people against the church and state in the fourteenth century, Annie Nathan Meyer has founded her story of "Robert Annys: Poor Priest" (The Macmillan Co.) Like all stories wrought from historical material it has the merit of setting forth with some degree of vividness the conditions and customs of the times, and through it, as a bait for the attention, is woven a tale of love.

In the beginning, the reader is introduced to William Morris' conception of John Ball, which the author has frankly borrowed for the occasion. Robert Annys is his follower, and upon his shoulders John Ball, when he is taken to prison, drops his mantle. Much glamour is thrown about the figure of the poor priest by reason of a power which made him a leader at Oxford and which, on leaving there, brought him the opportunity to be Archdeacon, and, of course, later on Bishop of Ely. He puts it and the glory of it all from him, however, and goes about in his coarse russet garb among the people, hungering, thirsting, and laboring with them. For him, it is a veritable journey in the wilderness. The people grow impatient of the restraint he wisely places upon them; they complain and rebel, and tax his patience and ingenuity to the last degree, and, finally, when he is taken from them, and his influence removed, the uprising he has so long dreaded takes place.

The love affair is between Robert and the beautiful, devout Matilda, whom he teaches to read. She is an ideal wife for a priest, and just when he is dreaming of the good they will be able to do together, her cousin Rose appears upon the scene, and her impish ways and ravishing beauty are almost Robert's undoing. To save himself, he takes refuge in a monastery and becomes a Benedictine monk.

The book is mildly interesting, but only for those who are not surfeited with historical novels.

"The Prince of Illusion" (Century company) is a book of short stories by John Luther Long that are quietly interesting. They are about all kinds of people, from Countesses to slaves, and the scenes are laid in all kinds of places, from palaces in Italy to garrets in New York.

The latter is the scene of the first story, which gives the book its name. It is of a child born blind, who conceives the idea that he is a Prince. The mother strives pathetically to keep up the illusion, for the doctor has said that to know of things as they actually were would probably prove fatal. It is a sad story with a sad ending, but the effect is spoiled, to a great extent, by the author's obvious effort to make it so. "Dolce" is a sweet little tale, with a pretty beginning in Philadelphia and a happy ending in Florence. All of the stories are more or less original, and would be greatly improved were the telling of them accomplished with a little more simplicity.

Bridal Gown a Boy's Suit.

Captain Mahoney's office at the Harrison Street Police Station was the scene of a wedding yesterday morning. The bride was 19-year-old Martha Snyder and the groom Fred Cooper. Justice Prindiville performed the ceremony. The girl was still attired in men's clothes, which she had donned to conceal her identity in her escape from her father-in-law in Steubenville, O. A purse of $10 was given the bride.

Towing Trust Wins Its Fight.

Master-in-Chancery Booth, in the United States Circuit Court, presented yesterday the denial of the Barry brothers and Joseph Lamoreaux that they intended to continue the tug business in violation of their agreement with the Great Lakes Towing company, the so-called trust. This, it is conceded, means a dismissal of the injunctional proceedings started a year ago.

SHORT STORY OF THE DAY.

Faithful Unto Death

BY MARY MARSHALL PARKS.

[Copyright, 1901.]

THE fine lines in Hilary's face, which ordinarily gave it a careworn look, rearranged themselves in a whimsical smile—the sort of a smile with which a woman sometimes represses untimely tears.

"After long and careful observation, Miss Ethel, I am forced to the conclusion that there isn't an atom of sentiment in your make-up," he said, reproachfully, as he drew on his gloves.

"Sentiment! Why, Mr. Hilary, it has quite gone out," remonstrated the girl, her bright, dark eyes gleaming saucily over the top of the scarlet fan she held between her face and the crackling flames. "You will pardon me for saying so, I know, but it really isn't considered good form to even mention it."

Hilary was still smiling whimsically when he descended the steps, but as the desolate east wind struck him full in the face his mood changed and he frowned darkly. It had been a hard day at the end of a hard week in a hard life, and he had vainly sought for a crumb of comfort in the one place where he cared to go for it. He had asked for bread and received a stone. She was a heartless jade, an Undine, a mermaid. He applied to her all the biting epithets men have for countless ages heaped on the women who have flounted them, and other quaint ones of his own coinage; then across his memory swept the tenderness of her face as she bent above her crippled brother, and blotted out the cruel words.

He felt that he really knew her only in her relation to others. He watched her moving among her friends like a beneficent spirit, merry, winsome, tender, helpful, but if he drew near, her manner changed instantly. It was sweetly courteous, exquisitely polished, wittily gay, always, but cold and utterly impersonal. Again and again had Hilary tried to break through that invisible barrier, as an imprisoned bird beats its wings against a window pane, and just as often he had retired, puzzled, baffled, repulsed.

A little friendliness was all he asked, a little sympathy—such kindliness as she lavished on the newest comer. He knew he had no right to ask more, and he was an honorable man, and her brother's oldest friend.

He walked on toward the river, vowing, as he had vowed a thousand times before, that he would never set his foot inside the door again—knowing all the time that he would be standing in the little drawing-room once more—well, within a week at the latest.

He was a home lover without a home, a child lover without children, a husband without a wife. There had been no scandal, no talk of separation. Their nearest friends merely suspected the real truth, but he knew that she had wearied of him, and that he—

And because in his inmost heart he had been false to his vows he was the more careful in every outward observance. Had she remained with him he would have been a faithful, attentive husband, but she was more volatile, more impatient of restraint than he, and she had gone—forever; they both knew, although the word had never been spoken. And he, because his own heart condemned him, toiled terribly to keep her in luxury in the gay capital.

Tonight he was worn with fatigue, sick with loneliness. He thought of his dreary rooms in the big hotel down-town with a shudder. As he leaned on the bridge railing, gazing moodily at the dancing lights in the black water, some fragments of a half-forgotten poem flickered into life.

But the gold lamp in the water
It glimmers and beckons bright

For him that would rise and follow
Full smooth is the path. . . .

. . . . .

No more shall he strive or weep,
Being come to the Tower of Silence,
In the Valley of Endless Sleep.

One plunge and it would all be over. He could swim, to be sure; but that icy water would soon conquer his rebellious muscles. He shivered and smiled sardonically as he thought of the man who rushed to the river to drown himself, but returned saying that he could not do it because the water was so cold! It certainly was not an attractive road to the "Valley of Endless Sleep," but there were others. Again a vivid little face swept across his fancy—not tender now, but quivering with disdain.

"Only a coward would do that," she had said.

He straightened up and turned away with a resolute look in his eyes. He was no coward. He would take up his burden and go on.

. . . .

The same bright, dark eyes were dreamily gazing over the scarlet fan into the scarlet coals one evening when the door bell rang. It was a short, sharp, vibrant clang that awoke the girl from her reverie and brought her to her feet with a start. With her face to the entrance, she stood motionless, waiting.

"Is Miss Ethel in?" a voice inquired, a voice as vibrant as the bell. He had never asked for her before, but always for her father or her brother.

When Hilary lifted the portiere he saw on her face the same look she had given her crippled brother, only far more vividly sweet. The next moment she was folded in his arms.

"How did you know I was free?" he asked, wonderingly, when he could master his speech.

"I knew by your voice."

"And tell me another thing, witch of the world, if you cared—like this—why were you so hard? It was only a little friendliness I wanted, and I wanted it so much."

"I dared not, Hilary," she answered, fervently. "Some women could have done it, perhaps, but not I. I should have betrayed my secret if I had. And if you had guessed it, if any one had guessed it, I should have died. I was not ashamed in my own heart; for—I cared for you first, before she ever knew you."

"She never cared for me. She never even thought she did. O, she might have spared me the knowledge of that," he said, bitterly. "But you were a mere child."

"I was 18, and—I think I had loved you always."

"I deserved all I got," he said humbly, inwardly berating his own blindness and stupidity.

"It was a terrible mistake. But if we are not cowards we accept the consequences of our mistakes and abide by them. 'He that sweareth to his own hurt, and changeth not,' you know. Ah, Hilary, it was grand, and I was so proud of you; and now it is ended, and I am so glad. Dear, I so longed to comfort you and help you carry the burden; but I dared not, because—I wanted to so much. If I had cared less— But you shall never be unhappy again. Never again."

"Was I ever unhappy, my darling?" he whispered. "I had forgotten. It seems so long ago."

HELPS PLAN CARNEGIE SCHOOL.

Dean Alderson of Armour Institute on Advisory Committee to Decide Scope of New Institution.

Dean V. C. Alderson of the Armour Institute of Technology returned yesterday from Pittsburg, where he was for three days in consultation with the Board of Trustees of the new Carnegie School of Technology regarding the scope and policy of the new school. It was decided that a number of features that have been used exclusively in the Armour school will be made a part of the Carnegie institution.

Dean Alderson was chosen one of the members of the Advisory committee, whose duty it shall be to define the entire field and purpose of the school. In this capacity he will be assisted by Professor Gray of the Rose Polytechnic Institute, Professor Johnston, dean of the engineering school of the University of Wisconsin, and Professor Thurston, director of Sibley College, Cornell.

"The new school will be a grand institution," said Dean Alderson. "It will hold the same rank as does the Federal Polytechnic in Switzerland and the Charlottenberg Polytechnic in Germany. Our report will be made some time in June, and after that the site and other matters will be settled. The new school will be a university for applied sciences in the broadest sense. The City of Pittsburg is keenly alive to the benefits that will come from the establishment of the institute and will donate a site embracing from thirty to forty acres of land. The decision of our Advisory committee on the scope of the school will have much to do with the amount of land required and its location."

PRESS VIEW AT ROYAL ACADEMY

Two New Striking Features of the Annual Exhibit of Paintings at London.

LONDON, May 2.—The first press view of the Royal Academy today revealed two striking features which were absent from former exhibitions—viz.: paintings dealing with Queen Victoria's death and funeral and incidents of the Boer war.

Benjamin Constant's picture of the Queen has a whole wall to itself, with a background of black and purple. It will undoubtedly be the picture of the year. Lord Dundonald's "Dash on Ladysmith" and pictures of other engagements in south Africa make bright contrasts to the rows and rows of landscapes and portraits. Of the latter, Sargent sends nine, the most striking of which is the daughters of Mr. Wertheimer.

One of the most charming pictures hung is "The Flower Girl," by an American, J. J. Shannon. The "Queen's Funeral in London" was done by John Charlton, and "The Naval Cortège at Portsmouth" by W. L. Wyllie. Both are remarkable pictures. Sidney Cooper, the father of the Academy, and other old-time academicians, including Sir Edward Poynter, with a marble group, and Sir Lawrence Alma-Tadema, with a classic, "Helena and Hermia," will all be found in their accustomed places.

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "If it is not by any means a great Academy it has at least enough good pictures to keep it up to the average."

MIX IN HUSBAND AND CLOTHES.

Two Women Who Claim Leopold Melville Have Another Woe, but Part as Friends.

Two women who claim Leopold Melville as husband carried the competition a step further yesterday when they also claimed the same clothes. Incidentally, Melville was indicted by the grand jury on the charge of stealing silverware from restaurants in which he had worked.

The two women—Hannah Hanson-Melville and Elizabeth Hanechmann-Melville—thanks to the diplomacy of Detective Ed Wallbaum, came out of their difficulty as good friends.

When arrested, Melville had three trunks in his room. These Detective Wallbaum brought back with him, and they were stored in the big vault in the State's Attorney's office. Each of the women identified one of the trunks as hers, but when the trunks were opened it was found that the contents had been hopelessly confused. Detective Wallbaum was perplexed, but he hit on a plan. The Hanson woman is of unusual height, while the other is short and slender.

"Try it on," was the order of the detective when a dispute over a garment arose.

Before the distribution was completed the women were actually chummy. They called each other Lizzie and Hannah, and in their excitement called Detective Wallbaum Ed.

Besides indicting Melville, the grand jury voted indictments against Larry Curtis, G. Woods, Louis Parker, John Murphy, Joseph Woods, H. Hughes, and Edward Flanagan on the charge of bookmaking.

COUNTRY THEATER MEN CONFER

Favor Plan to Enlarge Their Association, but Final Action Is Postponed Till May 12.

The Illinois and Indiana Theatrical Managers' association met at the Auditorium Hotel yesterday to discuss enlarging the association as to take in several cities in Michigan and Iowa. The plan was favored but final action was postponed till May 12.

Another matter discussed at the meeting was the form of a proposed new contract. There were represented at the meeting all the members of the association representing eighteen theaters in the following cities: Evansville, Terre Haute, Fort Wayne, South Bend, and Vincennes, Ind., and Bloomington, Decatur, Springfield, Joliet, Jacksonville, Champaign, Ottawa, Streator, Aurora, Freeport, Kankakee, Alton, and Lincoln, Ill.

The association was formed last year with the purpose of doing away with the system of independent bookings, as well as to cheapen the cost of attractions.

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

[Copyright, 1901, by the Marquise de Fontenoy.]

FAR too little attention has been accorded in this country to the action of the King of Italy in conferring the order of the annunciation upon President Loubet, and those in the United States who are accustomed to scoff at decorations and orders of knighthood of the old world would be amazed to learn the extent to which this Italian distinction granted to the chief magistrate of France has caused annoyance and concern both at Berlin and at Vienna.

In order to appreciate just what it means it is necessary to explain that although Emile Loubet is the seventh President of France since the establishment of the third republic more than thirty years ago, yet he is the first to be thus honored by an Italian sovereign. True, Marshal MacMahon had the order of the annunciation. But he received it for the same victory of the allied Franco-Italian army over the Austrians in the war of 1859 that won for him the French baton of Field Marshal and the Dukedom of Magenta. But no President has received as such the order of the annunciation until the King of Italy's uncle, the royal Duke of Genoa, came specially to Toulon at the head of a magnificent Italian fleet in order to present the decoration to Loubet.

It is an order which is even more difficult to obtain and more rarely granted than either the English order of the Garter, the Russian order of St. Andrews, or the Spanish order of the Golden Fleece. There are but six or seven non-royal Italians to possess it, and they rank as knights thereof, immediately next to the members of the reigning family and before all the other dignitaries of the kingdom, while their wives enjoy the "pas" of Duchesses, and alone of all women have the right to be seated in the presence of the sovereign at great functions of court and state. They, as well as their husbands, indeed become by virtue of the order "cousins" of the King of Italy and of the members of the royal house of Savoy.

The insignia consists of a badge upon which is represented a picture of the annunciation to the Virgin by the Archangel Gabriel, and is hung round the neck, not by a ribbon, but by a gold chain. There is also a star for the order, worn on the left breast. Both the star and the badge bear the curious word "Fert," the meaning and origin of which are unknown even to the most accomplished antiquarians and historians, and have remained shrouded in mystery. The most plausible explanation is that the four letters of the word consist of the initials of the Latin words, "Fortitudo Ejus Rhodum Tenuit," bearing reference to the exploits of Duke Amadeus, the fifth of Savoy, in the Island of Rhodes. The order was founded in the year 1360 by Duke Amadeus VI. of Savoy. The costume of the order consists of a medieval species of tunic and trunks of white silk, with a mantle of purple velvet, and it is somewhat difficult to picture to one's self the worthy and estimable M. Loubet thus attired.

While on the subject of foreign orders of knighthood I may mention that a good deal of attention has been attracted to the order of the Bath in connection with King Edward's appointment of his brother, the Duke of Connaught, as its Grand Master. In all other European countries it is the sovereign who is the Grand Master of all its orders of knighthood. But in England it is different. Thus the Viceroy of Ireland is the Grand Master of the order of St. Patrick, the Viceroy of India is in the same way ex-officio Grand Master of the orders of the Star of India and of the Indian Empire, while the aged Duke of Cambridge, first cousin of Queen Victoria, is Grand Master of the order of St. Michael and St. George. There is no Grand Master of the orders of the Garter and of the Thistle, nor yet of the Victorian order, while since the death of the second Duke of Montagu in 1749 there has been no Grand Master of the Bath.

I see by the bye that the English newspapers, among others the Pall Mall Gazette, assert that the order of the Bath was first founded by King George I. in 1725. They are obviously in ignorance of the fact that it was originally founded by King Edward I., and that Froissart, in his famous "Chronicles," describes how King Henry IV., on the occasion of his coronation in October, 1399, created a number of knights of the order of the Bath.

The manner of their creation as related by Froissart serves to explain their somewhat singular designations which has been for generations the subject of so much humor. It seems that the ceremonial included a bath in order that the knight should present himself in a thoroughly purified state before the religious portion of the ceremony, which on the occasion in question took place at the tower of London. The court barber prepared the bath, according to Froissart, and the esquires of the new knight having undressed him and placed him in the bath, his clothes became the perquisites of the barber. He was then, according to Froissart, removed from the water with the words, "May this be an honorable bath to you," and placed "wet and naked" in a plain bed without curtains to dry. As soon as he was quite dry he was removed by his esquires from the bed and dressed in a russet robe, and afterwards in richer apparel with gloves, coifs, and silken mantle, and then he was conducted to the chapel by two knights for the religious portion of the ceremony, during the course of which he offered "taper to the honor of God and a pennypiece to the honor of the King." On the conclusion of the religious ceremony he knelt before the King, who struck him a blow with the sword on the shoulder, exclaiming: "Arise, Sir John, or Henry" (as the case might be), and then having girded him with the sword embraced him, saying: "Be thou a good knight."

The stalls of the order are in Henry VII. chapel of Westminster Abbey, but since 1815 there has been no ceremonial installation, and the banners hanging in the chapel above the various stalls have not been disturbed since then, and represent the knights of that date.

The order is divided into a civil and military division and into three classes. The first class, or highest grade, consists of fifty naval and military knights and of twenty-five civil knights, who are entitled to add the letters "G. C. B." after their names, standing for Grand Cross of the Bath. It will be noticed that the name of Lord Pauncefote is always followed by these mystic letters. Of the second class there are eighty civil knights and about 150 naval and military knights.

Knights of the second class add the letters "K. C. B." to their names, and, like the first class, the second carries with it the title or prefix of "Sir," with the prefix of "Lady" for the wife. The third class are known as Companions of the Bath and have no title; neither are they knighted. There are 250 civil companions and about 800 military and naval ones.

No officer under field rank in the army or commander in the navy is qualified for this honor, and he must also have been mentioned in dispatches as having distinguished himself in action against the enemy.

The knights of the first class wear a star on the left breast with a broad red ribbon crossing the shoulder to the hip, where the badge of the order is fastened. The knights of the second class wear a star on the breast and the badge of the order suspended by a scarlet ribbon round the neck, while the companions wear no star, but the badge of the order pinned to the left breast by a scarlet ribbon.

It is the highest order granted by the crown for services to the state, and, whereas, Lord Palmerston used to say, there was no question of any "damned merit about the order of the Garter," the order of the Bath implies exceptional and distinguished merit and valued service to the state.

There are two men who are above all others responsible for the present legislative and administrative chaos that prevails in Austria, rendering all parliamentary methods of government absolutely impossible by their obstructive tactics. The one is ex-Baron Schonerer and the other a Dr. Wolf.

Schonerer is an enormously wealthy man, a son of the late Baron Schonerer, the great contractor, and entered the imperial Parliament at Vienna in 1873, starting out as a demagogue from the beginning. Until his advent the Reichsrath had always been a decorous assembly, in which members addressed one another in courteous terms, as beseemed gentlemen. Baron Schonerer, however, in his maiden speech began by hurling gross personal insults at the Ministers, accusing them of robbing the agricultural laborers to give to great capitalists. This was the inauguration of a form of legislative maneuvers which has since developed into the banging of desk lids and into the throwing of ink pots.

Before three years had passed Schonerer organized a party of his own, the "raison d'etre" of which was, as he announced, the Germanization of Austria and the absorption of the German-speaking provinces of Austria by the German Empire. Six years later, finding the people tiring of his Philo-Germanism, he assumed the chieftancy of the crusade against the Jews in Austria. He joined hands with the notorious ex-Court Chaplain Stocker of Berlin and formulated a program, of which war to the death against the Jews was the first article. He carried his propaganda into the poorer districts, deliberately inciting the workers to rise against their Jewish employers. The result was that every meeting he held was followed by a street tumult, and strikes and outrages became the order of the day.

In 1884 he led a night attack by anti-Semites upon a Vienna newspaper that had criticised his conduct, the newspaper staff being subjected to the most odious maltreatment, while the entire establishment was wrecked. For this he was arrested and not only sentenced to a year's imprisonment, but was likewise deprived by the crown of his title of Baron and restored to the rank of a commoner. This, of course, served to render him more bitter than ever against the Emperor and against the government, and, finding that Dr. Lueger, one of the most handsome and fascinating men in all Austria, as well as an ardent, if misguided, patriot, had supplanted him as chief of the anti-Semite party [Dr. Lueger is now Mayor of Vienna], he organized another Germanization propaganda in conjunction with Dr. Wolf, a man of Hebrew race, and who, belonging to the German element in Bohemia, had made up his mind to war upon the Czechs wherever he found them.

Together Schonerer and Wolf set to work to render constitutional government in Austria impossible, and so far they have succeeded. They have made life a burden to some half a dozen Prime Ministers and have driven each one of them in turn from office. So personally insulting are they that on one occasion Count Badeni, when Premier, in defiance of all etiquette and of law, actually challenged Dr. Wolf and fought a duel with him. By their taunts, insults, and threats they drive Ministerialists, Czechs, and, in fact, half of the Reichsrath to perpetual fury, while by their intrigues they set all the other parties at variance.

In this way it is easy to make scenes in the Reichsrath and every scene they account to themselves as a triumph. Meanwhile legislation is at a standstill and the Emperor may see himself forced any day to revoke the constitution which he granted fifty years ago.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

Reckonings of a Prosperous Year.

Two of Chicago's theaters, Powers' and the Illinois, count their fiscal year as ending May 1. In consequence of the results reached yesterday by the compilations of figures, Manager Harry J. Powers of the former and Manager Will J. Davis of the latter were in a contented frame of mind last night.

Although the season of 1898-'99 was thought to have established a record at Powers' Theater, and although last season surpassed the mark by so much it was thought it would not be raised again, the present year, according to Mr. Powers, has exceeded its predecessor in prosperity.

"It is the best year the theater ever has had," said Mr. Powers, "and if I had not had such beliefs disproved by each new season of the last three I would say the receipts of the season could not be increased in the future."

The Illinois did not open until the middle of October and its financial returns for the year had to be based on the short season of thirty weeks. The gross returns for that period were placed last night, however, at above $300,000, an average of over $10,000 a week. Although no figures were named for Powers' Theater, an estimate of a general nature placed the total receipts at $375,000 or more.

Mr. Davis was sure no theater in its first year ever had fared as well as the Illinois. Only one week in the season, he said, had been poor, while the receipts for some weeks had been phenomenal. Although Mme. Bernhardt and M. Coquelin did not fill the theater during their engagement, their gross receipts owing to the high prices charged reached $22,000 a week, and of this amount the theater received one-fifth. So the two weeks were the best the theater had during the season.

A meeting of the directors of the Illinois will be held in New York next week. Mr. Powers and Mr. Davis will leave today to attend it.

Lover's Lane to Have Chicago Run.

One of Clyde Fitch's new plays, "Lover's Lane," was settled upon yesterday as the substitute summer attraction at McVicker's Theater in place of the melodrama, "The Price of Peace." The new choice is a piece of "rural" atmosphere, and has been running for several months at the Manhattan theater in New York. When that theater was closed on Saturday night, preparatory to rebuilding, the play was transferred to the Republic Theater, where it will remain for three or four weeks before being brought to Chicago. Ernest Hastings, who for a time was a leading man at the Dearborn Theater last year, has the chief rôle, that of a progressive young minister, in the play. Miss Nannette Comstock has the opposite part.

Auditorium's Uncle Tom Postponed.

Light was shed yesterday on W. A. Brady's plans regarding an Auditorium revival of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" by the definite statement that the piece would not be presented until Monday night, May 27. It was admitted that the effort to get the Auditorium for an earlier date had failed, owing, it is understood, to concert contracts of previous existence. Manager Jay Rial's revival at the Haymarket will be made on its schedule day, next Monday.

Last Ballad Concert.

The last Summy Ballad Concert this season attracted to University Hall yesterday afternoon an audience that filled every seat in main floor and balcony and placed rows of standing ouditors along the edge of the foyer. The program was given by Max Heinrich and Miss Julia Heinrich, who were heard first in the duets by Henschel and Goring Thomas, which they have sung at nearly every recital they have given here this season. Later, they gave together "Der Letzte Wunsch" and "Der Abschied," by Dvorak.

Of the solo numbers by Miss Heinrich, especially pleasing were McDowell's "Long Ago, Sweetheart Mine," and "A Maid Sings Light and a Maid Sings Low"—two songs in their composer's best style—"To Woo," a melodious setting by Miss Gleason of a neat little owl poem; and a "Serenade" by Jessie L. Gaynor, an effectively written night song with an impassioned climax.

Mr. Heinrich did not accompany himself for his solos, but gave way to Miss Heinrich at the piano, a change which seemed to place him less at ease than usual, but which detracted nothing from the high excellence of his interpretations. His greatest success with his auditors was achieved with Roger's "Not from the Whole Wide World I Choose Thee," Damrosch's "Danny Deever"—to which he lent new power by use of an unusually deliberate tempo—and "Gypsy John," which he gave in inimitable style as an encore.

COOLEY FREE FROM 'PULL'

REJOICES OVER ESCAPE FROM THE MAN WITH INFLUENCE.

Superintendent of Schools Says His Early Re-election Is a Great Relief from Constant Importunities to Make Appointments on a Reciprocity Basis—Reviews His First Year's Work—Roses from Friends — Distributing State Money.

The reëlection of Superintendent Cooley two months earlier than had been expected worked a transformation at the Board of Education offices yesterday. Mr. Cooley's desk was buried under a profusion of American beauty roses, while the usual long line of callers was absent. The people who have been trying to tell Superintendent Cooley that by reappointing them or their friends he would secure his own reëlection apparently have decided their "pull" is gone. They sent roses to tell of their pleasure at his reëlection and to express in a last delicate manner their own hopes.

Mr. Cooley talked of the relief that had come with the change of time for the election of Superintendent. He said the fact he was not of a particularly nervous temperament had made the solicitations of certain people more easily endurable than they would have been to another man in his place. He was glad, however, he would no longer be obliged to listen to the suggestion of schoolbook publishers that it might be of mutual advantage if he would recommend their books and they in turn use their "strong" influence for his reëlection.

Commends the Board's Action.

"The action of the board," said Mr. Cooley, "in freeing the Superintendent of Schools from the influences which are brought to bear on him at this time certainly is one which should be appreciated by the incumbent of the office if he is desirous of giving an unbiased and unhampered administration of school affairs. Things have been no worse this year than usual, I presume, and it would have been possible to go ahead as usual. But the Superintendent who is assured of his place for a year ahead is much freer in making his appointments. The solicitations of those who come to him might have no influence against carrying out his own convictions, yet his work is made harder by their insistent appeals. The Board of Education must be credited by fair-minded people with doing all in its power to secure a fair administration of the schools."

Reviews First Year's Work.

Superintendent Cooley said, in talking of his first year's work in the public schools, which will be completed in June, that the most important general movement has been the freeing of the appointment of teachers from political influence or "pull." The work in this direction is not completed, he says, and he has a number of plans that may be carried out next year. What they are he refuses to say, explaining that he has learned "not to go frog hunting with a brass band."

"Within the last year," said Mr. Cooley, "the board has enacted a number of rules that have placed the appointment of teachers practically upon a basis of merit. It is now quite possible for the Superintendent to make appointments in accordance with his professional judgment and not in deference to the desires of any one. Another step in this direction was taken last night in settling the cadet problem. Trustee Sexton advocated the measure because it was a 'civil service rule,' and that shows the attitude of the board members."

State Money for Schools.

County Superintendent Bright began the distribution of the funds received by him on account of Cook County's share of the two-mill State tax levy for educational purposes. The total amount allotted to the county is $347,721.02. The division of the fund is on the basis of 37.2 cents for every person in each township or school district under 21 years of age, based on the census of 1900. This amount is $74,000 greater than the sum distributed by Mr. Bright last year. Chicago, with its school population of 873,247, is given $324,847.

The apportionment to the Township Treasurers, with the number of children of school age, is as follows:

Favors Car Barn for School.

The City Council Committee on Schools recommended to the Council that the car barn of the Chicago Union Traction company at Western avenue and Flournoy street be rented from the company for two years at $2,400 a year for the use of the West Division High School classes. Repairs costing $50,000 also were recommended. The committee also acted favorably on the proposition to spend $30,000 on the building now under way at Forty-second court and West Cullom street; to furnish the Robert A. Waller High School with five additional classrooms, at a cost of $8,000; to remodel the James A. Sexton School into a fifteen-room grammar school for $15,000; to replace the frame building on the Wabansia School site with a twenty-room school building for $100,000; to provide twelve school yards with coal scales; and to start condemnation proceedings to acquire land near the Robert Morris School, Blucher and King streets. The land belongs to A. M. Weidinger, who values it at $23,000, while the Board of Education thinks $15,000 enough.

She asked for an increase of at least $10,000 in the next two years to meet growing demands.

MARTINELLI TAKES THE OATH.

Newly Created Cardinal Subscribes to the Profession of Faith at the Papal Legation.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—Cardinal Martinelli took the oath of his new office and subscribed to the profession of faith at the papal legation today. Among the provisions of the oath are pledges on the part of the Cardinal that he will not resign his office, that he will not canvass for any one in the election of a new Pope, and that he will maintain the right of the sovereign Pontiff to exercise temporal power.
